GEN. WOOD LAYS SLUMP TO LACK OF CONFIDENCE

Strikes One Factor, Senators Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., today told the senate committee on unemployment and relief that lack of confidence in the Roosevelt administration was largely to blame for the new depression.

"The causes of this lack of confidence are probably known to all of the gentlemen," he said. "While the President in his recent speech has tried to reassure capital, three recent talks by two members of the administration are not calculated to give private capital that confidence.

"Either the government will have to continue its spending indefinitly—which would be disastrous—or private capital must be given confidence to proceed."

Points to Inventories.

Describing himself as one "economic royalist" who had been friendly to the administration, Gen. Wood said the recession had brought a drop in sales for his company, which by December had resulted in accumulation of a 138 million dollars of goods on hand, as shown by the inventory, the highest in the company's history.

"As far as the question of distribution of goods is concerned, the recession is as yet relatively mild," said the witness, "but in production it is exceedingly severe, particularly in those industries producing capital goods."

Disagreeing with the administration's explanation that monopolistic prices and a business sitdown caused the depression, Gen. Wood blamed it on a drastic increase in inventories, on the uncertain and deflationary monetary policies, and on the failure of private capital to take up the burden of business activity when government spending was curtailed.

Says Capital Lacks Confidence.

The reason private capital did not take up the slack when the government spending pace slowed was because business lacked the necessary confidence to assume the load, Gen. Wood said.

In reference to monetary policies, Gen. Wood, who is deputy chairman of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, told the committee that sterilization of gold and two advances in federal reserve requirements had a deflationary effect. He said he thought desterilization of the treasury's gold would be helpful in ending the recession.

Gen. Wood said the stocks in the hands of merchants would be exhausted by March or April, with a consequent increase in consumer goods consumption. While this will increase employment, it will not carry the country, he added, for there must be some movement in capital goods.

"If railroads can resume the buying of equipment, if utilities can begin their capital expenditures, and if residential construction gets under way, there ought to be a very rapid decrease of unemployment by the latter part of the spring," said Gen. Wood.

Green Urges Action.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called for legislative action to end the slump. He urged shortening hours of work, maintenance of wage rates, continuing public works, and low rent housing programs, remission of local taxes to encourage building, an extension of the social security program, and a broader work relief program.

Green declared that the increase in unemployment this fall has been comparable with the worst increases of the depression. He said approximately 1,770,000 workers were laid off between last September and December, while the 1929 and 1931 layoffs affected about 1,850,000.

The labor leader said that "workers' buying power has been held at higher levels than in any previous recession because of the wage increases last spring."

Martin Cites Auto Layoffs.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, told the committee that a total of 100,000 men had been laid off in the automobile industry. This constituted about 50 per cent of the union's membership in the Detroit area, Martin declared. He estimated that General Motors employment had

BORAH ORATORY BEATS AGAINST ANTI-LYNCH BILL

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A speech today by Senator William E. Borah, acclaimed by his colleagues as one of the greatest orations of his career of thirty-one years in the senate, was believed by many to have marked the turning of the tide against the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill.

The old Lion of Idaho, 72 years old, electrified the senate chamber for an hour and fifteen minutes as he condemned the anti-lynching bill on both constitutional and moral grounds. The purpose of the measure, he said, was born of the vengeful reconstruction spirit which prompted Congressman Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania to say in 1865: "Every government is despotism. . . . The constitution has nothing to do with this program. . . . I propose to deal with the south entirely by the laws of war."

Not American System.

Enactment of the bill, Senator Borah added, would compromise with the vital principle of our dual system of government and fulfill the sneering prophecy of disaster made by Dictator Mussolini for our "bellowing herds of democracy."

Senator Borah referred briefly to the provisions of the bill, which makes lynching a federal offense. It provides penalties of not more than 5 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine for any officer or employé of a state who fails to protect any person from lynching. The bill also makes any governmental subdivision from which a lynching victim is seized liable for the crime, and provides for the recovery of from $2,000 to $10,000 by the victim's relatives.

If the federal government can go into a southern state and arrest any of its officers, from the governor down, for failing to prevent the lynching of a Negro, Senator Borah contended, then it can go into New York and arrest the sherif, the mayor or the chief of police for failure to prevent the killing of citizens by thugs and racketeers.

Norris Is Displeased.

With the sole exception of Senator George Norris [Rad., Neb.], the 70 or more senators on the floor listened with close attention to Senator Borah's address. Despite his 72 years, he spoke with great vigor and a vehemence that rang with sincerity and conviction. Only Norris, a supporter of the bill, seemed displeased. He never looked back in Senator Borah's direction, but sat scowling, and whenever the chamber seemed to be under the influence of the oratorical spell he rattled a large bunch of keys.

When Senator Borah had concluded, his colleagues stood in line and filed by to shake hands with him in a fervor that suggested a revival meeting. The delighted southerners predominated in the rush to congratulate Senator Borah, but there were quite a few northern supporters of the anti-lynching bill who did likewise. Among these were Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], a zealous proponent of the measure, and young Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. [R., Mass.], namesake and grandson of a senator who was sponsoring so-called force bills more than 40 years ago.

Promise Determined Filibuster.

After Senator Borah had delivered his speech, southern Democrats said they were prepared to filibuster till doomsday to prevent passage of the bill. The Borah speech seemed to be an incentive for a renewed determination, for heretofore many southerners have regarded passage of the bill as a foregone conclusion at this session.

In the bitterness of the controversy over President Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme court, at the last regular session, some of the southerners privately vowed not to make another determined filibuster, contending that it would be a good

THE FOX CRAVES CO-OPERATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Jan. 7.—In the lofty halls of the great peace palace here through the years, international tragedies have bled the hearts of the men who sit in solemn judgment upon most of the world.

Rage has risen within them and intrigue has tried their fortitude. They have seen member nations walk out. But there has always been a safety valve.

After sessions which, it seemed, threatened the peace of the world they have put on their tall hats and filed sedately into a room fitted up appropriately for its mission. It was Carlo's bar.

Crises Fade Away.

Carlo always seemed to hit the spot. His absinthe frappés, his rare old brandies in which the breezes of the Mediterranean and the fires of the Sahara mingled, and his soothing voice usually did the business. There wasn't a braided diplomat in the bunch that cared a hoot for crises, ideologies, or axis, or sanctions, after the ministrations of Carlo.

Carlo has soothed the jangled nerves of the diplomats after each major catastrophe. He was particularly busy, for example, on the days when Japan and Germany walked out. It was the same when Costa Rica, Brazil, Paraguay, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Honduras, and Salvador quit. Even more so when Italy departed.

Comes the Day of Revenge.

Carlo himself took a few that day, because he is an Italian. Business continued good during the period when Italy was retaliating upon the other nations which had joined in invoking sanctions against Mussolini for his war on Ethiopia. But after sessions at Carlo's the diplomats would chuckle:

"The Duce can't sanction us, anyway."

But that was only what they thought. Today the blow fell, leaving desolation and ruin where all had been sweetness and light. Italy ordered Carlo to give up his bar concession and come home. And he did.

ARTLESS COPPER IS CHAGRINED BY WHAT IS ART

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Detective Cornelius Walters paid $1.07 for fifteen pictures of nude women he considered obscene when he saw them in a Greenwich Village art shop. With a duty well done air, he displayed his evidence before Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, where an employé of the shop was arraigned.

Erwin M. Riebe, owner of the shop, had an argument. He declared the prints were copies of highly respected pictures in Paris salons and, to show there was little difference, he brought along a costly picture he bought at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The prints passed customs inspectors when he imported them from Paris, he added.

The magistrate admitted he couldn't see much in the pictures to arouse passion, but withheld his decision.

"I'm Ill," Says Actress, as Audience Sees Her Faint

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—When, at Thursday evening's performance of "The Women," Phyllis Povah said, "I'm ill. It must have been those alligator pears," the audience thought it was a line from the script. It wasn't. A moment later Miss Povah slumped to the stage in a faint. The curtain was lowered, a stage manager thrust a script into the hands of Edith Gresham, the curtain went up and Miss Gresham read the rôle until Miss Povah's understudy, Virginia Chew, could be rushed into costume and makeup.

Double Movies Unhealthy? Hodes Asked for Opinion

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes was asked yesterday by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] for an opinion on the legality of double features in movie theaters. Ald. Lindell is chairman of a city council subcommittee appointed to find out whether double features should be banned on the ground that it is unhealthy for a child to sit through such long shows.

Makes Fortune on Gambling; Loses Safe Bet

For many years prior to 1930 Samuel Jackson dealt and lived in terms of big money. He was a broker for gamblers, transferring large wagers among handbooks for a fee.

In 1914 he met Matilda Miller, who a few years before had divorced her husband, James C. Miller. In 1916 they were married and Mrs. Miller's daughter, Ethel, then 26 years old, went to live with them.

Jackson was accumulating large sums of money, and, like many figures in the sporting world, was reluctant to keep it in his own name. He therefore began transferring securities and bonds to his wife, more than $210,000 worth in all. In 1930 he purchased a $14,000 tract in River Forest and erected on it an $85,000 mansion which was put in the name of Ethel, his stepdaughter.

Depression Holds No Fears.

Then his wife came to him, depressed at having learned that Miller, her former husband, was destitute and near death. He was 77 years old, she said, and would not live six months. She asked if they could shelter him. Jackson consented.

Two years passed. Things were bad. Wagers dwindled and Jackson's fees with them. Soon he was without capital. Mrs. Jackson's attitude toward him changed. Soon life at the mansion was unhappy.

Refuses to Give Up Money.

In 1935 Jackson could bear it no longer. He demanded the $210,000 he had entrusted to her. She refused to give it up. He left and started suit for an accounting. For three years it dragged through the courts.

Yesterday Judge Michael Feinberg approved the findings of Master in Chancery Isadore Brown, which held that the $210,000 in securities and the mansion were legally gifts to the wife and stepdaughter. He upheld only Jackson's ownership of the $14,000 tract. He bitterly assailed the characters of Mrs. Jackson and Miss Miller, but ruled for them.

Last night Jackson, now 70 years old, slept in a furnished room in Oak Park. His wife and her daughter slept in their elaborate chambers in the mansion. Miller slept in the great master bedroom.

Girl Believed Shot by Error in Gang Trap

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A convicted murderer who was freed from prison on parole was held tonight as a suspect in the mysterious slaying of Melba Moore, 16 years old, following his arrest through the story of a South Bend housewife that he and his gang of apparent automobile thieves held her a virtual prisoner for several weeks.

The housewife was reported to have told a grand jury she believed the gangsters had intended to kill her because she had learned of their outlaw activities and had mistakenly slain Miss Moore instead.

Miss Moore, a high school pupil of Granger, Ind., was shot to death on a lovers' lane near that town the night of last Oct. 12. Her young escorts, Adolph Stopper, her sweetheart, and Charles Walton, said they stopped to offer assistance to the occupant of an apparently stalled car and the man suddenly fired on them, fatally wounding the girl.

Description Corresponds.

Today state police arrested Lawrence McCarty, 37 years old, of Anderson, Ind., who was paroled from a California penitentiary in 1924 after serving five years for the holdup murder of a taxicab driver. His description was said to correspond with that of Miss Moore's slayer.

Sheriff William J. Hosinski said a hunt for McCarty was begun as a result of information given a grand jury by Mrs. Cecil Hawkins, 26 years old, 3500 Crumstown avenue.

Last fall, she related, McCarty and several of his henchmen took possession of a barn on the property where she lived alone. For several weeks they used the building to strip automobiles which she believed were stolen.

Tells of Death Threat.

When she learned of their activities they threatened her with death if she revealed their presence to authorities.

"McCarty frequently displayed a gun and slapped his hip where he carried the weapon when he talked to me," Mrs. Hawkins was quoted by the sherif as saying.

She said the gangsters kept her so stricken with terror that she was afraid to tell any one, least of all police, about them. Even when she left town to visit friends in Michigan, the woman said, she was afraid to talk about her predicament.

It was on the day of Miss Moore's slaying, according to Mrs. Hawkins, that McCarty and his men gave her permission to visit friends in Eau Claire and Edwardsburg, Mich.

Woman's Route Laid Out.

But they forced her—McCarty slapping his hip and talking in a threatening manner—to tell them in detail the route she would take on her return trip. Their insistence on knowing these plans formed the basis for her belief that they had meant to kill her so they could continue their car stripping unhampered, and had shot the high school girl to death

TERUEL REBELS SURRENDER; IN BATTLE 17 DAYS

Women and Children Too Weak to Walk.

MADRID, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Spanish government announced tonight that 2,000 exhausted and starving insurgents who had been barricaded in the Hospital of Asuncion in Teruel had surrendered under arrangements initiated by the international Red Cross. With the fall of this base, the government said, only small groups of rebels remained in the city, a road and rail junction of eastern Spain, where fighting has been going on for seventeen days. These groups were expected to surrender soon, the government said.

Five hundred women, children, aged persons and wounded, and 1,500 men of the garrison made up the besieged group. The captured forces were commanded by Lieut. Col. Rey d'Harcourt. The defenders had been barricaded in the old quarter of the city since government forces captured Teruel Dec. 21 in a surprise offensive. Hard pressed by the attacking forces and later without food and water, they were driven from building to building until they reached the limit of their endurance in the hospital under the hardship of extremely cold weather.

Too Weak to Walk.

The government communique said the 500 noncombatants, in a pitiable state of exhaustion, gave themselves up at 2 p. m. under amnesty terms. They had had nothing to eat for a week and cried for water. Many fainted after they came above ground and left the building, the government announcement said. Some were too weak to walk and had to be taken away in cars and buses.

Indalecio Prieto, defense minister of the loyalist government, was consulted by telegraph in Barcelona when the insurgent garrison first ran up a white flag early today.

Later a band bearing a white banner left the hospital and crossed to the government side with a message addressed in pencil to the commander of the 86th mixed brigade. It was signed by Cruz Vina, local chairman of the Teruel Red Cross, and contained the proposal of the international Red Cross that all women, children, aged persons, and wounded in the beleaguered hospital be evacuated and be accorded treatment customary under international rule.

Denies Right to Leave Spain.

The proposal asked also that all noncombatants wanting to leave be evacuated and sent to their homes or be allowed to go abroad. Prieto agreed to part of the request, but refused to permit any of those surrendering to leave the country. Evacuation began immediately in groups of six. The government commanders at Teruel were instructed to arrange for the care of the civilians.

The 1,500 defending troops surrendered without previous discussion of terms. Their last hope of relief from the insurgent troops who had been striving desperately for nine days to break through the government lines was gone.

Two hundred and thirty other crack rebel troops—two companies of Navarrese—also surrendered in a body today, the government reported, in the Muela de Teruel sector outside the city of Teruel.

Seven persons were killed and seven injured when a lone insurgent plane from Palma, Mallorca, attacked the city of Barcelona, dropping many incendiary bombs which started numerous fires, another government communique said. An insurgent plane was shot down by anti-aircraft guns during an unsuccessful raid on Sagunto, another Mediterranean coastal city, it was said.

GIBRALTAR, Jan. 7.—A reliable Malaga resident revealed today several hundred Italian and German infantrymen, armed with the most modern war equipment, have been concentrated at Malaga, on the south Spanish coast in preparation for a combined Spanish-Italo-German offensive against Almeria. This city is an important Mediterranean port.

ITALY PLANS BIG NAVY

ROME, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini today announced a surprise naval building program to give Italy absolute Mediterranean supremacy over the normal British or French strength.

Il Duce announced construction would begin immediately on two 35,000 ton battleships, twelve destroyers and an undisclosed number of submarines. The sudden move was considered the Fascist answer to what has been described as the naval race of democratic countries.

Completion of the program by 1941 would give Italy her largest fighting navy—more than 600,000 tons—and place her second in rank only to Russia in submarines.

Broader Scope Hinted.

There was a hint in some authoritative comment that Italy intended to assert her position outside the Mediterranean. Virginio Gayda, the editor who often speaks for the government, said: "The Rome-Tokio axis is a typical manifestation of this new, broadening spirit."

[He referred to the anti-communism pact linking Italy, Germany, and Japan, who together, when their announced building plans are completed, would have a total tonnage of approximately 1,825,000. The tonnage of the British navy alone, however, is virtually equal to the combined strength of the three totalitarian states, and Britain has just announced an increased program.]

Program Called Necessary.

Mussolini's step was presented chiefly as necessary to protect the new Italian empire, provide sure communication with North Africa, and defend Italy against "attempts at strangulation and intimidation by any one who arrogates to himself the prerogative of sole custodian of European order."

American naval building and reports the United States planned to create a special Atlantic fleet were mentioned in the press, along with the French and British programs, as the reason for the Italian plans.

Unless France and Britain increase their Mediterranean squadrons, Italy's preponderance in the Mediterranean she calls "an Italian lake" will be supported by four modern 35,000 ton and four reconditioned 23,000 ton capital ships. She already has the upper hand in submarines, which admittedly total 106, and in cruisers.

Lineup in Mediterranean.

Britain normally keeps two battle cruisers and three battleships in the Mediterranean and France three battleships and seven cruisers.

[The Italian announcement caused French officials to declare France must meet it. The naval committee of the chamber of deputies prepared for an immediate conference with the naval ministry on building two 35,000 ton battleships.]

France already is building the Richelieu and the Jean Bart, of 35,000 tons each, to meet the recently launched Italian battleships Littorio and Vittorio Veneto.

Hamper Rivals' Moves.

The increase in the strength of the Italian fleet was expected to make it more difficult for France and Britain to withdraw units from the Mediterranean for use elsewhere.

The two new Italian battleships will be named the Roma and the Impero and will be built at Trieste and Genoa. The twelve new destroyers will raise Italy's strength to 56 in that category.

The increase to more than 600,000 tons would place Italy but 100,000 tons behind the total French strength, as well as insure her supremacy over the normal British and French strength, taken separately, in the Mediterranean.

Bunker Jr., 28, army air corps, was killed today when the bomb laden pursuit plane he was flying crashed into rugged mountains near Schofield Barracks. Three other bombs exploded when the plane crashed.

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—As hope for the safety of seven United States naval flyers aboard a giant bomber that disappeared Wednesday faded, the department disclosed today that another man had been lost in the Pacific 100 miles off this base. A cadet fell from his plane when searching for the bomber crew and never was seen again.

Two hundred and eighty-four planes and 35 warships scanned an area 250 miles wide and 300 miles long today in vain search for the missing bomber. Visibility was good and the sea was calm, enabling observers and lookouts to see for great distances. Failure to find a trace of the plane strengthened the belief it had gone to the bottom.

Falls from Plane.

The cadet who fell into the sea was Scott P. Hawkins of Jefferson City, Mo. His plane was an observation ship attached to the cruiser Chicago. According to John W. Mack of Pocatello, Idaho, Hawkins' observer and radio operator the pilot fell out when flying at 2,500 feet and struck the edge of a fin. His parachute opened quickly, but no trace of him could be found by an accompanying seaplane after he struck the water.

When contact with the missing bomber was lost about 5 p. m. Wednesday belief was expressed that it would be found quickly. The huge seaplane could remain afloat indefinitely unless battered to pieces by a storm.

All Well Reported.

The last message from Lieut. Truman E. Carpenter, the pilot of the bomber, said all was well and the flight was progressing satisfactorily. Carpenter's crew consisted of Cadet Philip O. Browning of Lees Summit, Mo., co-pilot; Edgar Anglin of Norfolk, Va., chief machinist's mate; Clifford Creech of Richland, N. Y., and Lorin Peace of Augusta, Kas., machinists, and G. A. Mills, of Prescott, Mich., and J. J. Adair of Carutherville, Mo., radio operators.

HOLD 3 FOR MURDER AFTER BOMB BLAST KILLS 3 CHILDREN

Elizabethton, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Sherif J. M. Moreland said tonight murder charges had been placed against three men held in connection with a dynamite explosion which killed three children and seriously injured their mother in their home near here early today.

The sherif listed the men as White and Crave Tollett, brothers, and Lee Walker, all of Pikeville, Tenn. The sherif said he believed the blast may have been the outgrowth of the slaying of Arnold Tollett in 1936, in connection with which Harmon Gouge, 35 years old, husband and father of the bomb victims, is scheduled to face trial next month.

Mrs. Harmon Gouge, 34, and her three daughters, Sonia, 9; Luena, 7, and Roma Jean, 5, apparently were asleep when an explosion from the cellar beneath their bedroom shattered parts of the house and caved in the foundation.

14 MAYORS OBJECT TO SNOWPLOW AID FOR SPAIN; RESIGN

MARSEILLES, France, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Fourteen mayors quit today because their county's snowplow may be en route to government Spain. They appeared willing to be mayors again if the plow is brought back. The county, which is the Hautes-Alpes department, is mountainous and needs it, they pointed out.

The plow was loaded mysteriously Wednesday night onto a flat car whose destination was Puigcerda, Spain. The mayors concluded it was on the way to the snowbound Teruel front and said that several other French plows are en route to Spanish government forces there.

Senator Roy Riont wired Premier Camille Chautemps asking government intervention to secure the return of the Hautes-Alpes plow. Riont threatened to bring the matter before the senate if necessary.

5,500 SERVICE PLANES AND U. S. AIR BOARD URGED

New Aviation Bases Also Are Recommended.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Recommendations designed to place the United States far ahead of other nations in both civil and military aviation have been made to President Roosevelt by experts of the commerce, navy, war, postoffice, and state departments, it was learned today.

These proposals, including the setting of goals of 4,000 fighting planes for the army and 1,500 modern craft for the navy, will be submitted to congress during the present session, it was indicated.

Chief among the proposed changes is suggested transfer of federal control over civil aviation from the commerce and postoffice departments to an independent three to five man board, similar to the interstate commerce commission. The new body, which would be responsible only to the President, would be known as the civil aeronautics commission.

It is reported that President Roosevelt is in favor of the creation of such a commission.

For Separate Air Forces.

Contrary to some predictions, it was said the recommendations do not include a proposal for a unified air force—combination of the air corps of the army and navy—which had been suggested by some aviation authorities. Experts are of the opinion that the problems of army and navy aviation can best be worked out by individual forces.

Other recommendations include proposals for extending air defense bases both in continental United States and insular possessions; construction of lighter than air ships for passenger and mail service; lighter than air craft for the navy, and more fighting planes.

The proposed permanent commission of three to five members to govern civil aviation would have complete charge of passenger and freight trafic and air mail. It also would have its own weather service. Thus the unit would take away control of air mail from the postoffice department, civil aviation from the department of commerce and weather from the department of agriculture.

Propose $10,000 Salaries.

Members of the new commission would receive annual salaries of $10,000. Personnel from the commerce, postoffice, and agricultural departments would be transferred to the new unit.

Under an enabling bill the commission would be granted authority to fix all air passenger and freight rates and for transporting air mail. The secretary of commerce would retain a voice in the prepartion of appropriation estimates and general accounting. The postmaster general would retain the right to fix air routes and the number of flights.

Recommendations favor three bases on the Atlantic coast, three on the Pacific, one on the Gulf of Mexico, one in the Canal Zone and one in Hawaii. Each one of these bases would cost about 11 million dollars.

The navy now has air bases at San Diego, Cal.; Seattle, Wash.; Norfolk, Va., and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and a training school at Pensacola, Fla. There are lighter than aircraft bases at Sunnyvale, Cal., and Lakehurst, N. J. The navy also can use Pan-American air facilities at Wake, Guam and Midway Islands and the Philippines. There is a naval base at Cavite, but plane facilities have not been developed.

Proposed as sites for air bases are Wake, Midway, Guam, Samoa, and Dutch Harbor, or some other place in the Aleutian Islands. There is no air base at Panama, but the army has an air field at the western end of the canal.

Propose Increase in Planes.

The suggestions to the President also are reported to contemplate extension of the air forces. The experts would raise the present army goal from 2,320 planes to 4,000 fighting craft and the navy's goal from 1,000 to 1,500 modern planes.

The experts have been studying the country's air needs for more than two years. Their recommendations are expected to form a supplemental message on national defense from the pen of Mr. Roosevelt.

Propose New Air Defense Bases

Sites proposed for extending air defense bases, together with existing facilities of the navy's air force, as recommended to President Roosevelt by experts as part of plan to make the country unsurpassed in civil and military aviation.

AIRLINER IS FORCED DOWN IN A SWAMP; 8 ABOARD UNINJURED

Newark, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Forced landing of an American Air Lines twenty-one passenger eight ton plane with five passengers from Chicago, in a swamp here early today after the pilot missed the landing field in a driving rainstorm, developed its hero and heroine.

Pilot Usher Rousch of Chicago, who received a cut over one eye in the landing after he missed a fence by quick maneuvering, sloshed more than two miles through mud and water to find a rescue party.

Meanwhile, a pretty blonde stewardess, Veronia Lalley, who is 5 feet 1, of Sycamore, Ill., did her stuff. "She's aces," said Jack Ryan, Evanston, Ill., a passenger. "She kidded us into thinking we were coming into the airport so we didn't worry."

Others on the plane, which was considerably damaged, were A. R. Watkins and William Ogilvie, Chicago; Michael Lunder, Boston; Herbert Shapiro, Newton, Mass., and Stanley Gerding, co-pilot, Chicago.

Sound 4-11 Alarm, Quickly End Fire in Linseed Works

Fire, probably caused by spontaneous combustion, ruined the interior and roof of the Hirst & Begley Linseed works, 2013 North Mendell street, last night. The two story plant is situated on the north branch of the Chicago river, just north of Armitage avenue. Because of the highly inflammable contents of the plant, a 4-11 alarm was sounded, and the extra apparatus soon brought the fire under control. Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan estimated the damage at $5,000.

HEAR AMERICAN WOMAN IS SHOT IN SOVIET PRISON

Ruth Rubens of 'Spy' Case Reported Executed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 7.—The mysterious New York woman who journeyed to Moscow several months ago as Mrs. Donald L. Robinson, also identified as Ruth M. Rubens, with a forged American passport, has been shot in Lubianka prison, according to a report received here from Moscow tonight. Before the execution she is alleged to have signed a confession that her real name is Armanova, and that she is the widow of a Russian general who died in a soviet concentration camp.

The G. P. U. [soviet secret police] are reported to have announced that she admitted having come to Russia to commit terrorist acts and that she is not married to Robinson. The latter disappeared before Mrs. Robinson was seized and is still missing.

Report Robinson Escaped.

Robinson is said to have escaped from G. P. U. officials who arrested him. The soviet frontier guards, who are also a branch of the G. P. U., have been warned to tighten their control of the western borders.

Robinson, who is reported to have used the name of Adolph Rubens, is not known to the Latvian political police. Rubens is a Lettish name, according to local authorities, who are still investigating information that Robinson-Rubens used the name of a Latvian emigrant, John Rudewich, now in Wisconsin, as his father in his forged application for an American passport.

U. S. Scoffs at Story.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Arnold Rubens, positively identified as the "Mr. and Mrs. Robinson" in soviet Russia's espionage mystery, are still alive, a spokesman for the state department confidently asserted here today. Rumors that the New York City couple had been secretly executed were declared to have no foundation in fact.

American consular agents in Warsaw, Poland, were unable to find any substance to the tale and efforts to authenticate another rumor to the effect that Mrs. Rubens had been allowed to leave Russia secretly also produced negative results.

Observers in Washington declared that failure of the soviet to reply to demands for information regarding Mrs. Rubens, a native born American citizen, was the only real basis for even speculating on the couple's possible death.

Demands of U. S.

Meanwhile, diplomatic pressure was continued today by the United States embassy in Moscow in an effort to obtain an official soviet answer to three questions:

1. What is the present whereabouts of Mrs. Rubens?
2. Is she under arrest?
3. If she is under arrest what are the charges against her?

Thus far Uncle Sam's pressure for information in the espionage puzzle is confined to the case of Mrs. Rubens, born Ruth Marie Boerger in Philadelphia. Mention of her husband, pending positive proof of the suggestion that he may be a naturalized citizen of the United States, is carefully omitted from all official communications on the subject.

Even the report today from Warsaw to the effect that Rubens is really a naturalized Russian engineer named Rokolikov was met with silence in the department headed by Secretary of State Hull.

Sisters Also Skeptical.

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Constance and Gladys Boerger of 87-77 169th street, Jamaica, Queens, sisters of Mrs. Adolph Rubens, yesterday denied reports from Russia that Mrs. Rubens was once the wife of Gen. Armanov of the Russian army.

They insisted their sister had not been away from home long enough at any time to permit such a strange chapter in her life. They knew Rubens had been born in Latvia, they said, but had taken it for granted he was a naturalized American citizen.

Nazis Get Right to Set Up Consulate in East France

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—For the first time since the world war France granted Germany permission today to establish a consulate in eastern France near the recovered provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. The new consulate is to be at Epinal, fifty miles southwest of Strasbourg. Previous attempts to establish consulates in eastern France failed because of a French fear Germany might use them to spread anti-French propaganda in Alsace and Lorraine.

Capt. Sparrow's Hen Flies Up in Tree to Lay an Egg

NAZIS IMPRISON JEW FOR N. Y. BANK ACCOUNT

Fine Ship Owner $400,000 as Traitor.

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A special court today sentenced Arnold Bernstein, German-Jewish ship magnate, to thirty months in jail and fined him 1,000,000 marks [$400,000] for treason and violation of Germany's stringent foreign exchange laws.

The Hanseatic court, which listened to a five week recital of complicated financial technicalities, said Bernstein had been tried not as a Jew but as business man who had disregarded the law.

Bernstein already has turned over the Red Star and Arnold Bernstein lines, of which he was operating head, to a managing director named by the German government. In addition to loss of his business and the fine and prison sentence, he was deprived of his citizenship for two years.

Property Covers Fine.

His confiscated property was believed to cover the cost of the fine, as the verdict said nothing of how the $400,000 was to be collected.

Bernstein, a world war artillery officer and holder of a German war decoration, was charged with treason, continued concealment of foreign currencies, unlawfully disposing of foreign currencies, and abetting such transactions.

The court declared Bernstein had created a prosperous business out of nothing "through industry and ability," and added: "If Bernstein's status was that of an honorable merchant, as he has been represented to be, he needed to commit no currency delinquencies."

The eleven months Bernstein had been held for trial were deducted from the sentence, leaving a year and seven months he must serve. The prosecution had demanded he be sentenced to five years' imprisonment and fined 4,500,000 marks [$1,800,000].

Specifically Bernstein was accused of having a secret New York account of $80,000 to $100,000 which he did not declare to the Reichsbank. This account, Bernstein said, was for use in his shipping business, upon which American creditors hold $5,000,000 mortgages.

Three of his associates drew lesser sentences and two others, Rudolf Meyer and Robert Gottschalck, were acquitted. Berthold Gumpel was sentenced to jail for thirty months and fined $264,000; Albert Wolff sentenced to fifteen months and fined $20,000, and Heinz Grunsfeld was sentenced to two months.

SENTENCED FOR BAD CHECKS.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—Harry Fisher, 48 years old, a farmer, was sentenced today to 180 days on the state farm for issuing two fraudulent checks totaling less than $5.

Finds Milder Clime

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Samuel Insull Sr., former Chicago utilities magnate, and his wife have settled in Italy for the winter. They arrived in Rome a few days ago, according to word received here. Mr. Insull had been living in London, but not being in robust health he found the winter there too rigorous. He recently wrote to Chicago friends, telling of his intentions to pass the winter in Italy where, he said, he hoped to find the weather more congenial and living expenses cheaper. Mr. Insull is 78 years old.

ALLMAN BACKS RELIEF SHELTER FINGER PRINTING

Offers Police Expert for CRA Survey.

The Chicago Relief administration can have a police department fingerprint expert to catalogue the inmates of the CRA's shelters any time the administration wants one. This offer was made yesterday by Police Commissioner James P. Allman.

S. N. Geal, superintendent of shelters for the CRA, declared Thursday that the appearance of a fingerprint man in the shelters would result in the immediate departure of half the 2,100 reliefers there. He said the idea was suggested by him some time ago, but was opposed by the social workers.

Geal also suggested that a rule against drunks in the shelters and the stoppage of shelter relief for transients who consider Chicago a hobo heaven would help reduce the shelter load.

Police Glad to Assist.

"The police department will be glad to coöperate," Allman said. "We can loan Geal a man to teach one of his staf the relatively simple operation of making the prints. The idea seems to be a logical one."

Geal said that drunken reliefers in the shelters obtain the money for liquor by panhandling. Allman asserted this practice has been stopped in the loop and that it will be stopped throughout the city.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], appointed yesterday as the chairman of a city council subcommittee on relief, said that a thorough investigation of relief administration in the city will be started as soon as the 1938 budget is out of the way. This is expected to take about ten days.

Rowan Supports Plan.

"We want to find out what we are spending the tax payer's money for," Rowan said. "One of the first persons we will call in will be Geal. I don't see why his suggestions couldn't be put into effect."

These sentiments were echoed by Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], who will serve on the committee with Aldermen James B. Bowler [25th], George D. Kells [28th], and John J. Grealis [44th].

A letter charging that communism is widespread within the ranks of the CRA was read to the city council finance committee by Ald. McDermott. He withheld the name of the writer, who said she had been in city relief work six years, after serving for twelve years with the Cook county bureau of public welfare.

TWO SENTENCED AS LOOKOUTS.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Robert and Carl Waverly, 17 and 19 years old, were sentenced today to 100 days at the state penal farm on their pleas of guilty to acting as lookouts for a robber in an attempted holdup of David Elder, a grocer, here, Dec. 27. The robber escaped.

Mandatory Loans on Corn Are Predicted by Rep. Lucas

BY PERCY WOOD.

Some sort of mandatory corn loan feature will be incorporated in the farm legislation now pending before congress, Representative Scott W. Lucas, [D., Ill.] said yesterday on his arrival in Chicago. His statement was made following a train conversation with Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture. Lucas led the fight of a bloc of Republicans and Democrats during the special session of congress last fall which sought to include this feature in the bill. They were defeated by a close vote. The measure is still pending while committees of the house and senate seek to iron out differences.

Rep. Scott W. Lucas.

The farm bill as it is now written would obligate the government to make loans on corn only to farmers who agree to federally controled crop production schemes. Mandatory loans would obligate the government to lend to all farmers, regardless of cooperation with the plan.

En Route to Springfield.

Lucas was on his way from Washington to Springfield, where tonight he and Gov. Horner will be the principal speakers at a Jackson day dinner. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will make the address at the Chicago Jackson day dinner, which will be held in the Stevens hotel. Mayor Kelly is returning from Florida to attend.

Lucas, who fills the congressional seat held by the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton, is being urged to file for United States senator next month for the seat now held by William H. Dieterich of Beardstown. Dieterich has not indicated whether he will be a candidate for renomination.

As chairman of a group of five middle western congressmen, Lucas recruited a bloc of more than sixty members who favored mandatory corn loans at fixed schedules and the decrease from 2,900,000,000 to 2,600,000,000 bushels at which compulsory corn marketing quotas would be imposed.

Given Farm Bureau Support.

This fight was lost, but the sentiment created for the plan is now being felt in the senate-house conference committee, Lucas said.

"It think," he repeated, "that the committee will produce the sort of bill that farmers who believe in controled surpluses will favor."

Lucas said he believes the present congress will modify tax laws so that they will be "highly satisfactory" to small business men. He believes the appropriation bills will be passed as the administration wants them.

11,366 More Nazi Farms Hit by Foot, Mouth Disease

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—A total of 11,366 more German farms were affected with foot and mouth disease during the second half of December, it was announced here today, and more than 8,000 farms which had been affected earlier were declared free of the disease. The live stock epidemic affected 20,699 farms on Jan. 1.

NAZI PAPER FINDS CLEVELAND HAS A PARALLEL IN RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—In a dispatch alleged to have come from Cleveland, O., Der Angriff, official newspaper of the National Socialist party in Berlin, said tonight: "Mass misery in Cleveland has its only parallel in soviet Russia. Sixty-five thousand destitutes lie starving and freezing on the city streets."

Refers to Relief Checks.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The Berlin newspaper story concerning Cleveland refers apparently to checks for relief clients being delayed six days. Checks due Jan. 1 were not received by reliefers until today. The delay was caused by the general assembly, which was called into special session to consider relief problems, getting sidetracked for a time on graft charges.

PLANS MORE PARLEYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt today made known plans to consider the problem of the present business recession in a series of conferences with business leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was hopeful of receiving suggestions from business when he was asked about his meeting yesterday with William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors corporation. Further conferences are to be held with other industrial leaders he indicated.

The President said he had a pleasant conference with Knudsen and discussed among other things the evil effects of high pressure salesmanship. Asked if he had received any remedial suggestions from Knudsen, the President said not yet.

Hears President's Views.

This was borne out by Knudsen yesterday after his visit with Mr. Roosevelt. Asked what had gone on at his conference with the President, Mr. Knudsen said dryly: "The President told us his views on the auto industry." Like other White House visitors he found that Mr. Roosevelt does most of the talking.

The President said he will meet Jan. 19 with the business advisory committee named by Secretary of Commerce Roper. The committee has been studying the current depression and is said to have prepared a list of suggestions.

Most of the President's press conference was given over to a discussion of the subsidy the postoffice department is granting to newspapers and magazines through the second class mail rates. Mr. Roosevelt was reminded that it cost the government $38,000,000 to carry papers through the mails last year for a return of $9,000,000 and $33,000,000 to carry magazines for a return of $9,250,000.

Points Out Low Rates.

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that the practice of low rates for papers and magazines was begun in the early days to encourage the dissemination of news. He held its continuance to be unhealthy but asserted that reform should be undertaken by some other agency than the government.

Individual newspapers and newspaper publishers' associations have gone on record against continuance of any degree of subsidization in newspaper mail rates. At the same time the bookkeeping system which shows an overwhelmingly unfavorable balance for the government in handling such mail has been attacked as unfair and unsound.

BORAH ORATORY BEATS AGAINST ANTI-LYNCH BILL

May Result in Defeat of Measure.

thing politically to let the bill pass and embarrass Mr. Roosevelt.

But now the court bill is forgotten, and the southerners are organized to fight as long as may be necessary. They have no illusions about the votes, as some 65 senators have committed themselves to the bill, but they believe they can force the leadership to lay aside the measure for more pressing business.

Filibusters Formerly Successful.

Heretofore, since the first force bill was sought by northerners in 1869, the southern senators have always succeeded with filibusters. The original so-called force bills called for the manning of the polls by federal troops to make certain that Negroes were permitted to vote, and the first anti-lynching bill was passed by the house in 1922. A filibuster defeated it in the senate, and the Wagner-Van Nuys bill, passed by the house last year, may now meet the same fate.

"Assuming for the purpose of the argument that we have the constitutional power to pass such a measure as this, I desire to invite the attention of the senate to the wisdom of doing so," said Senator Borah. "I think it is only a little less important, if not more important, than the constitutional question itself.

Called Sectional Measure.

"Notwithstanding anything that has been said or that may be said, this is a sectional measure. It is an attempt upon the part of states practically free from the race problem to sit in harsh judgment upon their sister states where the problem is heavy and sometimes acute.

"It is proposed to condemn these states and the people in these states because it is claimed that they have failed properly to meet and adjust this most difficult of all problems; and no more drastic condemnation could be offered by a measure than that which is offered by the measure now before the senate. It proposes to authorize the national government to enter into the states, and take charge of and prosecute as criminals the duly elected officials of the states, from the governor down.

"Mr. President, in my opinion, that requires a review of some unfortunate history and the recalling of some unpleasant facts.

Praises Southern Attitude.

"These states are not to be pilloried and condemned without a full presentation of the nature of the task which has been imposed upon them through fate and circumstances, and not without a complete record as to the nature of the task, what has been done, and with what good faith it has been met.

"I shall contend that the southern people have the race problem and dealt with it with greater patience, greater tolerance, and greater success than any people in the history of the world dealing with a problem of similar nature.

"So let us return and inquire what it is that the south has had to do, how it has done it, and what reason there is now, after 70 years of arduous effort, to pass a censure or condemnation upon those great states and that great people.

If Lincoln Had Lived.

"Mr. President, I have always felt that the reconstruction period is the most regrettable page of American history. Had Abraham Lincoln lived through his second term, it probably would have been the most readable page, one of the noblest pages in all history.

"It would have been characterized by wide sympathy, by breadth of understanding, and by that wisdom which flows from the heart as well as the brain, which passeth all understanding. It would have been free from that blind partisanship which disregards constitutions and constitutional limitations as well as national honor and national unity.

"Only a short time before the great emancipator was removed from the scene he had outlined his views on reconstruction. What a different story would have been written had those views prevailed! What a different national life would have been lived had those views been obtained!

Lincoln Policies Rejected.

"But before his body had reached Springfield, the committee had met for the complete rejection of the entire policy announced by the dead President. Ben Butler superseded Abraham Lincoln, and a more tragic event could not happen in the crisis of any nation. These measures with reference to reconstruction were written from the standpoint of partisanship unmingled with the feeling of sympathy.

"The measure now before this body embodies precisely the same principle upon which those measures were founded, and the same arguments are made in support of the pending measure — towit: that the southern people are incapable of local self-government.

"We know now what those measures did. They retarded and frustrated the coming together of the people of the different states. They implanted a sense of bitterness in the minds of those people, not because of what had happened upon the field, but because of what happened in congress.

Basis of National Unity.

"Nations are not held together merely by constitutions and laws. They are held together by mutual respect, by mutual confidence, by toleration of conditions in different parts of the country, by confidence in the people in the different parts of the country that they will solve their problems; and that is just as essential as it was in 1865 and 1870.

"This is another compromise with the vital principle of our dual system of government. It is bartering the future for the present, for the supposed needs and demands of the present, when the present is really solving its own problems. It is another instance, my friends, in which we are not strong enough in our faith in the principle of our government to say to all races, all creeds, all groups, all factions, that however serious may be your problems, they are subordinate to the principles upon which this government rests, and you must work them out within the compass of the long tested and long accepted principles of democratic government.

Refers to Mussolini.

"I think every American citizen must feel a sense of guilt, if not a twinge of remorse, when he reads the reference of the premier of Italy to our bellowing herds of democracy and to our free institutions as the decadent breeding ground of insincerity and confusion.

"Mr. President, the principles and policies and precepts of popular government are not in doubt. There is no confusion here. The confusion arises when we depart from principle. When the policies and precepts of popular government were imbedded in the constitution of the United States, it for the first time put confusion to rout in this country. It gave ordered liberty to the people and gave strength and direction to our government.

"For centuries prior to the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States there was nothing but confusion, nothing but turmoil and misery, nothing but brute force that enslaved the masses. That will be true again if these gentlemen who inveigh against popular government in the presence of their assembled slaves have their way and the governments of the world again come under their dominion.

Tide Against Democracy.

"I am aware, all of us are aware of the high tide running against democratic institutions, of the base betrayal of the people of these countries by those who have some power and wanted more, but over against that if we just simply have faith, if we have the courage to espouse the principles of our government, we can place not hopes and not theories, not merely ideals, but 150 years of actual achievement of demonstrated popular government with its wealth of human happiness and of human progress.

"I shall cast no vote in this chamber which reflects upon the fidelity of the people of the south to American institutions, or upon their ability to maintain the principles upon which our institutions rest. I am perfectly clear in my own mind, aside from all constitutional questions, that when we condemn self-government in the south, when we condemn state sovereignty in the south, we have no ground upon which to maintain state sovereignty or local government in the north. The record in one instance is altogether in favor of the south as against the ability, apparently, of the north to maintain law and order."

Senator Borah cited statistics purporting to show that the rate of crime for Negroes is far greater in the north than in the south.

Record Favors South.

"While the south lost eight Negroes by lynching last year, the north lost 130 white people because of acts of violence committed by thugs," he said.

"The proponents of the bill undoubtedly are maintaining that the federal government will protect men in the south better than will the local communities.

"Well, we have the federal government in control of the city of Washington, which is now the second if not the greatest criminal capital in the world. Seventy-five people were robbed of their property in one night. We can all recall instance after instance of young women disappearing and their bodies being found outraged and the criminals never apprehended. That is the record."

U. S. MAY NAME HUGH GIBSON AS ENVOY TO SPAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Hugh Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium, may replace Claude G. Bowers as ambassador to Spain. This was reported today as President Roosevelt sent the expected nominations of three new ambassadors to the senate.

Bowers has been out of favor in diplomatic circles since he fled his post at Madrid at the outbreak of the Spanish civil war and established himself safely across the Spanish border at Hendaye, France.

The President sent to the senate the nominations of Maritime Commission Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy to be ambassador to Great Britain, Assistant Secretary of State Hugh Wilson to be ambassador to Germany, and Norman Armour, now minister to Canada, to be ambassador to Chile.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt announced that Joseph Davies, now ambassador to Russia, would replace Ambassador Gibson at Brussels probably in June.

Charles V. McLaughlin also was named by the President today to be assistant secretary of labor. McLaughlin is a vice president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, one of the four big railroad unions. He will succeed Edward F. McGrady, who resigned.

Darling I'm just a wreck! Why can't we go to a TRIANGLE tomorrow with June and Joan and have a luscious turkey dinner with stuffin' and cranberries and soup and coffee and nuts and strawberry pie and everything and then there won't be any dishes for you to wash!

'NO PEACE NOW!' JAP ENVOY TO CHINA DECLARES

Holds Japan Should Oust Chiang Regime.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 8 [Saturday].—Negotiations for peace between China and Japan are "out of the question for the present," Shigeru Kawagoe, Japanese ambassador to China, said in an interview with Japanese newspaper correspondents today. He told them further that China needs a new régime—"one relying absolutely upon the technical and economic support and guidance of Japan."

"Japan should repudiate the national government [headed by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek] as China's central administration," he said.

Meanwhile other Japanese sources reported that Japanese troops had progressed in their southward movement through Shantung province along the Tientsin-Pukow railway toward the important east-west Lunghai railway.

Report Town Captured.

They said the town of Tsowhsien, 90 miles north of Suchow where the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow lines intersect, had been taken by the Japanese forces.

The southward Japanese thrust is in conjunction with a similar one northward toward Suchow and the Lunghai railway. The drive toward the north was said to have progressed almost to Pengpu, which is less than 100 miles south of Suchow. The two coördinated Japanese drives, involving an estimated 60,000 troops, are intended to crush the Chinese defenders of the Lunghai.

Chinese forces strung out along the railway near Suchow and in Honan province to the west total 100,000, Chinese sources indicated.

Prepare for Defense.

It was said the Chinese have prepared a strong defensive position at Lincheng, about midway between the city of Suchow and Tsowhsien. The Chinese, incidentally, denied that the Japanese have captured Tsowhsien.

Military observers expect a battle at Lincheng between the Chinese and the southbound Japanese column. Where an engagement south of Suchow, with the northbound Japanese forces, will take place was not indicated.

Trouble developed yesterday between the Japanese conquerors of Shanghai and British forces. Maj. Gen. A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, commander of British troops of the international settlement's defense force, protested to the Japanese against the slugging of two British officers of the Shanghai municipal police.

Warns Japanese.

It was charged that Japanese soldiers, resentful when the two Britons objected to what was termed unnecessarily rough treatment of Chinese peddlers, crossed into the British zone and attacked them.

A repetition of this incident will bring "gravest consequences," Telfer-Smollett was reported to have warned Japanese commanders.

Reports to Shanghai from Hankow told of the death of a third American flyer in three days near that city. He was Frederick Kreusberg. It was believed that Japanese airmen who bombed Hankow on Tuesday shot down the Chinese plane he was flying.

Kreusberg was born in Germany, but was naturalized in America in 1933. He lived at Galveston, Tex.

A Japanese naval spokesman said today that 24 Japanese planes raided a Chinese airport at Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province. He said Japanese planes drove off Chinese flyers who attempted to attack the Japanese airdrome at Wuhu.

Saves Chinese Treasures.

HANKOW, China, Jan. 7.—Fourteen thousand of 15,000 cases of priceless Peiping palace art treasures have been transported to Chungking, one of the three provisional Chinese capitals, and Paochi, an obscure Shensi province city, Han Li-hsu said today. He is director of the board of trustees for the administration of the British Boxer indemnity fund.

She insisted on only one take for a sequence in the new movie, so to make certain he got it the director used up 400 feet of film. But in the final film the kiss will last only 30 seconds.

CHINA EGGED ON BY ENGLAND, JAP OFFICERS CHARGE

Britain Called Accomplice in War Discussion.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 7.—Japanese naval and army officers on the reserve and retired lists branded Great Britain an accomplice of China in a recent round table discussion, according to a stenographic report on the meeting published yesterday in the magazine Hinode. Those at the round table included an admiral, three vice admirals, two lieutenant generals, and two rear admirals.

The article, entitled "If Japan and Britain Should Fight," quoted Vice Admiral Keisaburo Moriyama as saying: "Great Britain is at least a powerful accomplice of China, and hostilities would not have started had Great Britain not have incited China, saying all along, 'You have me to rely on, go ahead without fear.'

Assistance Termed Logical.

"Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek may well tell Great Britain now: 'We went this far because Britain urged us. Now it is up to Britain to come in.' Thus it is only logical that Great Britain should assist China and obstruct Japan's actions."

Another speaker called Great Britain "half sick or insane," and predicted that Britain would collapse with the present generation because "what it is doing shows it to be on the verge of a break up."

The trend of Japanese public opinion seems to favor cutting away from Great Britain. It generally is held that Great Britain is doing her utmost to persuade the United States to take joint action against Japan, and thus Britain is regarded as Japan's greatest enemy.

Admiral's Policy Disavowed.

The policy of "driving whites from Asia," credited to Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, recently appointed Japanese home minister, does not represent the opinion of the Japanese government, a foreign office spokesman declared today.

He explained that the original Japanese text of a Suetsugu interview appearing in the Kaizo magazine does not indicate an attitude or policy of driving out whites from Asia, as the interview previously had been translated.

"What Suetsugu emphasizes is that white dominance over colored races needs modification so that real peace will be secured among the peoples of the world," the spokesman said. "His references to the aid extended to China by Great Britain and the soviet union should not be interpreted as a challenge. He wanted only to stress the importance of stopping the sources of arms supplies to China.

"That Japan respects the rights of third powers has been repeatedly made clear. Neither did Suetsugu say he wanted to fight Great Britain."

CONFUCIUS' KIN DENIES JAPS ASKED HIM TO BE NEW CHINESE EMPEROR

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HANKOW, Jan. 7.—Kung Te-chen, a lineal descendant of Confucius, today denied reports that he had been approached by the Japanese to be emperor of a new Chinese empire. When asked where and what his next moves would be Kung said he was subject to government orders. A host of older men, his advisers, surrounded Kung, who is 18 years old. He arrived by special train from Shantung province yesterday.

AIRLINES CARRY MORE TRAFIC BUT FIND OUTLOOK DIM

Study Shows Effects of Low Mail Pay.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Commercial air lines of the United States face the possibility of eventual insolvency despite the fact that during 1937 they carried more passengers, mail, and express than in any year in their history. This conclusion is contained in a study of the financial structure of domestic air transport operators made public yesterday under the name of Charles D. Barney & Co., investment banking house. Through a merger Jan. 1 the firm is now known as Smith, Barney & Co.

William B. Harding, who made the study, said this condition exists although the government is making a profit on air mail on some of the busiest airways. He said also that while a few of the smaller air line operators are not paying their own way, domestic air transportation as a whole has almost ceased to be a subsidized industry.

Finances Termed Unsound.

Nevertheless, Harding indicated, the financial structure of the air lines is not sound. Mail pay averages 1.01 mills per pound mile for all U. S. air lines. This is an all time low, reached, he asserted, because provisions of the 1934 air mail act are such that operators often must carry large quantities of mail without compensation of any kind.

The Barney study supports recent statements of Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, trade association for the industry, who said:

"The present situation cannot continue. The belief that domestic operators are not confronted with an emergency, and that matters can go along as they are for another four or five years is one which, if adhered to, will have tragic consequences.

Loss Put at 3 Millions.

"During 1937 the air lines made an excellent record for increasing passenger trafic. Through diligent effort they added four millions of dollars to their income over 1936 from this source. Yet with soaring prices, wages, and taxes they found themselves about $3,000,000 in arrears."

Air mail revenues amount to 30 per cent of the income of regularly scheduled commercial operators. Fair pay for air mail service, Harding's study says, will determine whether 90 per cent of all the domestic operators show a small profit or whether their books will be written in red ink.

Beginning Feb. 1 the interstate commerce commission must, under the existing air mail law, begin hearings that probably will result in a still further reduction in air mail pay for the air lines. The law directs that the commission must so adjust rates by July 1, 1938, that postoffice pay to the lines will "keep the aggregate cost of air mail within limits of anticipated revenue therefrom."

Two Ways Open.

Postal officials and airline representatives agree there are only two ways to do this. One calls for a reduction in the future pay to the operators. The other would be the pruning of route miles authorized by the postoffice department for air mail. To date the postoffice has shown a desire to increase rather than decrease the air mail network.

Some of the evidence the operators will produce before the commission will be the tabulation made by Harding of the combined revenue and expense per mile of two of the most prosperous of the country's airlines—United Air Lines and Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. The table:

Year.	Operating revenue. Cents per mile.	Operating expense. Cents per mile.
1935	60.7	60.1
1936	62.4	59.8

Show Effect of Cancelations.

The 1934 comparison between the revenue and expense columns reflects exactly the losses sustained by the industry with the cancelation of all mail contracts that year by the postoffice and President Roosevelt, the study says.

During the summer of 1934 the existing air mail law was passed and the operators have never been able to make a profit since that time, the tabulation shows.

TRAILER SWAYS LIKE CRADLE AT OCEAN'S EDGE

Tribune Party Rocked to Sleep by Wind.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Key Largo, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Sixty miles south of Miami on Fla.-4A, the Tribune automobile pulled its trailer into a gasoline station with a lunch room and four or five cabins. It was 9 o'clock, an hour of the night when all good trailerites should be encamped.

"I can find a place for you off the pavement," said the proprietor, a sea tanned fishing guide, "but I can't give you any electricity that will fit your equipment."

"How about water?" he was asked.

"Our only fresh water is the rain we catch, and we have to use it sparingly."

His hospitality was welcomed. For an hour the pavement had been bordered by mangrove jungles and we knew of no place farther down the keys where we might stop with better accommodations.

Drive to Water Front.

After first covering the ground afoot, to be sure the trailer could be returned to the pavement in the morning, the Tribune auto was turned from the highway into a path through the brush. Bumping for a quarter of a mile over strangely shaped coral rock, we came to the water front.

We parked twenty yards from the high water mark. This was the Atlantic ocean at our front door, its surface beating a soporific rhythm on the rock. The reflections of the brighter stars danced on the restless water. In the distance were the navigation lights of an invisible ship on an invisible horizon.

"There won't be anything to disturb you down there," the fishing camp proprietor had said. "If an automobile goes down there during the night, it's just the federal immigration men looking for alien smugglers."

He assured my wife that the government men were merely on a routine patrol and that there were no smugglers.

Warm Wind Off Ocean.

A warm wind whipped off the ocean from the southeast. It became a fresh breeze during the night. We were awakened by a dishpan falling to the floor from a table. The trailer, catching the wind sideways, was rocking.

About forty miles southeast was Lower Matecumbe Key. There, on Labor day, 1935, a hurricane drowned 350 persons, a majority of them members of the "bonus army."

But hurricanes don't happen here in January. Besides we were tired. And in the morning we were to see the highway under construction across islands and ocean to Key West.

The breeze through the windows was balmy and salty. The trailer's sway from the wind was like a cradle. The splash of waves was a lullaby. We slept.

SELECTION OF NEW WARDEN AT COUNTY HOSPITAL IS DELAYED

Michael Zimmer, veteran warden of the County hospital, who asked to be retired a month ago, will probably be asked to retain his post for several months, pending selection of his successor, it was learned yesterday.

Clayton Smith, president of the county board, and Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke, chairman of its hospital committee, have been told by their advisory committee that it may be impossible to engage a first rate administrator immediately as a successor to Mr. Zimmer.

Anton C. Negri, business administration expert, reported to the board yesterday that his activities at the hospital salvaged $103,850 from appropriations for supplies during the last nine months of the 1937 fiscal year. He was employed for another year on Thursday.

LANDON, KNOX REFUSE POSTS ON G.O.P. COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, Republican National chairman, disclosed tonight that Alf M. Landon and Frank Knox, the party's 1936 presidential and vice presidential candidates, had declined to serve on the Republican program committee. Former President Herbert Hoover and Charles G. Dawes, vice president in the Coolidge administration, accepted appointment.

Hoover was active in organizing the meeting of party leaders at St. Louis last month which created the policy committee. At that meeting, the four were invited to serve as honorary chairmen of the program committee. Hoover and Dawes said they wanted to serve as rank and file members of the committee, not as honorary chairmen.

City Hitch-Hikers Thumb a Ride, Then Shoot Driver

Max Bryskier, 3207 Fullerton avenue, was shot in the arm last night by one of two young men who thumbed a ride from him at Kimball and Avondale avenues and then tried to hold him up. The pair fled, however, without getting any money.

DU PONT FIRM FILES REPLY TO CHARGES IN BOOK IN LIBEL ACTION

New York, Jan. 10.—(AP)—One of "America's 60 Families"—the 60 described in a book of that name by Ferdinand Lundberg as the owners of America—went into federal court today to reply to charges against itself.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.—the Du Ponts of Delaware—filed a complaint in its $150,000 libel suit against Lundberg and the Vanguard Press, publisher of the book. A statement from the Du Pont company noted the book had been used as the text for public discussions attacking American industry, but did not mention specifically the use of its thesis by Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes in a speech last week.

Report Condition of Baby Weighing 25 Ounces Good

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The 25 ounce baby born Wednesday in a physician's office to Mrs. Dean Hackney passed its second day in a hospital incubator today. Attendants described its condition as good. It is being fed two drams of a specially prepared formula each hour.

25 OF OLD GUARD STIR NEW LIFE IN HAMILTON CLUB

Efforts to revive the historic Hamilton club of Chicago, the rallying place of Republicans here for forty-seven years, were begun yesterday. The club lost its lease Thursday on the sixteen story building at 20 South Dearborn street after a rent forfeiture proceeding in the federal district court.

Twenty-five members of the old G. O. P. guard met yesterday in the Brevoort hotel and announced they will seek to establish a new club directorate of prominent Republicans. They will then try to negotiate for a sublease on the old building.

The club lease was forfeited to the owner of the property, the Melvin Fuller estate, for which the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company is trustee.

The estate leased the building for about $14,000 a year to Herman Neiburger, real estate broker, who said yesterday the club members would be given every consideration in their attempts to make a new lease.

URGE IMPROVED JUNIOR COLLEGE TEACHING STAFS

Plans to improve the faculties of the city's three junior colleges—Wright, Wilson, and Herzl—were submitted to James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, by Supt. William H. Johnson last night following an all day conference with educators from the University of Illinois and the junior college deans.

Major recommendations include the following: Faculty members should be recruited solely for excellence in their fields, regardless of whether they have taught in the city's school system; an annual salary range of from $2,600 to $4,000 instead of automatic salary increases based only on length of service; issuance of permanent teaching certificates to new appointees only after they have served two-year probationary periods and have passed examinations.

The plans will be presented to the board at its meeting Monday.

COURTNEY GETS SALES TAX GRAFT EVIDENCE TODAY

Chief Investigator Fired for Inefficiency.

Evidence thus far obtained of the activities of grafting sales tax investigators is expected to be presented today to State's Attorney Courtney by Sam Nudelman, state director of finance. Nudelman announced Thursday that fifteen of his investigators had been dismissed for accepting bribes from merchants.

The director phoned Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, yesterday informing him that he had important information to present. An appointment was made for 11 a. m.

Earlier in the day Nudelman announced he had discharged Steve Balek, chief investigator of sales tax cases in the Chicago area and former courtroom bailif for Gov. Horner when the governor was judge of the Cook county Probate court.

First Asked to Resign.

Balek, who lives at 717 West 17th place, had been asked to resign earlier in the day, the director stating that he was guilty of inefficiency, incompetence, and gross negligence.

"If Balek had been on his toes, and not lax as he was, the investigators would not have done the things we suspect," Nudelman said. Balek asked time to consider the request for his resignation, but when nothing further was heard from him Nudelman announced his discharge.

Temporarily filling Balek's position will be Thomas A. Snyder, 932 Pleasant street, Oak Park, who has been assistant supervisor of tax collections.

To replace the grafting agents and also to augment the Chicago staf for a drive on merchants who have evaded full payment of sales taxes, Nudelman said he was bringing in forty investigators from the downstate offices on Monday.

Agents Still Under Scrutiny.

Meanwhile the special intelligence unit—as Nudelman calls the former private detectives who obtained evidence against the grafters—was continuing its surveillance of the investigators still employed.

Robert T. Stowers, head of the Chicago, office, filed civil complaints in the Municipal court of Chicago and before police magistrates elsewhere in Cook county charging twenty-seven merchants with failure to file complete sales tax returns. The deficiencies alleged in the complaints ranged from $100 to $1,000, Stowers said, but he refused to give the total involved.

Frank Hruby, 48 years old, an unemployed bookkeeper who gave his address as 2220 South 58th street, Cicero, was held in the county jail yesterday, at the request of the department, on a charge of impersonating a sales tax investigator. Frank F. Figueira, chief investigator for the state department of criminal investigation, said Hruby had been sought for four months for attempting to shake down merchants.

In his cell Hruby denied the charge, claiming he had merely offered to set up books for the merchants to enable them to make accurate returns.

GALVIN ESTATE BROKE; FUNERAL BILL IS UNPAID

It cost $5,067.25 to bury Michael L. Galvin, slain labor leader, in the style befitting his position as secretary-treasurer of the Chicago Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers union, local 705. But his estate will not have to pay it.

Judge John F. O'Connell cut the bill to $500 yesterday when Attorney Seymour J. Frank, representing the estate, said it was insolvent. James Bradley, the undertaker, said union officials have promised to make up the balance. Galvin was buried in a solid bronze, silver plated coffin costing $4,500.

The Cook county board of commissioners yesterday approved unanimously a budget of $36,394,890 for 1938—an increase of $1,812,688 over last year. The corporate budget of $22,168,660 was $3,623,324 higher than the 1937 corporate budget, but cuts were made on other items.

The new budget includes restoration of pay of 4,000 county employés to pre-depression levels. Pay was originally cut 15 per cent, of which half was restored in 1935 and the rest yesterday.

President Clayton F. Smith said the increase in the corporate budget was due largely to requirements of the County hospital. The largest increase, $300,000, is for the cost of nursing service.

CHICAGO HOUSING BUREAU LEASES 3 U. S. PROJECTS

With the signing of a lease by John Fugard, chairman of the Chicago housing authority, in the office of Nathan Straus, United States housing administrator, in Washington yesterday, the three federal housing projects in Chicago are now under local management. More than 2,000 families will be rented homes in the Jane Addams houses on the west side, in the Julia Lathrop homes on the north side, and in the Trumbull Park homes in South Chicago. It is expected that the names of the first families to move into the 304 units now available will be made public today. The housing authority said the rents would range from $21.25 a month for two rooms to $31.34 for five, including heat and utilities.

ISSUES WARANTS FOR SIX ACCUSED OF SALES FRAUD

Ellis Taylor, president of the Taylor Washing Machine company, 3931 Madison street, and five employés were named yesterday in warants charging conspiracy to cheat and defraud the public, customers, and prospective customers. Bond was set at $1,000 for each defendant by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in the Felony court.

Those named with Taylor were C. E. Sears, collection manager; V. J. Kenney, George Dye, E. Farmer, and R. E. Williamson, salesmen. Assistant States Attorney Vernon Thompson said he will call fifty witnesses in the case.

Runs for Trolley Bus; Dies Under One from Other Way

Morris Menhoff, 72 years old, 3344 Anislie street, was killed yesterday by a Chicago Surface Lines trolley bus in Kimball avenue at Ainslie street. He was running across the intersection to catch a bus approaching from the opposite direction. John Hambeight, 4512 Magnolia avenue, the driver, was released.

33 Killed; Sharp Increase Over Last Year.

Strapped to iron beds in the city hospitals, bound for life to a wheel chair or a pair of crutches, are the living reminders of the automobile carnage of 1937. And still the trafic massacre continues through the new year.

From Jan. 1 until 4 p. m. yesterday, the first week of the new year, 33 persons were killed by automobiles in Cook county. Of this number 23 met death within the city limits, while 280 were injured in the city in the same period.

The death toll represents an increase of 43.5 per cent over the first week of 1937. In that period last year the county total was 23, all except three being killed in Chicago.

Injured List Is Smaller.

Despite the increase in fatalities, the number of those injured in automobile accidents is lower so far this year. Up to midnight of Jan. 6, 276 persons had been injured in Chicago. Last year 321 were hurt during the first six days.

Following are the number of persons injured each day during the first days of this year and last year:

	1937	1938		1937	1938
Jan. 1....	99	85	Jan. 4....	43	43
Jan. 2....	78	41	Jan. 5....	39	31
Jan. 3....	33	44	Jan. 6....	29	32

In spite of a vigorous safety campaign supported by many organizations, auto deaths in Cook county last year totaled 1,111. Of this number 853 were killed in the city, where 22,842 persons were injured.

The national automobile massacre took more than 40,000 lives in 1937, according to estimates by insurance companies. In addition to those killed 1,060,000 were injured in approximately 1,040,000 accidents.

Judge Lindsay Hurt in Crash.

Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court was slightly injured yesterday when he lost control of his automobile. The machine hurtled over the curb and crashed into a light post at Columbus drive and 14th street. His wife said the judge's upper lip was cut, but that he was otherwise uninjured. He remained in his home at 6816 Cregier avenue during the day.

Mrs. Josephine Lucas, 51 years old, 4216 Raymond avenue, Brookfield, was held to the grand jury yesterday in $2,000 bond on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident by Police Magistrate A. W. Sprague in La Grange. Her car ran over the curb in La Grange Wednesday night, killing Mrs. Dorothy E. Pelnar, 26 years old, 112 North Ashland avenue, La Grange.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Sophie Pieprz, 56 years old, 827 North Maplewood avenue, died yesterday in the Belmont hospital of injuries received Wednesday night when she was struck by an automobile at Mozart street and Logan boulevard. Elmer Thon, 23 years old, 2205 North Kenneth avenue, the driver, was charged with reckless driving.

A heavy truck, driven by Willey Callahan, 27 years old, of Springfield, O., crashed into a filling station at 14th and Halsted street, Chicago Heights, last night, after colliding with a passenger automobile. Miss Dorothy Stahl, 21 years old, 6822 South Green street, who was riding in the passenger car with Frank De Marco, 31 years old, 8012 South Paulina street, was slightly hurt. Both Callahan and De Marco were charged with reckless driving. Damage to the filling station, owned by John Schumake, was estimated at $2,000.

Get Father's Blessing

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hughes.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Gertrude Bennett Hughes, 17 years old, and Russell Hughes, the young trap drummer with whom she eloped last Monday, today received the parental blessing of her father, Harry Bennett, Ford Motor company official.

The honeymooners, who were married at Auburn, Ind., after fleeing from Ypsilanti, Mich., where both were students at Michigan State Normal college, talked to Bennett by telephone. The father made arrangements for the couple, who had eluded searchers all week, to spend a month in Florida.

Hughes, who is 21 years old, said he and his bride drove straight to Tampa after their marriage.

Chicago Employers' Assn. to Hold Dinner Tuesday

The annual dinner of the Employers' Association of Chicago will be held at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Stevens hotel. Joseph C. Belden, president of the Belden Manufacturing company, and Raymond J. Koch, head of Felt and Tarrant Manufacturing company, will preside. Fitzgerald Hall of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, will speak on "Democracy—Old and New."

CHICAGO STARTS PAYING MORE FOR TAXI RIDES TODAY

Flag Pull Charge Raised to 20 Cents.

Taxicab rides for some Chicagoans will cost 5 cents more today, but for others the present rate of 15 cents for the flag pull will be unchanged.

The new ordinance enacted last month by the city council, which becomes effective today, increases the flag pull charge to 20 cents. Due, however, to the inability of the Yellow and Checker cab companies to change the meters on all their cabs immediately many will be operating under the old rate.

Not All Meters Changed.

Within two weeks, officials of the companies said, all taxis will be equipped with meters registering the new rate. The changes must be made on 3,000 cabs when they are not in use.

In keeping with their promise made at the time their monopoly franchise was extended from 1940 to 1945 and the new rate schedule instituted, officials asserted that the number of operating cabs has been reduced.

They were given until March 1 to remove 1,166 from the city streets. This, said Benjamin Samuels, president of Chicago Yellow Cab, has been nearly completed. When the reduction is made there will be 2,500 monopoly cabs and 500 independents.

New Schedule a Compromise.

The council adopted the new rate schedule as a compromise. Originally the companies asked for a flat increase of 10 cents on the flag pull. At later meetings the alderman also considered instaling the so-called New York rate, which would have raised the fare 33⅓ per cent.

Without an increase of some sort Samuels and Michael F. Sokol, president of Checker, told the aldermen, they would be unable to raise their drivers' pay, which they promised to do during the taxi strike last spring.

Representatives of the drivers' union agreed to the increase, saying it would add about $4 to the average $18 weekly wage. In addition the companies are now paying for the gasoline, instead of making the drivers share the expense as formerly.

KILLS SELF WITH POISON.

5 ERRATIC MOTORISTS LOSE DRIVING RIGHTS IN SAFETY COURT

Maurice Rimmer, 25 years old, 1231 South Wabash avenue, was sentenced yesterday to thirty days in the county jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated and suspended from driving for ninety days. He was arrested after his automobile went past a stop light and crashed into a police squad car Dec. 17. Four other motorists penalized by Judge J. M. Braude in the Safety court and the charges against them, were:

JOSEPH WALLIS, 28 years old, 131 East 115th street, placed on probation for six months and prohibited from driving for four months on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He was fined $25 for reckless driving.

FRED BRINKER, 26 years old, 4008 North Austin avenue, fined $10 and ordered not to use his car for thirty days for reckless driving.

JOHN BIRITZ, 21 years old, 1505 North Park avenue, fined $25 and costs and suspended sixty days for reckless driving.

Nate Amen, 32 years old, 940 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, was fined $25 for driving while intoxicated by Justice of the Peace Gilbert O. Volke in Oak Park. Policeman Roy Coppers testified Amen had been speeding north on Harlem avenue near Pleasant street in the suburb, Jan 2.

KERNER STARTS FIGHT TODAY ON HANDBOOK LAW

Attorney General Otto Kerner of Illinois will begin drafting a petition of quo warranto this morning which is expected to be filed in the Circuit court later in the day, launching a test of Chicago's ordinance to license pari-mutuel brokers. If the petition is not completed today, it will be filed Monday, Kerner said.

The quo warranto proceeding was decided upon as the quickest method of testing the ordinance.

City Collector Louis Rixman asserted his office will be ready to begin licensing pari-mutuel brokers Monday, the day the ordinance becomes effective. It was considered unlikely, however, that there would be any applicants, because license fees paid to the city could not be recovered if the ordinance should be ruled invalid.

Earlier in the day State's Attorney Courtney's office was visited by a delegation of the Chicago Church federation, representing nineteen denominations and 1,049 churches. The churchmen protested against the betting ordinance.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

NEIGHBORLINESS

By CALEB

BETWEEN New York and Chicago I left the train and went twenty miles by bus to spend Saturday in a little town I used to visit. I walked through the village. The local locomotive, which switches freight down from the Junction, was snorting out of its "roundhouse." Red and white and black paint made it look youthful, and its asthmatic wheezing was hardly noticeable over the fresh and lively clamor of its bell. The engineer waved a friendly hand to Mrs. Rafferty who was hanging clothes in her yard. At the switch he stopped to pass the time of day with the coal man before backing into a siding to pick up a car for Tarpott's mill.

I stopped to see Grandma Forpington. "How are all my old friends?" I inquired.

"Well, let me see. Did you know Henry Turner's boy Rob? He's in Washington now. Government job. Wilma—you knew Wilma—she's married and has a baby. Lives in Allcole, and she's done nothing with all that musical education she had. Shame, we think. And Walt, he's made up his mind to be a dentist. Was to be an architect, you know—or engineer. His mother says she doesn't know how long he'll be in school now. Caroline—she's deaf. Pity, too. Still young. The high school class of 1924 had a reunion. Twelve graduated. Two are dead, eight out of the ten were here. . . . The other two? Well, Henry was on his way to Chicago and couldn't come, and Bob is preaching in New York—no money. Benny, though, has made a lot of money, but no one is impressed by it. Not since he's neglected his mother here—like he has."

At noon I ate at the famous restaurant people come many miles to patronize. An old gentleman and three equally old ladies were gorging themselves. The place was full, and noisy with many voices. A birthday cake ablaze with candles came in for one of the oldsters. She took careful aim, and with one deep-fetched breath extinguished them all. Her husband remarked in one of those fatal moments when everything seems to go dead quiet, "And her teeth stayed in!" Every one in earshot laughed except two prim persons who looked like city spinsters.

As I left the restaurant, three people asked me how my family was. Did the rope burns on my hands ever get well? Did I remember the spilled iodine in the white bathroom?

Neighborliness grows up where people come together often in a friendly spirit. We have found that even in a very large store a friendly spirit can prevail that smacks of neighborliness—particularly when salespeople come to know customers who come in again and again.

HOLD EX-CONVICT IN LOVERS' LANE SLAYING OF GIRL

Believe Victim Shot by Error in Trap.

The route Mrs. Hawkins laid out for her return trip would have taken her over a road near the spot, fourteen miles northeast of here, where Miss Moore was slain. But, instead of following her announced intentions, the housewife said, she took another route.

"Did it occur to you that the bullets that killed Miss Moore might have been intended for you?" Chief Deputy Sheriff Frank Bruggner asked.

"Indeed, that's exactly what I thought," Mrs. Hawkins replied.

Note Flaw in Evidence.

A flaw was noted in the circumstantial evidence against McCarty at this point because the car in which Miss Moore was riding was going north, while the gang would be expecting Miss Hawkins to be going south. But the police investigators said this discrepancy would be explained though they refused to do so at this time.

Mrs. Hawkins told her story to the police during the investigation that followed immediately after the strange slaying. Later she repeated her information before a grand jury.

The search for McCarty has been in progress since shortly after the killing, but it was not until today that police found him.

Police records revealed that McCarty was sentenced to life imprisonment in Redwood, Cal., in 1919, but was paroled five years later. A year after he was paroled he spent eight months in jail awaiting trial for violation of the national motor theft act and was then sentenced in federal court to serve fifty-nine days.

Escorts Unscathed by Shots.

Miss Moore was sitting between Stopper, 20 years old, of Mishawaka, and Walton, 17 years old, of Granger, when she was shot. Stopper, who said he and the girl were engaged, told police that as they were driving in Bittersweet road about a mile and a half south of Granger they saw a large black sedan in a ditch. When they stopped to offer aid, he said, a man got out of the parked car and opened fire with a revolver without warning.

Three of the six bullets fired struck Miss Moore, but her escorts were unscathed.

EVANSTON HIGH FORBIDS LATEST STYLE HAIRCUT

Lest they catch cold, W. Tudor Ap-Madco Jr. and William Brownholtz, both 16, are remaining at home after introducing to the rest of the students of the Evanston Township High school a new style in haircuts—a two inch strip of hair in the center and the rest of the head shorn.

Classmates gave one of them $5 to get his hair cut that way, according to Walter L. Barnum, assistant principal. The other, Mr. Barnum said, thought it was worth $20 and got it. Mr. Barnum suspended them both, not because of the haircuts but because of the excitement they caused.

Tudor, the son of an attorney, went to his Evanston home at 813 Hinman avenue, and William, the son of an advertising executive, to his at 1721 Harrison street. Tudor later had his head shaved completely and hopes to be back in school Monday. The barber, Herman Bahr, said his young customers wanted their hair cut that way and the customer's always right.

Return Woman to Chicago on Check Passing Charge

Veronica Davis, 44 years old, charged with defrauding the Palmer House of $34 by passing a worthless check last January, was returned here yesterday by Policewoman Mary Powers from Mobile, Ala., where Miss Davis had served a 90 day sentence for impersonating a federal officer.

STRIKERS DANCE AS PLANT OWNER PLANS TO MOVE

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Approximately 400 employés of the Eagle Electric Manufacturing company of Brooklyn face the prospect of losing their jobs tomorrow. As the result of an ultimatum issued by L. Ludwig, the company president, whose offer to accept all the contract terms offered by a C. I. O. organizer except the closed shop has been refused.

Mr. Ludwig announced his deadline itoday. If no agreement can be reached by tomorrow he will close his present plant after seventeen years and sign a contract to move into a plant in Meriden, Conn., because of labor disturbances in his plant.

Jack Sario, organizer for local 1,216 of the United Electrical and Radio Machinists Workers of America, was found in a small store serving as a temporary C. I. O. headquarters. About twenty girls and ten young men were dancing there to music supplied by a player piano. On a gas stove in the rear a pot of stew was being prepared. Sario, master of ceremonies, was loquacious and unperturbed.

"Let him go! Let him go!" said Sario when told of Ludwig's threat to move. "He won't close the plant. His investment is too big."

TRAIL GUNMAN WHO ATTEMPTED TO ATTACK BRIDE

The Austin police were searching yesterday for a young gunman who ransacked several apartments in a building at 4840 Madison street on Thursday and attempted to attack Mrs. Angela Ballarini, 17 years old, a bride of six months. Mrs. Ballarini said the gunman entered her apartment pretending to be a messenger.

He struck her on the head with his revolver. A neighbor heard her screams and pounded on the door, and the gunman fled through a rear door. He obtained jewelry valued at $500 from two other apartments in the building.

MAYOR OF LA SALLE ASSAILS WPA; CITY REFUSES AID FROM IT

La Salle, Ill., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mayor H. M. Orr charged today the Works Progress administration is not on the square and cited several alleged incidents which he said caused the city of La Salle to refrain from accepting money from that agency for public works here.

He cited the city's two applications for a swimming pool to be constructed with WPA aid, saying one was refused because of insufficient man hours and the other was rejected by the city when the sponsor's contribution was ordered increased from $25,000 to $61,000.

Spurns All WPA Money.

Hopedale, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—With the annual closing of the town books, Town Treasurer Alfred A. Lovejoy Jr. revealed today that this town of 3,100 never has accepted a penny of WPA money or other similar federal assistance. "We just don't need it," town officials said.

TVA IS CALLED INCOMPETENT BY HOUSE MEMBER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The house, amid growing congressional agitation for investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority, today heard the agency accused of "grossest incompetency" and as "not trustworthy to be given the stewardship of large sums of money."

Representative George A. Dondero [R., Mich.] told the house the TVA is "convicted" of these charges by its own explanation of the discrepancies in two estimates it submitted in connection with proposed construction of a $112,000,000 flood control reservoir at Gilbertsville, Ky.

Raze Grist Mill Built by Pioneers 80 Years Ago

Morrison, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Old Landon mill on Elkhorn creek, built from native timber in 1857 by Whiteside county pioneers to grind their feed and flour, is being razed. It was located on the old Galena-Dixon road.

DEMOCRATS DINE TONIGHT; REFILL PARTY TREASURY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Tomorrow night President Roosevelt and his supporters in cities throughout the nation will attend a series of Jackson day dinners at $25, $50, and $100 a plate to replenish the Democratic treasury.

Addressing the $100 a plate audience in the Mayflower hotel here, Mr. Roosevelt will begin speaking at 9:30. His words will be nationally broadcast and sent by short wave to South America.

Postmaster General James A. Farley and Robert M. Jackson, assistant attorney general, will represent the administration in New York, where the party faithful will sit down for $50 each.

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, will be at Nashville; Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, at Des Moines; Harry A. Woodring, secretary of war, at Denver; Attorney General Homer S. Cummings at Chicago; James Roosevelt, the President's son, in Boston, and Daniel S. Roper, secretary of commerce, at Columbus, O.

PATIENTS DOPED FOR INSURANCE, SAYS PROSECUTOR

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Holders of disability insurance policies were doped like race horses, so false claims might be collected, United States Attorney Lamar Hardy told a jury today in federal court. Two lawyers, two physicians, and an insurance agent are being tried on charges of having used the mails to defraud insurance companies of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Hardy said Joseph J. Weiss, a lawyer, was the master mind of the ring and that Dr. Hirsch Messman, the doctor who medicated the claimants, would testify for the government. Theodore Kiendl, attorney for Dr. Maximilian Goldstein, told the jury that Dr. Messman is a disgrace to his profession cannot be believed.

AT 70, SHE TIRES FOR SECOND TIME OF MR. RUBARDT

Wife Asks Support from Dye Maker.

At 70 Mrs. Marie Rubardt has decided again to seek legal separation from her husband. Mrs. Rubardt, who lives in the Edgewater Beach hotel, says she is tired of being pushed around in Bellagio, Italy, and Green Lake, Wis.

It was bad enough in Bellagio, she asserted yesterday in a suit for separate maintenance filed in the Superior court. The push brought her up against a staircase. But it was really worse being insulted in Green Lake, so many people were present.

Puts His Income at $25,000.

Mrs. Rubardt's complaint, filed by Attorney Leon A. Miller, avers that her husband, Oscar P. Rubardt, 71, is worth $400,000, and has an annual income of $25,000. He is head of a household dye manufacturing concern bearing his name, at 5116 Ravenswood avenue.

They were first married Nov. 2, 1894. After raising three daughters, Mrs. Rubardt obtained a divorce on the ground of cruelty on Jan. 8, 1923, following which her husband remarried. His second wife died in 1926, and on Nov. 2, 1932, he and his first wife were remarried.

The next year, Mrs. Rubardt declared, he took her to Europe, when at Bellagio the shoving incident occurred. Since then he has gone abroad every year, but always alone.

An Incident in Green Lake.

In Green Lake, last Sept. 8, Mrs. Rubardt said, her husband made this remark to her in the presence of several friends:

"I wish I would never have to look at your old wrinkled up face again. I should never have remarried you."

That was the final blow, Mrs. Rubardt said. She left. Since then Rubardt has sent her $20 a week. Many of the remittances are accompanied, Mrs. Rubardt said, by little notes urging her to accompany him to West Palm Beach, Fla., for the winter.

PUBLICATION OF 221 NEWSPAPERS HALTED IN 1937

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A decrease of 221 in the number of newspapers published in the United States last year below the 1936 total is reported in the 1938 edition of N. W. Ayer and Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals, published today.

The directory lists 2,084 daily English language newspapers, a decrease of twenty-three under the 1936 total; 10,629 weeklies, a decrease of 176, and 359 semi-weeklies, a decrease of eighteen. There was an increase of eleven in the number of foreign language newspapers, an increase of three in the total of tri-weekly papers and an increase of fifteen in the number of dailies publishing Sunday editions.

VICTIM GETS A THIEF'S NUMBER; POLICE GET HIM

There are many cloth topped sport coupes in Chicago but only one with the license number taken down early yesterday by Mrs. Bee Meyers, 4118 Kenmore avenue. Mrs. Meyers does not ordinarily go about jotting down car numbers, but this car was different. A purse snatcher had just disappeared into it with her purse.

A little later, therefore, when such a car with such a number was seen by a detective squad at Clark street and Newport avenue the detectives arrested Stanley Fischer, 22 years old, and his brother, Harold, 20, of 3412 Seminary avenue, and Michael Dooman, 28 years old, of 3538 North Newberry [Reta] avenue. Mrs. Meyers identified Harold Fischer as the purse snatcher.

FRED W. WOLF, 56, INVENTOR HEIR, WEDS SECRETARY

Fred W. Wolf, 56 years old, inventor and one of the heirs to a $2,000,000 estate, was married Dec. 29 to Miss Robbie L. Martin, 26 years old, by Judge Olney C. Allen in Geneva, Ill., it was learned yesterday. Wolf and his bride, formerly his secretary, are living on an 80 acre farm near Yorkville.

Wolf, said to hold basic patents for electric refrigerators, was judged legally sane on Dec. 8 by a jury in the Probate court here, and his estate was removed from the control of a conservator.

He had been placed in several institutions since 1933, on the petition of his former wife, Mrs. Jessie Black Wolf, who died last Nov. 3.

Indiana Cadet Is Indicted on Two Robbery Charges

Edward Rathbun, 17 years old, a cadet at the Howe Military academy, Howe, Ind., was reported named by the grand jury yesterday in true bills charging him with two robberies. He was accused of taking an overcoat from a clothing store at 332 South State street on Dec. 31 and of getting $7 from a haberdashery at 339 West North avenue on Jan. 1. His father is Ross Rathbun of New York City, general sales manager for the Westinghouse Electric Elevator company.

GIRL WHO KILLED FATHER SAYS SHE MEANT TO SCARE

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.] — Dorothy Schaefer, 18 years old, sobbed in a cell today that she only meant to scare her father when she picked up a carving knife with which she stabbed him to death last night as she prepared for church choir rehersal.

The girl said her father, Charles Schaefer Jr., 49 years old, a Pennsylvania railroad freight checker, had annoyed the neighbors and menaced her mother and herself in an alcoholic fury over the prospect of losing his job.

"He threatened to give me the beating of my life," police quoted Dorothy as saying. "He said 'I'll bang your head in and do the same to your mother if she interferes.' He objected to mother and me belonging to the choir of All Souls Lutheran church."

Robber Catches Fish and $25 from Same Victim

A robber who was angling for victims in a passageway beside 5111 Cornell avenue yesterday caught a mess of fish and $25—both from Milton Marcus, 21 years old, a delivery boy, of 1023 East 53d street.

OPEN INQUIRY INTO CONDUCT OF CREW ON LOST LUXURY LINER

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A marine investigating board of the department of commerce met here today to inquire into the grounding of the liner President Hoover on a coral reef off Hoishoto Island, Dec. 10.

Capt. William Fisher, chairman of the board, said it would seek to determine the probable cause of the Hoover's grounding and consider possible charges against the licensed personnel of the ship's crew.

The Hoover's 453 passengers and crew of 408 were removed safely and recently the Dollar Line announced it had abandoned the million dollar ship to underwriters.

Capt. Fisher announced that if it appeared there was cause to bring charges against any of the ship's personnel, such charges should be made in writing.

One hundred sixty-five members of the Hoover's crew arrived here today aboard the President McKinley, indignant at charges of drunkenness, molestation of women, and rioting. Sam Cohen, steward's delegate, displayed clippings from Manila newspapers and labeled them baseless fabrications.

ADMITS WARNING OF RAID; RETAINS MORALS OFFICER

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mayor George E. Leach announced today he had verified reports that managers of illegally operated night clubs had received secret advance notice of raids by grand jurors, but he refused to accede to the demand of a city councilman that Al Palmersten be removed as head of the police morals squad.

The jury raids resulted in seven arrests in two establishments, one a black and tan. Seven other places visited were found closed.

Mayor Leach said he had received the name of a man responsible for relaying information to various night spots that a grand jury raid was impending. The charge of advance notice of the raid, at first denied by Leach, originally was made by Val Ness, jury foreman who led police and deputy sheriffs on the raids. Leach defended police law enforcement generally and asserted that Palmersten, as morals squad head, carries out orders given him by the police chief.

While these statements were being made three of the seven men arrested were fined on disorderly conduct charges and trial of four was set for Monday. Action was begun to revoke licenses held by the two establishments where arrests were made.

FORMER JUDGE'S SLAYER FACES 2D TRIAL AS GUNMAN

Apparently glad to have escaped the electric chair, George Chicharevich, 56 years old, yesterday withdrew a motion for a new trial and was sentenced to serve eighteen years in the penitentiary for the murder of former Municipal Judge Frederick W. Elliott. Judge George Fred Rush imposed the sentence in accordance with the verdict of a Criminal court jury Thursday night.

Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers, who was dissatisfied with the verdict, said Chicharevich will be tried Jan. 26 on a charge of assault to kill for the wounding of Attorney George Mason, whom he shot a few minutes before slaying Elliott on Sept. 15.

"The state will seek a long sentence for Chicharevich on the Mason charge," the prosecutor said. "He deserved the electric chair."

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Beckett and Andrew Kozlowski, robbery, sentenced to one year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

These Volumes Open Up Vistas in Photography

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

"U. S. Camera, 1937," edited by T. J. Maloney. [Morrow, $2.50.]

"The American Annual of Photography," edited by Frank R. Fraprie. [American Photographic Publishing company, $2.25.]

"News Pictures," by Jack Price. [Round Table Press, $3.]

Photography for the amateur, admittedly a luxury, has had its greatest growth since 1934. As a result, the annuals of photography for 1937 were rich and full. The prints were more representative of the nation because more people were taking pictures. The pictures are better because increased camera sales have brought about revolutionary developments.

The prints selected for "U. S. Camera," a fat volume spirally bound, are as good as any in the world. The old problem of transfering the photographic print to paper through the medium of ink, without appreciable loss of detail, has been handled in a masterly manner. In addition to its artistic value it is a very practical volume. Appended is a summary of each photograph, revealing the camera, aperture, speed, and treatment that made it possible.

The purpose of "The American Annual of Photography" is a little different. In addition to presenting a wide selection of the year's best prints, it reviews the year's advances through the medium of informative articles. There is much here for the advanced amateur and for the laboratory worker. It is a valuable and interesting work.

"Modern Masters" is a collection of superb prints presented in a manner that is utterly different. In order that each of the pictures might be transferred to paper by the process that best suited its tones, it was decided to issue the portfolios quarterly in series, to overcome the great cost of production. The first issue, "The Pictorialists," includes four printing processes: gravure, letterpress, aquatone, and four color work. The prints are 11x14 inches and are packed in a box unbound so that they may be framed. On the back of each are the camera data so valued by other photographers.

Jack Price, the celebrated and literate newspaper photographer, had planned to revise and reissue his "News Photography," published in 1932, but upon analyzing the great advances in press camera work in five years he found it necessary to prepare a complete new volume. This new book, "News Pictures," is one of the finest that could possibly fall into the hands of the amateur photographer. It is addressed to him, as a matter of fact, and tells him how to become a newspaper camera man, which is to say, a good photographer. The best news and action shots of the year are reproduced, together with a thorough description of the workings of press cameras and standard methods of getting good pictures.

Tales of Fabulous Adventure Chronicled in 2 New Novels

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Two novels published this week are counted on by literary dope-sheet makers to win in the spring book races. They resemble each other in that they both chronicle adventure of the wildest sort all over the globe. They differ markedly in ultimate intent and in the technical and stylistic road to those utterly different ends.

This Chronicle Rises to Height of Fantasy.

"The Third Hour," by Geoffrey Household. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

It is the end which makes of this book something new and different and which will give readers a false valuation of its importance. That end is the establishment, by a group of men and women dissatisfied with the world's state, of a new communal order, utterly removed from politics, working against communism, Fascism, and democracy alike. It is to be nonreligious, recognizing and enjoying the pleasures of the flesh in physical comfort, good food and wine, and love, devoted to the preservation of peace among men, and to be made up of noble human beings.

Geoffrey Household.

Among the founders of the order is a Spanish waiter who has had intense excitement during his forty passionate years, with service in a communistic army in Mexico, during which he found a fortune in gold bullion beside a wrecked train, buried it, and through its fantastic recovery is able to finance the project. Another is a devil-may-care young Englishman who lives and roves over most of the habitable globe selling toys. A third is a former Russian cavalry colonel who is as fabulous in his blustering way as is a gentle suburban Englishman in his timidity.

The others include an Austrian countess, a prosperous European Jew, a Chilean peasant communist, a successful London accountant, three wives, one female secretary, three young children.

Mr. Household very smartly leaves them as they are about to establish their monastery in the Basque "Republic" [foreseen by one of the smarter prognosticators].

The characters are as unreal, but their antics as fascinating, as a supremely good puppet show. Their adventures are fantastic. And their talk is in tune with their actions. Exactly what is the noble quality of either the characters or their deeds the reader doesn't stop to inquire, so intrigued is he with their fabulous adventures in Europe, in Mexico, in South America.

This Story Permeated by a Strange Reality.

"Forever Ulysses, by C. P. Rodocanachi. [Viking, $2.50.] Published yesterday. January Book of the Month club choice.

The adventures in "Forever Ulysses" are even more fantastic than in "The Third Hour." The hero, born on one of the little Greek islands, has a career infinitely more fabulous than that of any of the members of the Third Hour order.

But there is a strange reality about Ulysses. The reader feels as though he were reading a biography. More than once, in the latter pages, he has to tell himself that the author definitly disclaims that this is biography, so much would he like to believe it is the life story of the mysterious Sir Basil Zaharoff.

Ulysses starts life as humbly as a goat. He ends it the richest man in the world. In between he has had every up and down that a fertile brain, an eye for the main chance, and a wild gambler could have. He blacks boots in Athens. He is adopted by an Alexandrian grocer, whom he helps make rich by devising a means of selling hashish without detection. He starts off with a cargo of food and drink to make his fortune from the British soldiers in Africa. He is captured by Ethiopians and escapes by being taken out of town as a corpse.

He becomes a friend of Kitchener, and the most powerful man along the Nile. Riches and honors overwhelm him and so, eventually, does bankruptcy, and he finds himself a wharf rat in New York. He makes a spectacular financial coup in Venezuela and at the same time collects an old debt for a great American armaments firm. He astonishes the world by selling armaments to Turkey [by the simple trick of pasting £20,000 of notes in the catalogs offered the grand vizier]. He gains control of all the armament factories in the world. He organizes the world for peace after war. He dies in splendor. He is a fabulous person. But he has the breath of life in him.

Frankau's New Novel Is Sort of Cavalcade.

"The Dangerous Years," by Gilbert Frankau. [Dutton, $2.50.] Published last Thursday.

Gilbert Frankau, popular English novelist, has written the best novel of his career in "The Dangerous Years." It is an English cavalcade, beginning with the sinking of the Titanic, chronicling the pre-war and post-war years and the present, omitting detailed descriptions of the actual war years, and ending with the siege of the Alcazar, in which a little boy of the first pages dies as a man.

It describes the life of a typical manor house family with a title, none too much money, and a solid belief in England and in its national and family traditions.

"The Dangerous Years" has that quality of story telling that in a book is comparable to charm in a woman —you may not be able to analyze why, but you don't want to leave it. It's the "Ancient Mariner" touch . . . and you listen until the story is finished. "The Dangerous Years" isn't a great book, but it is one you read with unfaltering interest even for 686 pages.

Military Story of World War Vividly Related

BY COL. THOMAS R. GOWENLOCK.

"Military History of the World War," by Col. Girard Lindsley McEntee, U. S. army, retired. [Scribner's, $7.50.]

The clearest simplicity prevails throughout this detailed account of the modern world's greatest and most complex drama. Beginning with the world war's obscure roots of historical prejudices, hatreds, fears, ambitions, and alliances, followed by more modern economic causes, the reader moves chronologically through each major phase of the great conflict.

Military and naval operations, their planning, objectives, strategy, execution, and outcome, are clearly and interestingly shown on all fronts. All arms of the services receive recognition, including the gigantic accomplishments of the services of supply.

This history is written on a vast scale. An immense amount of material, data, and facts were used in its compilation. Years of painstaking, exhaustive, and intelligent work were involved. The 459 maps, diagrams, and charts are masterpieces of simplicity. They remove all confusion of thought and orientation and will prove of equal value to the novice and the military scholar.

This welcome book is definite, authoritative, impartial, and well balanced. It is a straightforward, proficient, and faithful account of a huge undertaking that failed. It is filled with vital realities. In the printed word there is no glamor—yet the glamor is obvious. The author is refreshingly self-effacing, has no prejudices nor personal objectives, and his deductions are modestly stated.

For those familiar with the situation in France in 1914, who may have wondered why the German legions failed to capture Paris, the opening chapters will be illuminating. If Count von Schlieffen had lived to head the German high command, or if General von Moltke had executed the von Schlieffen plan with the daring that plan of daring frontal attacks and envelopment movements deserved, the central powers would in all probability have won a decisive victory over the allies within the first thirty days. As it was, the war continued for four ghastly years in which millions of lives were lost and billions of dollars were spent in the effort to rectify the fatal blunder of the world's greatest military power.

Existing world conditions lend especial interest to Col. McEntee's "Military History of the World War." The same leading characters now occupy the stage. They are rehersing for a new drama. There have been a few unofficial trial performances. The date of the main performance has not been set. It will not occur until two, with leading rôles, clash.

Book Material Gathered Among Bagdad Natives

Freya Stark lived among the natives in Bagdad slums and practiced her Persian and Arabian on any one who would talk with her. Her neighbors and friends were the white turbaned Indians, merchants from all parts of the world, and Persian pilgrims who still walk barefooted in the streets. She took journeys into the deserts, trod the Nisibin road, and visited the shrine of Kadhimain. Her impressions are woven into "Baghdad Sketches" [Dutton, $3.50].

Whereabouts of Rare Volume by Marlowe Arouses Speculations

Somewhere in New York somebody owns a book worth ten or twelve thousand dollars and doesn't even suspect it, according to John Bakeless, author of "Christopher Marlowe" [Morrow, $3.75].

It is a copy of Marlowe's play "Dido, Queene of Carthage" of which only three copies are now known, one in the Folger Shakespeare library, Washington; one in the Huntington library in California, and one in the Bodleian library, Oxford. The Huntington copy, the only one that has been on the rare book market in a century, sold for $12,900.

Most bibliographers believe that these three are the only copies of the play in the world, but Dr. Bakeless discovered that in 1860 still a fourth copy was sold at auction in New York for 25 cents.

TOMB BELIEVED THAT OF FIRST PHARAOH FOUND

Sealings Indicate Burial Place of Menes.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 7.—(AP)—W. B. Emery, an English Egyptologist, today cited evidence supporting a theory that he had discovered the true tomb of Menes, the first pharaoh, whose almost legendary reign is set by Egyptologists at from 5,000 to 6,000 years ago.

Emery said that at Sakkara he had uncovered five subterranean chambers containing clay sealings marked with the name Aha, who Egyptologists believe probably was one of the historical originals of Menes.

There also was a cartouche [oval or oblong figure] of a thus far unidentified king.

Awaits Excavation of Graves.

Emery was unwilling to make a positive statement with regard to the identity of the tomb until he obtained further evidence, which might be disclosed with excavation of a cluster of graves—possibly those of royal servants — about the central tomb.

He contended, however, that the clay sealings supported the possibility that it was the true burial place of the first dynasty ruler. Menes is credited with inaugurating the custom of eating in a reclining position. In later dynasties he was worshipped as a god.

[The Encyclopedia Britannica says Menes probably was "ruler of upper Egypt and conquered the separate kingdom of lower Egypt. His grave was discovered by De Morgan at Negadr in upper Egypt in 1897."]

Identification Is Disputed.

Certain Egyptologists declared the upper Egypt grave discovered in 1897 never was properly identified as Menes' burial place.

Alan Rowe, one time director of the University of Pennsylvania expedition to Palestine and Egypt, said dual tombs for the Pharaohs were not uncommon.

He pointed out that the tomb found in 1897 was a small rectangular chamber of brick containing objects bearing Menes' name, but said it was not surrounded by the usual exterior chambers marking the burial places of the kings of the first dynasty.

On this account Rowe believed the tomb found by Emery would prove to be the real burial place.

TIMBAD SULTAN AND HIS BROTHER KILLED BY MOROS

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Datu Macarimbang, the sultan of Timbad, and his brother, Lalambut, were shot and killed near Dansalan, Lanao province, today while attempting to serve as mediators between Philippine soldiers and rebellious Moros.

When the soldiers, in the course of a general drive against the Moros, advanced upon the Timbad fort, the sultan and his brother, who were with the soldiers, moved ahead in an attempt to pacify the Moros. The rebels opened fire with their wooden cannon and homemade guns.

CANNES, France, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The duke of Windsor, David Lloyd George, Britain's wartime prime minister, and Winston Churchill, former British cabinet minister, dined together tonight as guests of Maxine Elliott, former American actress.

The dinner was given in Miss Elliott's Château de L'Horizon. Other guests were the duchess of Windsor and Miss Blossom Forbes-Robertson, Miss Elliott's niece.

Seize Banker, Force Him to Open Bank; Get $3,000

Metamora, Mich., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Two gunmen abducted Fred D. Donner, 48 years old, cashier of the Metamora State Savings bank, late tonight after forcing him to open a bank safe which was looted of from $2,000 to $3,000. Donner was released unharmed near Pontiac after being a prisoner of the robbers for more than an hour. Donner, who said he had been working on annual reports at the bank, related he had closed up and was walking home when the robbers forced him into their car and made him return to the bank.

ENGLISH BISHOP, FIRST TO ASSAIL EX-KING, IS ILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Dr. A. W. F. Blunt, the bishop of Bradford, who was the first Church of England dignitary to criticize King Edward VIII, before his abdication, is suffering from a nervous breakdown, it was reported tonight. He arrived in London today to consult a specialist.

[The bishop made what was considered the first public reference to the private life of King Edward when he called on the king to "show more piety" and assailed him for not attending church. The address jarred the British press into printing the first indications of the abdication crisis.]

Dr. Blunt has been in ill health for months. In September he abandoned a tour of Canada and returned to England a few days after reaching Halifax. The following month, on the grounds of indisposition, he missed being presented to King George and Queen Elizabeth when they visited Bradford. During the Canadian trip he said he never had heard of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, now the duchess of Windsor, when he wrote the address criticizing Edward.

INQUEST OPENED IN GIRL'S DEATH AT HUNTING CAMP

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Crown Attorney John O'Flynn opened an inquest tonight into the slaying of Miss Helen Grier, stenographer who was found dead Oct. 28 in a hunting lodge 38 miles north of here.

Vernon Spencer, former professional baseball player, who found the body, has been held since then. An autopsy showed Miss Grier was shot with a rifle and had suffered a skull fracture. Spencer said he found Miss Grier's pajama-clad body on the cabin floor. A guide told police he had escorted Spencer and Miss Grier to the cabin Oct. 18.

MEXICO SETS UP NATIONAL SCHOOL FOR TECHNICIANS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Jan. 7.—The establishment of a new national polytechnical institute, on which the government will spend 2,000,000 pesos [approximately $556,000] the first year, was announced today by President Lazaro Cardenas.

Cardenas plans to make the institute a center at which outstanding professors from Germany, Spain, and other countries, who are exiled from their homelands, can teach engineering and the practical sciences to the youth of Mexico.

Plan Faculty of 200 Exiles.

It is planned to select approximately 200 well known exiles, offering them seats on the new institute's faculty on ten year contracts at 1,000 pesos [approximately $278] monthly, which is a comfortable income in Mexico. It also is reported that New York financial interests with holdings in Mexico have offered to contribute to the program.

Cardenas and the department of education refused today to comment on the project, but the department of education issued a statement describing the two principal objectives of the school.

Seek to Educate Proletariat.

These are to provide wider educational facilities for the proletarian class, and to supply trained Mexicans for the development of the country's industries. "The school will give social orientation to the proletarian class," the statement said, "and the scientific basis for a solution of the multiple problems of a technical nature facing the nation can be solved by establishment of this institute."

The department of education explained that young men of more or less wealthy families have been the only ones able to obtain a professional education and follow professional careers in Mexico, with the result that the physical development of the revolution has been placed more or less in their hands.

QUEBEC POLICE SEIZE 800 BOOKS IN LABOR RAID

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The "Red squad" of Quebec provincial police has seized 800 books in a raid on the headquarters of the Canadian labor circle, it was disclosed today. The raid was made last week-end.

It also was disclosed that the home of Lucien Dufour, Montreal president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers, had been raided and that copies of newspapers had been seized.

Officials of the circle describe the organization as the "largest non-political Jewish organization in Canada." Five officers made the raid, carrying a warant authorizing them to seize any literature they considered communist propaganda. Labor circle officers said the confiscated books were Yiddish classics.

The search warants were issued from the office of Quebec Province Premier Maurice Duplessis, who also is the provincial attorney general. Duplessis wrote Quebec's "padlock law," authorizing police to close any place suspected of housing communist literature.

JACKSON'S PANIC.

Andrew Jackson was a grand fellow. The Democratic party with its Jackson day dinners properly keeps the memory of the great patriot alive, and if incidentally it sometimes raises money by charging fancy prices for what the celebrants eat, there needn't be any objection to that. It's all in the family.

Jackson was as indomitable a man as ever lived. Sometimes it seemed that nothing but sheer will enabled him to overcome the difficulties in which he found himself. Jackson day celebrates the final stage of the defense of New Orleans, Jan. 8, the critical moment of the two weeks' fight for the city when the frontal attack on the American lines between river and swamp failed so disastrously.

A more fiery American patriot than Jackson never lived. He couldn't tolerate opposition to what he believed was right, and his daring in dealing with opponents, whether they were British, French, Spanish, or Americans, was as close to foolhardiness as it could be and still succeed.

The general, however, was not an extraordinarily wise social planner or financier. This year's Democratic demonstration in his honor might be tinged with a bit of confusion. It is necessary to dwell lightly upon Jackson's rancor against the banking institutions because it helped throw the country into the depression of 1837, which has a counterpart in the one of today.

The disasters of one hundred years ago followed upon a period of unprecedented prosperity accompanied by the wildest sort of speculation. The government had been so prosperous and had so much revenue that not only was the national debt completely extinguished but there was a surplus which the Santa Clauses of that day thought should be distributed among the states. This stroke of policy withdrew funds from banks where they had been useful in supporting enterprises, even if many of them were speculative, and sent the money traveling about the country just when a combination of factors, including foreign failures, foreign calling of loans and dumping of American securities, crop failures here, and the collapse of the inflated real estate market, was about to make its shock irresistible.

Gen. Jackson's violent antipathies and his war on what he called entrenched wealth did the country no more good in his day than the same war is doing now.

CORRUPT AND CONTENTED.

A grand jury in Minneapolis, after a two months' proceedings in the form of an inquiry into crime and labor conditions, has come to or published the conclusion that everything is jake.

Mayor Leach highly approves of the jury and its findings.

In other words, the situation which has given Minneapolis a deservedly bad name will continue. The question is whether the community which has so long tolerated the conditions now whitewashed by this grand jury will content itself with a deception that deceives nobody or possesses enough civic spirit and self-respect to revolt. There are honest and courageous men in every community, including Minneapolis. Peter F. Herrly, the foreman of the whitewashing grand jury, who was ousted because he would not shirk his duty and insisted that the truth should be found and disclosed, has proven that Minneapolis has men who will fight for decent standards. But where are the citizens who ought to be fighting with him? Mr. Herrly has spoken out fearlessly. He has asked for an independent investigation and offered to raise $100,000. This was refused by the grand jury. Are the decent people of Minneapolis going to accept that?

Flagrant murder has been done in Minneapolis to prevent and terrorize exposure of the system which misrules the city. The murderers remain undisclosed and unpunished. The alliance of crime, of organized violence, and corrupt politics is still in full operation.

How long will the conscience and intelligence of Minneapolis remain torpid? It has had shock after shock in recent years. A sleeping sickness afflicts its citizenship. It is chronic. Is it incurable?

ANOTHER GREAT CONSPIRACY?

A month or more ago a story came out of Moscow that an American citizen by the name of Robinson had disappeared from his hotel and that his wife and his friends were anxiously and vainly hunting for him. A few days later the woman disappeared and the American government undertook to find out what happened to the two, but without success.

Later the Russian government newspaper Izvestia was allowed to make it known that the pair had been arrested by the secret police. Then it was discovered here that fraudulent passports had been issued and the couple had taken the names of two dead persons. An investigation was made in New York by the American state department to discover who was responsible for the fraud, and the identity of the woman was established as Mrs. Adolph Arnold Rubens. Some New York Tammany politicians were found to be involved in the passport fraud and now it is revealed that an employé of the Egyptian consul in New York had a hand in it.

The importance of the persisting mystery and of the investigations is not proved by anything on the surface. Two persons desiring to enter Russia obtained passports in other names than their own and were picked up by the Russian police. That, seemingly, was all. Nevertheless, it is said by an official of our state department that when the lid blows off there will be a startling discovery and that a delicate international situation is coming up.

What is now to be suspected is that the groundwork is being laid in Russia for another great conspiratorial disclosure which will be made the basis of further Stalin charges against the exiled Trotzky, that whatever the purposes of the Rubenses in entering Russia as they did they will be accused of carrying terrorist instructions from Trotzky to conspirators in Russia, and that the Russian lid will be blown off again.

If the affair develops thus in conventional form, the Russian secret police will deliver confessions from the two persons they have had in custody for a number of weeks, and another purge will be on with Trotzky accused of inciting terrorism and the assassination of Stalin. That is a guess in the dark, but it is the logical assumption to be derived, if any logical assumption can be, from the mysterious activities and great concern caused by the discovery that the passport officials were imposed upon. Otherwise it is a trivial incident except as it might indicate frauds in the passport division.

NOT A BUDGET SYSTEM.

The genuine budget of a government is its financial plan for a year. In it the cost of its activities is predetermined and the sources of the revenues for meeting the costs are indicated. Some local governments for a long time have operated under a budget system, and though estimates have not always hit the bull's-eye, it has always been clear that a definite budget was the target that was being shot at.

The formal national budget is a comparatively recent innovation. It came in under the first Republican administration following the war. During the treasuryship of Andrew Mellon the budget was always in balance. He, as the principal financial officer of the government, saw to it that the budgetary estimates of income leaned heavily to the conservative side. As a result, although expenditures sometimes were larger than the estimates, a surplus was always left and the realized surplus was consistently greater than the estimated one.

Under Mr. Roosevelt the budget has become the annual January joke. In his budgetary messages President Roosevelt regularly promises revenues which are never approached and he appraises the expenditures at figures which are generally exceeded. The result has been that realized deficits have made the budgetary deficits look like chicken feed. For example, the deficit in 1937 was more than five times the amount predicted in the budget. Not only has the bull's-eye been missed but it has been perfectly clear that the target indicated by the budget has not been shot at.

When financial operations vary so widely from the plan, why make any plan at all? It is not clear that any useful purpose is served by the President in setting down the estimated deficit for the present fiscal year at 1 billion 88 million dollars when it is perfectly clear to informed persons both within the government and outside of it that the deficit will greatly exceed this figure. The President's budget message of last Monday emphasizes the fact that not only is the budget out of balance but the budget system itself is no longer in operation at Washington.

OUT HERE IN THE STICKS.

"In Old Chicago" is a new moving picture now having its world première in New York. The producers are giving it a great play as a spectacle of what the ad writer calls "Old Chicago in all its turbulent glory." Our fond pride will lead us readily to believe that it is the great American motion picture, alive with the spirit that forged the fate of a great city and a great nation. We can go on to believe that it is supreme production achievement, showing the robust wide open town that vanished in towering flames.

New York has the glamorous treatment of our romantic drama at prices ranging as high as $2. Chicagoans, by taking a train or plane, can see the Hollywood idea of what the Chicago before the fire was like, and the fire itself with the daring spirits who survived. Some day the picture may come to Chicago. It will probably get to Oshkosh, Fort Wayne, Grand Rapids, Zanesville, O., and other thriving cities before it gets here. We may be alive with the spirit that forged a great city and a nation, but in the distribution of Hollywood products Chicagoans are the only hicks in the only sticks known to the nation today.

Editorial of the Day

SARTORIAL ATAVISM.

[Boston Herald.]

Two stray items, tucked away modestly in the news columns, deserve possibly more notice than they have received in the hurly-burly of world events. One announced that new processes have made old-fashioned heavy underwear virtually scratchless, and another that a way has been found to remove the shine from the strategic portion of a blue serge suit.

Neither, in itself, may seem important, but, then, suppose they give new emphasis to a trend still but dimly realized? What if serge above and wool beneath should be the thing again?

Already among our maturing youths suspenders have definitly reëstablished themselves and are in even better standing than they were in other days, for they are now often flaunted without reticence. Then, too, there are indications that the stiff white collar, erect and detachable, is again edging in. It is no longer considered uncollegiate or nonversity to sport one with a colored shirt. Besides, there is good evidence that cuff links are coming back, and so, surely, there will be cuffs to match. Somewhat timidly, too, ascot ties are appearing beneath the chins of bridegrooms. And napkins tucked under the chin, "la serviette au cou," à la Gran'pa, are not unsmart.

All these portents must mean something, perhaps a throwback to other days. What the exact significance may be, of course, is hard to tell, but at least the younger generation may yet come to look at father's photograph in the family album with greater equanimity and get to thinking that maybe in his salad days he wasn't as funny as they have been fancying all along he must have been.

TOO REALISTIC.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

WATSON BARRATT, producer of "The Lady Has a Heart," the play that folded last month after a short New York run, tells a tale about the last night of the performance. The male lead was ill, and the understudy went on in his place. It was only after the curtain went up that Barratt learned, he said, that the understudy was deaf. Attempts of the prompter and the other actors to give him his cue were unavailing, and there were horrible pauses that seemed a lifetime to the producer. After one such interminable wait the feminine lead, Elissa Landi, decided she would have to go on with her next speech without waiting for him to repeat his lines. She did so. Unfortunately it began "Words, words, nothing but words. . . ."

THE PRODUCER OF "The Lady Has a Heart" did the sets for "Tell Me Pretty Maiden," the play by Dorothy Day Wendell of Chicago, which had the good fortune to be in production three weeks after she had written it. The producers of Mrs. Wendell's play, Bushar and Tuerk, had a recent flop in Tallulah Bankhead's "Anthony and Cleopatra," which closed after three days. Bushar had been telling the author of "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" she had to learn about percentages now that she was a play-author, and she had answered that she was not good at figuring. "I'm no adder," she said.

"Ever since 'Anthony and Cleopatra' I'm glad I'm an adder instead of an asp," retorted Mr. Bushar cryptically.

PIECE GOODS.

He gave me three yards of linen
Of a passable shade of pink.
And He said, "If you try, you can make you
A gown, I think."

But I wept. "O, Lord, I had wanted
Silk of a heavenly blue.
I do not like pink linen." Said He
"It will have to do."

And so I bleached it, and dyed it;
[Since blue is the color for me]
And I fashioned a garment as fitting
As it could be.

Tho it isn't silk, and many
Have gay silken gowns to show,
Still I am content; for He could have Given me calico!

A LETTER FROM a Chinese physiologist, Dr. Pei Sung Tang, National Wu-Han university, Wuchang, China, to his former professors at the University of Chicago is a masterpiece of restraint and fortitude. The letter accompanied a manuscript transmitted for publication:

"Dear Professors:

"Please do not blame me for the unconventional way in which this paper is sent to you. It was written under physical and mental stress, and the last experiments were completed when the Japanese were 22 miles from Nanking and threatening to advance on Hankow. By the time you receive this Ms. we will be refugees somewhere in the interior of China.

"This marks the end of a dream.

"If things turn out to be as I expect, then you will not hear from me for a long time. You may always reach me through my wife who is at present in Hongkong.

"Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year,

Very sincerely yours,
"P. S. Tang.

"P. S. This Ms. was sent via airmail to Hongkong, thence to steamer for U. S. A. I wanted to cut down the load as much as possible. If you think the paper unacceptable in this form, please have it retyped and I shall bear the expense. Was going to do a lot of those curves, but as it is, can't wait, and throw the results away."

GAMES AGAIN.

During a lull at a recent party Otis Chatfield-Taylor introduced a rhyming game. Pick out any city you dislike—and start your rhyming. Thus: "Could a town be as dreary as that one called Erie?"

Considered best were "What could be horrider than Miami, Florider!" and "Did nobody warn you of L. A. California?" Runners up—"And was I annoyt by the lugs in Detroit!"; "I once had to tarry in good old Wilkes-Barre."

POLYPS IN THE COLON.

MOST of us have heard about polyps that sometimes form in the nose and block the airways. They may grow from the mucous membrane within the sinuses and protrude through the drainage openings. Occasionally they are seen hanging downward along the back of the throat. In makeup they are gelatinous, mucoid affairs, and contain a high percentage of water. This is responsible for their obstructing qualities, as a small amount of tissue filled with liquid [like a bladder], can interfere with any sort of passageway.

A good many things can happen to the digestive tract and the colon has more than its share of ailments. When to other disorders we add polyps it seems almost more than the lower bowel should be called on to bear. But, unfortunately, these structures will be found not infrequently and, in some instances, they may be plentiful, so much so, in fact, that they may clog the intestinal channel. In size they range from no larger than a black headed pin to nearly an inch in diameter and they may be distributed throughout the entire length of the colon. As a rule, however, they are confined to that section of the large bowel which lies low down on the left side of the body.

Just why they originate is not clearly understood. Some authorities believe that the tendency to their formation exists at birth. n other cases they occur in connection with chronic ulcerative colitis—a most disagreeable form of inflammation.

A single polyp will rarely give enough trouble to warant the slightest attention, hence few of them—if individual—ever are discovered. Nevertheless, the victim may have some digestive symptoms or complain of constipation which resists the usual methods of control. Others may bleed, and whenever the stools contain a small amount of blood that is not traceable to hemorrhoids, polyps may be suspected. If the mucous lining of the intestine shows a fair sprinkling—abdominal cramps, gas, and a feeling of discomfort may be noticeable.

In general, the signs which point to "something wrong" may not be so very different from those which accompany a spastic [tense] colon, except that there may be a rather corstant desire to empty the bowel. However, if blood shows up and is accompanied by a mucous or puslike discharge, and if at the same time the patient evinces loss of weight, poor appetite, sleeplessness, etc., polyps, as well as mucous colitis, must be thought of. Physicians have at their command methods of examination—electrically lighted instruments—by means of which the lower portion of the bowel may be investigated. Most of these protuberances will be located within view of the searching equipment.

Because they are so soft, polyps can be destroyed readily by means of the electric spark [fulguration]. In fact, if this is applied carefully they will melt away literally. The apparatus enables the physician to burn the offending tissues down to the intestinal lining. A slight scar then forms which later sloughs away, leaving a smooth surface, well healed.

It behooves us, therefore, to keep in mind the desirability of avoiding colon irritation. While roughage in the diet is important—in fact, essential to some persons—overloading the alimentary tract with indigestible fiber is neither helpful nor hygienic. We can eschew also those foods which are overseasoned and which, in consequence, demand large quantities of water, otherwise they will prove irritating. While bacteria may be a factor, no specific organism has been convicted and we always can go back to buttermilk as a useful product in combating constipation and in reducing opportunities for the spread of putrefactive organisms.

AILMENTS AND ALTITUDE.

C. F. writes: Will a person with low metabolism and low blood pressure be benefited or otherwise by a high altitude? Also, how can an individual whose ability to sleep and whose digestion are disturbed in a high altitude become adjusted when residence in such an environment is necessary?

REPLY.

In general, the effect of high altitude on low blood pressure and on low metabolic rate is beneficial. As far as sleep and digestive disturbances are concerned, acclimatization is possible, although it may be slow. Denver is a mile high. Nevertheless, the inhabitants present about the same ailments as those who live at sea level. At about 10,000 feet elevation quite another set of factors enters. The rarefied air affords a feeling of buoyancy but prolonged labor is exhausting.

WHEN ONE IS DIZZY.

L. C. writes: I am troubled with dizziness of a peculiar nature. As soon as I lie down everything goes round and round. That lasts a few seconds, then it is over. As soon as I get up I have the same thing, but it doesn't bother me much after I am on my feet. What do you think is the cause? Is it serious at my age? I am past 75 years old. Is there anything I can do to prevent it?

REPLY.

Dizziness on change of position may be due to circulatory disturbances or to disease of the semicircular canals in the ear. Make certain that the digestive tract is working properly. Too much water in the system is a common cause. Since salt retains fluid, reduce your daily ration of common salt or omit it entirely.

THE USE OF SALT.

REPLY.

Common salt in the human body is essential, because it constitutes a definite percentage of the body fluid and tissues and must be supplied for the purpose of cell life and function. It is also needed for the manufacture of hydrochloric acid for digestive purposes. Too much salt or too little salt is to be avoided, but in moderation salt is a necessity of life. The sodium part of the chemical has a powerful hold on water and too much may retain water in the tissues, causing swelling.

EMOTIONS AFFECT HEALTH.

B. C. M. writes: If a person is hurt to the quick "burned up," resentful, but not quarrelsome, will it affect his health, making him tired?

REPLY.

Undue sensitivity to social slights is a symptom of bad mental hygiene. The state of the emotions has a direct bearing on physical health. A low morale will in time produce low resistance to physical disease.

HITTING THEM ALL

From Across the Sea

BY SAM EBEWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON. — While the American army experiments with a proposed new infantry division, British military authorities have turned their attention chiefly to cavalry. Famous cavalry regiments in Great Britain are being mechanized despite the howls of sentimentalists who mourn the passing of their magnificent horses. By the end of the year only ten of the twenty-two British cavalry regiments will be housed, and most of those are scheduled to begin mechanization later.

Among units being spared at least temporarily are the Royal Scots Grays, famous for dappled gray horses. Rumors that this organization was to be mechanized raised an outcry in Scotland and it was announced the gray horses would be kept for the present.

Mechanization has brought new problems and the British have been experimenting with a "mobile division" to get the best out of their new mechanized cavalry. Originally the division was composed of one tank brigade [four battalions of mixed tanks], two mechanized cavalry brigades [each made up of two motorized cavalry regiments] and a cavalry light tank regiment, and divisional artillery, engineers, and headquarters staf. Then the cavalry brigades were changed. For the 1937 maneurers they were made up of two cavalry light tank regiments instead of one and each had a motorized infantry battalion.

This year the division will include the tank brigade, two cavalry brigades each containing three light tank regiments, a brigade of mechanized artillery, and divisional troops. Many officers think it still does not have enough artillery support and inclusion of a second brigade of mechanized artillery is being considered.

Some cavalry units are to be used as a sort of mounted infantry equipped with a newly designed troop carrier—a truck with lengthwise benches. Before reaching the front the men sit facing each other. Near the front they face outward so they can jump off and deploy rapidly.

Armored cars are being supplied to the former divisional cavalry, hussars and dragoons, and to the infantry machine gun battalions. Besides machine guns they will have trench mortars. Each infantry brigade now has three instead of four rifle battalions and a machine gun battalion equipped with armored cars, trucks to carry the men, heavy machine guns, and trench mortars. Each division thus has three machine gun battalions. Two are attached to the divisional command and one directly to the corps command.

Each rifle battalion—nine in all in the division—has one scouting platoon. Men of the scouting platoons ride in three man caterpillar machine gun carriers, armored and carrying a Bren machine gun, an anti-tank rifle, and ammunition. The rest of the battalion rides in trucks, one truck to a section.

It is considered significant that in India tanks and armored cars have been found more effective against border tribesmen than airplanes.

PROPERTY TRANSFER.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My brother and I have a joint deed on a rooming house which yields a fair income. I am married and not in very good health. My wife has been running the place.

1. Would it be possible for me to transfer my interest in the property to my wife so that if I should die she would have a half interest in the property?

2. Could this be done without the knowledge or consent of my brother who would not approve of it?

3. If so, please outline procedure.

C. R.

1. Yes. Such a transfer would destroy the survivorship feature of the joint tenancy.

2. Yes, by holding your deed unrecorded, but this would involve the risk of litigation as to whether the deed was delivered during your lifetime.

3. In view of his disapproval we advise you to employ an attorney.

FROM ASSESSOR CLARK.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—In the Voice of the People, Jan. 3, 1938, Mr. H. J. Cordesman criticizes my statement regarding taxes being no higher in Illinois than in other states.

To properly inform this gentleman, here are the facts:

Ohioans pay on 5 per cent of income on income producing investments, with statutory provisions which give the assessor the power to get all the property. Ohioans pay 2 per cent on nonproductive investments.

Cook county residents pay, through the use of the federal income tax for 1935, about 12 per cent on income produced in 1935, which, in most cases, is doubled in 1936, or an average of 6 per cent.

Nonproductive investments were not revealed to the assessor through income tax information. Therefore, practically none of this property has, as yet, been assessed.

Real estate in Cincinnati is assessed very close to 100 per cent; in Cook county the full value before debasement is taken at about 75 per cent of full value and then reduced to 37 per cent thereof.

The state of Ohio, since 1935, provides more than one-half the general operating money of Ohio public schools.

The Ohio state tax commission in 1933 declared the tax collected in Hamilton county was $44.74 per capita; Chicago in 1935 was $48.82; New York, $63.27; and the United States average, $47.97.

JOHN S. CLARK,

IN YOUR REPUBLICAN CAPACITY, YES.

Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 5.—As I sit facing 1938 I am thinking what an insignificant humdrum mortal I must be, having lived over fifty years without any of the following things having happened to me: Never cut open a chicken and found a diamond or wedding ring; never opened an oyster and found a $10,000 pearl; never gave away a dog and had it return five years later from California to New York footsore and weary but with undying devotion in its eyes; never had a detective say "Where were you on the night of . . . "; never pulled a gun out of my purse and then had everything turn black; never won a daily double, sweepstakes, or radio contest. And to make my ignominy complete I am a Republican and a Cub fan. Do you think there is any use of my living out 1938?

NINA DELANO HITCHENS.

BAREFACED IMITATION.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—I have seen frequent reference to the silver dollars in the floor of the old Palmer house barber shop. There is a barber shop in Brazil, Ind., since 1898, with silver dollars in the floor that have outlasted all the old barbers, and are being polished by the soles of the second and third generation of customers.

THE THREAT TO THE UNIVERSITIES.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Your editorial in this morning's paper "The Threat to the Universities" interested me because I happened to be one of the so-called fellows of Yale university for twenty years, during which time there were strong statements made by the civic authorities of their intent to tax all the real estate of the university. As I recollect it, Yale has, for a number of years, paid taxes on all real estate not used for educational purposes, which seems in every way reasonable. I understood the same thing happened also to Harvard in recent years.

As you refer to state universities in your article, it might be well to emphasize the contrast of the attitude of mind of the western states towards their state universities and that which the eastern states seem to have towards their endowed universities, this contrast being that in the west all people are taxed for the benefit of the state universities, while in the east the present intent is to tax the universities for the benefit of the people, not only, I understand, on the real estate but also on intangible property the income from which is also used entirely for educational purposes. The eastern states ought to be more enlightened [as they are supposed to have a large percentage of intelligent citizens] than to pursue a policy which, as you say, "threatens the future existence of institutions of incalculable value to the nation and the world." It is certainly to be hoped that the movement will not make any headway. JOHN V. FARWELL.

HONKERS.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Like your correspondent I, too, was troubled with honkers to such an extent that I could not sleep. As a result lost several days pay on account of these pests. So I decided to do something about it. I threw a few milk bottles at them and the noise ceased. I still have a few extra ones handy in case of emergency. I have driven a car in 14 states and very seldom sound my horn. I would never blow the horn at night.

On Broadway, north of Bryn Mawr avenue, there are a number of garages, and when the drivers want the attendants to open the doors they honk the horns as if they were trying to wear them out. These same people complain if a baby cries or a dog barks, but they make all the noise they want and it is O. K. I am heartily in favor of Ald. Arvey's ordinance for a $200 fine for these pests.

H. LARSEN.

PARABLE.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—You know what dyed in the wool fishermen think of the fellow who goes fishing with them, gets his line in a snarl, and not having the ability to untangle it, blames it on the reel, line, or on anything but his own inexperience. Then the old fisherman takes it and after working with it a while hands it back straightened out and working O. K. I wonder if we will be able some time to find a statesman with ability enough to untangle President Roosevelt's line of grand ideas and hand the U. S. A. back straightened out and all O. K.

FIND 18 SYPHILIS CASES IN TESTS OF 1,365 PUPILS

Continue Campaign in 15 More Schools.

Syphilis tests have now been given to 1,365 pupils in eight public elementary and high schools on the south side, with 18 cases of the venereal disease detected and under treatment, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, said yesterday. These mass examinations, the first of their kind ever conducted in any large community in the country, are a vital part of Chicago's campaign to eradicate venereal disease.

Tests soon will be under way in 15 other public schools on the south and southwest sides. City doctors and nurses are sent to the schools as quickly as groups of pupils are ready for the examinations. In all cases the health officials must have the written consent of the child's parents.

Distribute 300,000 Cards.

The group tests followed the distribution last November of 300,000 test application cards in public school grades above the fifth. The cards entitle the bearers to free and secret examinations for syphilis by the health department and coöperating physicians.

The 18 cases of the disease found in the examinations at the eight schools represented 1.3 per cent of the 1,365 children tested. Further tests are being made in seven cases which are considered doubtful.

Of the 18 cases detected, 11 were in one elementary school; there were three each in two other schools, one case in a fourth school and no cases in the remaining four schools.

For Children's Welfare.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, secretary of the board of health and chairman of Mayor Kelly's venereal disease control committee, urged parents to understand that the school group tests are not intended to quarantine or embarrass families, but are protection for the welfare and future of the children.

BRIDEGROOM, 24, SENT TO JAIL IN CHILD MARRIAGE

Harry Ruud, 24 years old, the bridegroom in a child marriage, yesterday was sentenced to serve thirty days in the county jail for falsifying the age of Marion Horton, 14 years old, in a marriage license affidavit last June.

Harry Ruud.

Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court brushed aside the plea of Assistant Public Defender Morton Anderson that Ruud's only offense was in "marrying the girl he loved."

Her marriage annulled recently, Miss Horton showed no emotion as Ruud was taken to jail. She is in custody of Juvenile court authorities as the result of a trip to Pana, Ill., with another man many years her senior.

ARVEY APPOINTS A COMMITTEE OF BUDGET CUTTERS

Declaring that the city's budget for 1938 must be cut, or that new revenue must be found, Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th] yesterday appointed a special finance subcommittee which will meet today to trim proposed appropriations. Ald. Arvey intimated that if no other way could be found, the restoration to city employés of previous pay cuts might have to be abandoned.

Members of the special committee are Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], and Ald. James B. Bowler [25th]. A week ago Arvey ordered department heads to cut $1,500,000 from the $58,090,106 corporate [operating] fund. Yesterday he said they had been able to trim it by only $500,000.

Extend Police Radio Net to Neighboring Countries

The police radio net will extend into international zones this year, according to the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Tests for message exchange across the borders of the United States will be started from New Orleans, where the police department has been licensed by the government to conduct the experiment with Mexico City and Havana, Cuba. Buffalo and Detroit stations have tentative plans to experiment with Canadian contacts.

Bill Urges Syphilis Test for Expectant Mothers

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A bill to provide blood tests for all pregnant women to protect them and their babies from the ravages of syphilis was introduced today in both houses of the legislature. Senator Jeremiah F. Twomey, a Brooklyn Democrat, and Assemblyman W. Allan Newell, an Ogdensburg Republican, sponsored the measure. The bill is said to be the first of its kind introduced in any state legislature.

Relief Chiseler Is Placed on Probation; Must Repay

John P. Nowicki, 46 years old, a railroad fireman, was placed on probation for two years by Judge Eugene Holland yesterday on a charge of obtaining $1,000 under false pretenses from state and city relief authorities. Nowicki, who lives at 1718 West 56th street, was ordered to repay the money within the two years.

BYFIELD ESTATES OF 2¾ MILLIONS CLOSED BY COURT

Judge Approves Final Accounting.

Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday approved a final accounting of the estates of Joseph Byfield, former owner of the Hotel Sherman, and his wife, Fannie, who died on Dec. 31, 1926, three months after her husband.

Mr. Byfield's estate had a gross value of $1,976,765, subject to federal and state inheritance taxes of $99,707. With the exception of $266,913 in cash, it consisted entirely of securities, the largest being 7,252 shares preferred and 4,105 common of the hotel company stock.

Sons Share Both Estates.

Mrs. Byfield left $820,606, a large part representing her share of her husband's estate. Inheritance taxes of $26,018 were paid. Both estates were shared by the Byfield sons, Ernest, Dr. Albert, and Eugene. Eugene died, leaving his $300,000 estate to his brothers.

An inheritance return filed in the County court listed the estate of Isaac [Ike] Rodrick, professional bondsman and secretary of the First Ward Democratic organization for many years, at $127,654. His widow, Della, of 6800 Chappel avenue, was left the entire estate, consisting principally of municipal and federal securities.

Another return valued the estate of Edward L. Wedeles at $241,722, subject to federal and state taxes of $29,376. Mr. Wedeles, a pioneer wholesale grocer who died on Feb. 27, left his estate to a daughter, Mrs. Josephine W. Heymann, 1205 Madison Park.

Mrs. Marie Zitzewitz, 6541 North Mozart avenue, was left the $90,000 estate of her husband, Ernst F., president of the Aetna Ball Bearing Manufacturing company, according to his will which was admitted to probate. She is to receive an income of at least $5,000 annually from the estate which was placed in trust. Her husband died Dec. 9 at the age of 67.

PUERTO RICO PAIR ADMIT ATTACK ON AMERICAN JUDGE

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Jesus Casellas and Anibal Arsuaga, cousins and members of a Nationalist group, today pleaded guilty to charges of attempting to assassinate United States District Judge Robert A. Cooper last June 8.

Associate Justice Martin Travieso, sitting as a special federal judge, withheld sentence pending outcome of the trial of eight additional Nationalists, set for Jan. 10, on the same charge.

The automobile in which Judge Cooper was riding was fired upon the day after Pedro Albizu Campos, Nationalist party president, and seven associates were taken to the Atlanta, Go., federal penitentiary to serve sedition sentences for attempting to overthrow the government in Puerto Rico. Judge Cooper had imposed their sentences.

WRITES OF CRIME FOR RADIO, THEN GETS A SAMPLE

Burglars Make a Visit to Author's Home.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

CRIME NEVER PAYS: After presentation on the Charlie McCarthy hour of an adaptation of Robert Kasper's play "Smoke Screen" by Don Ameche and Margo last Sunday night, Thomas Marshall, former assistant state's attorney, sent J. Edgar Hoover a wire saying he thought this sketch a better deterrent to crime than any of the regular programs stressing this subject on the air.

What he didn't tell Hoover was that Kasper and Marshall are neighbors down at Sawyer, Mich. An hour before the program Kasper received word from Michigan state police—he was in Chicago at the time—that his Sawyer home had been burglarized. He was asked to come and make an inventory of his losses. At the hour Ameche and Margo were portraying the wages of crime, as outlined by Kasper, he was sitting in his cold and cheerless living room, listening, as he checked off his losses—clothes, golf clubs, ancient guns, and valuable collections of antiques from all over the world.

SUCCESS STORY: Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll [Amos 'n' Andy], as guests on the Hollywood hotel program last night, revealed for the first time that they were paid $250 a week when they went to work for W-G-N, the Tribune station, at the suggestion of Henry Selinger. Only previous recompense they had received on the radio was from WEBH [Edgewater Beach Hotel] where they sang for their supper.

For the last five years' broadcasts they have received $1,000,000. Last week they went to work for a new sponsor who is paying them more than $1,000,000—$7,500 a week for three years' services.

HOLLYWOOD HOMELIFE: Dorothy Lamour, feminine headliner of the McCarthy hour, is enjoying all the sleep she wants while visiting her husband, Herbie Kay, who is playing at the Drake hotel and on W-G-N. Miss Lamour recalled that when Herbie was playing a dance engagement in Hollywood last summer he would get home shortly after 4 a. m., just in time to say "good night" as she tossed him a "good morning" on her way to work on "Hurricane." Four-thirty was her regular rising hour, she reported.

SONG HIT: If the number of times it is played on the air each evening is any indication, Sholom Secunda's "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" is at least another "Vieni, Vieni," or "The Merry Go Round Broke Down." Possibly even another "Music Goes Round and Round." The German title, which translated literally means "To Me You Are Beautiful" or freely, "You're Swell, Baby," is, of course, confusing to non-Teutonic listeners.

While the number is one on which swing bands go to town, it comes from a Yiddish musical comedy tagged "I Would If I Could" and sold about 10,000 copies in five years. Three months ago Secunda, who is president of the Jewish Society of Composers, sold his rights in it for $30 to Sammy Cahn and Saul Chaplin, who turned it into an English hit after plugging it in several New York night spots.

Mrs. Winterbotham was a member of the board of the Visiting Nurse association and a leader in the Colonial Dames and in the guild of St. Chrysostom's church. Her home was at 6 Scott street. WPA WILL DROP 25,000 ELIGIBLE FOR INSURANCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—From 25,000 to 30,000 persons will have to leave work relief jobs this month because they are eligible for unemployment insurance checks, the Works Progress administration ruled today.

Aubrey Williams, acting WPA administrator, announced the policy that workers entitled to the insurance benefits could not retain work relief jobs.

However, he said those dismissed would be reëmployed, if sufficient funds were available, as soon as they ceased receiving unemployment compensation.

State laws provide for the payment of benefits to the insured unemployed for periods of from 14 to 16 weeks. Payments already are being made in Wisconsin and are scheduled to begin this month in 21 other states and the District of Columbia.

DEVICE TO TELL FLOOD DANGER WILL BE TESTED

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A model flood forecasting system, with a radio finger on the pulse of the rivers to warn of danger, soon will be tested by flood conscious Pennsylvania.

Dr. James Bogardus, secretary of forests and waters, said today it might be months before the setup is completed, but that experiments could be made before long. "We have something here by which we hope to make impossible repetition of the disastrous floods of 1936," he added.

One hundred stations have been established along the main waterways to register the amount of rainfall, from which trained observers will determine whether streams are going to swirl out of control. A radio system, linking all the rivers, will tap out messages, constantly telling of conditions on the streams. This information will flow into a headquarters station, and thus warnings will be broadcast.

Skaters Happy as Temperature in City Drops

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE lower temperatures Chicagoland has been enjoying during the last two days have done much to improve ice skating conditions and snow flurries have led those who enjoy sleigh rides to believe that perhaps they will be able to have some this winter.

One of the newest outdoor ice rinks is at the Dunham Woods Riding club in Wayne. The rink, which lies between the tennis courts and the road, is used not only by the members who live in or near Wayne but by those who live in town and go to the club over week-ends. There are floodlights for night skating, and a simple turning of a switch provides music night or day.

The club hopes to have an ice carnival some time before the skating season ends. Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., is one of the best feminine skaters in Wayne and J. McWilliams Stone is one of the best masculine skaters. Raymond O. Mitchell and Ray Johns also cut fancy capers on the ice and so does pretty Mrs. Roy Tuchbreiter.

Indian Hill to Hold Carnival Next Saturday.

The Indian Hill club is planning its annual children's ice carnival for next Saturday. "Weather permitting," words that are included in the majority of announcements of outdoor events in the winter, are included, and there also is a line stating that in case of bad weather the event will be postponed a week.

The children will wear costumes and there will be prizes. Only youngsters who are in the grand parade, which will start at 2:30 o'clock, will be eligible for prizes. Skating races for prizes will follow the parade, and the serving of refreshments and the awarding of the prizes in the German village will conclude the afternoon's entertainment.

The Winter club in Lake Forest plans to hold its costume carnival on the last Saturday in January or the first one in February. The winter hasn't been an entire disappointment to skating-minded youngsters in Lake Forest, for Coach Sweeney said yesterday that there have been 28 days when skating was good at the Winter club.

Tomorrow's program for young people between the ages of 7 and 16 will feature races in costume and games, as well as an exhibit of figure skating. The afternoon's festivities will start at 2:30 o'clock, and will conclude with cocoa and sandwiches in the grill.

Next Friday's carnival for parents will start with a dinner in the grill at 6 o'clock, to be followed by skating, or curling on the new curling rink; tobogganing [perhaps] and music, and an exhibit of skating by adult members of the Figure Skating club, with Mrs. Lyman Drake in charge.

A team from Milwaukee will be matched with curlers of the Skokie at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Charles J. Watson and William A. O'Grady are in charge of curling. Charles H. Poole is chairman of winter sports.

Miss Adele Hulbert to Be Bride Today.

Today's bride is Miss Adele Evertsen Hulbert, daughter of Mrs. Milan H. Hulbert. She will be married to Sheldon Thomas White, son of Mrs. Robert White of 1366 Dearborn parkway, at 4 o'clock in the chapel of St. James' church, the Rev. Duncan H. Browne officiating. Only the families will be present.

There will be a small reception at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 1400 Lake Shore drive. The bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. William A. Merigold, will be in the receiving line.

The bride will wear her mother's lovely old moire and satin wedding gown, the same one in which her sister and matron of honor, Mrs. Frank W. Renwick Jr., was married several months ago. Robert White Jr. will be his brother's best man, and ushering will be another brother, Edwin M. White and Mr. Renwick.

Miss Helen Hulbert has come from New York to see her brother, Milan H. Hulbert Jr., give their sister in marriage. She has been taking part in a round of prenuptial festivities which reached a climax last night at a dinner given at home by the senior Mrs. White. Young Mr. White and his bride will motor south on their wedding trip, and will be at home after Feb. 1 on East Bellevue place.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Vinson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Ernest Vinson of Cleveland, O., to Richard Kimball, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cook Kimball of Chicago will take place in Dallas, Tex., on Jan. 29.

Miss Vinson and Mr. Kimball have chosen Dallas in which to be married because it is between Chicago, where Mr. Kimball's parents live, and New Mexico, where Dr. and Mrs. Vinson are spending the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Kimball, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Marjorie Kimball, and their son, Nelson Kimball, will go to Dallas for the ceremony.

Prenuptial Parties for Two Couples.

For two brides and bridegrooms of next week, their wedding attendants and close friends, the week-end will bring a revival of the hectic gayety that distinguished Christmas week. Colin Campbell and Ralph W. Applegate will start the entertaining this

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We've been hearing reports about the "glamor shampoo." What is it? A special shampoo that reconditions as it cleanses and that's got magic in its liquid depths in the way of bringing out the highlights of hair that's ordinarily mousey. We had one—and didn't realize until after we came out with the crowning glory all gleaming that our hair had been so lacking in the luster that is more than half the secret of hair beauty.

This shampoo is especially effective for the woman who's hair is streaked with gray—and not too dramatically. It seems to burnish up the silver strands and give the dark ones added life and luster. Women are going pretty crazy about it, we learned. This glamor shampoo is a beauty shop service.

Half the women we know are reporting trouble with their face powder these days. We want to remind them that the face powder itself hasn't changed, but that their skins have. It all goes back to the perennial problem of oiling. Powder on a rough skin surface is going to look pretty awful. It will not go on smoothly and it will, in some strange fashion, look anywhere from one to three shades lighter.

The thing to do is to redouble your efforts at creaming, especially at night. Use your pet tissue cream as you've never used it before. And by all means use a powder base.

But the oiling program is most important. Changing powders in midwinter isn't going to make a single bit of difference. It's your skin care program, not the powder, that needs changing. And while you're oiling your face and neck give the hands a whirl, too. Ten minutes a day spent on your hands isn't too much. A good greasy cream really worked in for an interval is worth a dozen quick swipes with cream or lotion during the day.

Orthodox Churches Open Observance of Christmas

The Orthodox celebration of Christmas began yesterday for Chicago's thousands of members of various national churches of the near east and central Europe. The observances continue until next Saturday. Discrepancies between the older Julian calendar and the Gregorian make the difference of dating between eastern Orthodox churches and the churches of the west. Typical of the nativity rituals of Orthodox churches were those observed at Holy Trinity Russian Orthodox cathedral, 1121 North Leavitt street. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Leonty presided.

Good Morning!

If I were a censor I would never, never have passed "They Won't Forget."

It fosters prejudice.

Well done? Yes. Perhaps if it were not so well done it would not be so dangerous.

In a commercial school a young northern professor, Robert Hale, instructs a roomful of pretty girls in shorthand. One of the pupils, laughing, voluptuous looking Mary Clay, is "soft" on Hale, though he gives no sign of either noticing or being concerned re her attitude.

The head of the school, Prof. Buxton, comes in and sharply orders a holiday. Doesn't Hale know that this is Confederate Memorial day?

Hale flushes at the sarcasm. He hadn't known it. Where he had come from the occasion was known as Decoration day—and was honored on a different date . . .

Later—Mary Clay is found murdered in the school basement.

First suspicion falls on the terrified Negro janitor. [You are thoroughly convinced he's not guilty.] Then it is learned that Hale had returned to the school to correct some papers.

"Little Andy," an unscrupulous district attorney who seeks a higher office, and realizing that a conviction of Hale would popularize him, goes to town. . . . A famous lawyer from the north comes to defend Hale—and has to be escorted from the train by police, so furious are the townfolk over his arrival. Sinister and determined wait Mary Clay's three brothers . . . They know how it's going to come out whether anybody else does or not.

A ruthless and clever newspaper reporter is diabolically active. His paper persistently and sensationally spurs crowd prejudice. To quote a bit of the dialog, "the civil war is being all fought over again."

Hectically in the arena is the youth Mary Clay had been "going with." An excitable fellow who tells one story here, another there.

Despite all that's done for him, Robert Hale is convicted and sentenced to the electric chair. The governor, feeling the evidence against him purely circumstantial, commutes the sentence to life imprisonment. But Mary Clay's brothers and a dark and silent handful of other men waylay the train bearing Hale to the penitentiary.

The picture closes on a scene between young Mrs. Hale, the district attorney, and the newspaper reporter. As she leaves the room the reporter says to the prosecutor:

"I wonder if he really DID do it?"

"They Won't Forget" is a sickening picture. An unnecessary picture. In a world full of new hates and fears, why for the love of Mike haul out a lot of old ones to rile folks up and make them miserable?

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Grand Larceny That's Grand.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 7.—In "In Old Chicago" Zanuck gave a scene at a prairie grave to Alice Brady, and before she finished with that particular footage the Broadway veteran had just about wrapped up the picture as a personal triumph.

Alice Brady steals a movie.

In "Sadie McKee" Edward Arnold did a drunk bit so well that it made him a star overnight.

Thomas Mitchell and Raymond Massey, in "Hurricane," handled their parts so adroitly that the stars actually became subordinate players.

In "They Won't Forget" Gloria Dickson and Trevor Bardette ran away with the flicker. . . . Jack Haley did the same thing in "Pigskin Parade." . . . Nat Pendleton, in "Life Begins at College," had the Ritz brothers, no mean scene stealers themselves, at their wits' ends to hold him off.

In "Dead End," Marjorie Main, as the mother of the gangster, and Claire Trevor, as his sweetheart, turned in a bit of grand larceny that was big-time stuff.

Walter Brennan, in "Come and Get It," took the play away from Edward Arnold and Joel McCrea. . . . Andrea Leeds in "Stage Door," playing a minor rôle, almost overpowered Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers. . . . Gracie Allen gave it to Fred Astaire in "Damsel in Distress."

Rosalind Russell in "Man-proof" grabbed major honors with one speech, tailor-made for picture swiping. . . . Humphrey Bogart, in the part of the "Petrified Forest" killer, grabbed himself a long term contract. . . . Charles Boyer and Greta Garbo learned to protect themselves in the celluloid clinches, but veteran Maria Ouspenskaya, in the card game with Boyer, converted him into her sounding board. . . . The late Ted Healy was a positive genius at scene stealing. . . . Performers were always scared to work with him.

Then there's what the Broadway crowd calls "the Winter Garden tricks" of scene stealing. . . . Vaudeville and musical comedy performers, like Jack Oakie, W. C. Fields, Patsy Kelly, Fannie Brice, Reginald Gardiner, and Ray Bolger, know all of them. . . . Oakie, of course, majored in the art of celluloid grand larceny, and the duels of Oakie and Milton Berle are really something.

The Winter Garden school of scene stealing is a physical technique. . . . A performer suddenly moves, while the star is reading a line to him, or delivers a line and then grins into the camera. . . . Jim Cagney has a habit of suddenly pounding his clenched fist into the other hand. . . . Ned Sparks, Allan Mowbray, Edward Everett Horton, Eric Blore, Henry Armetta—cagey stars never feel happy when they're in a scene, for there are tricks to all trades, as the star learns when he or she looks at the day's rushes.

Basil Rathbone in one scene in "Tovarich" left Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer and Melville Cooper flapping in the wind. . . . Fritz Feld did the same thing in "I Met Him in Paris." . . . Frank Jenks, as the taxicab driver in "100 Men and a Girl," wasn't on screen long, but while he was there he stole the picture from Deanna Durbin, Adolphe Menjou, Mischa Auer, and Stokowski. . . . You'll agree that's wholesale burglary.

Seventy-four year old C. Aubrey Smith, who spends his spare time playing cricket at Griffith park here, is the oldest scene stealer in the business. . . . In "Garden of Allah," the unknown Alan Marshall, as the French officer, completely took the play away from Marlene Dietrich in the farewell scene on the desert edge.

It gave Hollywood a resounding chuckle, however, when Maxie Rosenbloom, the fighter, made Fredric March and Walter Connolly appear like cinema novices in the telephone scene in "Nothing Sacred." . . . Wedged between two of the canniest performers in the business, Rosenbloom ran away with the scene, using them as stooges. . . . Lionel Stander, as the press agent in "A Star Is Born," did very handsomely for himself. . . . Ditto Gale Sondergaard in "Anthony Adverse."

Kid performers like Shirley Temple, Jane Withers, Freddie Bartholomew, Judy Garland, and Deanna Durbin are odds-on favorites to swipe scenes from their elders. . . . It takes another kid to swipe scenes from them, and the name of this juvenile burglar is Mickey Rooney. . . . Only adult who ever stole a scene from a kid performer was resourceful W. C. Fields, when he booted Baby Leroy in the diapers.

Joan Davis, vaudeville product, is nobody's chump on celluloid, and Charlie McCarthy, in Goldwyn's "Follies," does some plain and fancy second story burgling. . . . Elizabeth Risdon, as the mother of Joan Crawford in "Mannequin," might have stolen the picture from any combination less effective than La Crawford and Spencer Tracy. . . . Very difficult to outswipe Tracy, who underplays scenes by keying his delivery to a low register. . . . In "Big City," one of the worst pictures of the year, Tracy's underplaying made Luise Ranier appear almost hysterical by contrast.

Ralph Morgan, Gregory Ratoff, Helen Westley, Brian Donlevy, Beulah Bondi, Reginald Owen, Henry Stevenson, Una Merkel, are others who come readily to mind in this connection. . . . Etienne Giradot is still another. . . . Little Giradot's mannerisms and his delivery of lines serve to focus attention completely upon him when he is on the stage.

Dennis Moore, Allen Jenkins, George Raft, and Leo Carrillo rate mention. . . . Carrillo is a past master at it. . . . Raft, in one picture, had the other actors crazy by flipping a coin continuously. . . . Any actor who uses a cigar is a potential picture burglar. . . . Edward G. Robinson, W. C. Fields, Jack Benny, Ken Murray, and Carrillo are expert cigar users.

I call this grand larceny grand because it is from the ranks of scene stealers that stars emerge. . . . So you are in complete sympathy with these bit players and second leads and featured players who grab their one big opportunity and go to town in pursuit of stardom.

It's nice, too, to see a veteran like John Barrymore grab major honors in "True Confessions." . . . Nobody was happier at John's scene pilfering that Carole Lombard. . . . They've been close pals for years. . . . In "Wells Fargo" unknown Barney Siegel, as the Indian pal of Bob Burns, stole scenes without uttering more than ugh-ugh.

Turbans Add Spring Touch to Costumes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Every season new small, bright hats make the best headlines. Such hats offer the only possible way to provide a spring color note with fur and other winter coats. Turbans return each year at this time. Those of the present season have different skull lines and still more unusual drapings, twistings, and swathings. Even the materials are definitly different.

Roman striped silks are used for some eye blinding effects, with long streamers of the silk cut on the bias, descending almost to the waist, sometimes longer.

Thin dull crêpes are worked into smooth, flat folds as narrow as a thin tuck. Peaks are formed and even huge scrolls on the sides and front are achieved with this folded formation. Turbans are small and shallow, fitting the skull smoothly and leaving the soft curls of the hair visible. Another midseason material for such snappy headgear is corded ribbon, with a new gray white tone taking the fashion spotlight. These ribbed ribbon hats are tied in crisp bows that stick perkily high in the air. They achieve a feminine flattery for every personality, and are especially attractive with fur coats, if the color contrast is dramatic.

For the limited clothes allowance there are fabric hats, simulated knitted and crocheted affairs, that unquestionably fit better and pack better than anything ever invented. They're not the uninteresting beehive variety in shape, but are high and twisted at smart new angles like the more expensive models in other fabrics. New pastel tints and plenty of vivid shades of jade, green gold, raspberry, blue, and dark street shades of brown, navy, and black are available.

Dr. Mann announced that the subject arose from previous addresses from Sinai pulpit on the subject of relationships of Jews and Christians. On Monday night the Rev. Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of Newark university, will speak before Sinai forum on the subject, "When the Half-Gods Go—the Legacy of Superstition."

Waukegan's Blind Given Red Tipped White Canes

The Waukegan Lions club distributed red tipped white canes yesterday to Waukegan's twenty-seven blind residents. The Waukegan council recently adopted such canes as the official designation for the blind, and ordered all motorists to halt and allow pedestrians carrying them to pass. Adoption of the canes is being urged by the Lions as a national safety measure for the blind.

'Faust' Given a Performance of Rare Beauty

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A Frenchman who has been dust these forty-five years and an Italian who is very much alive today succeeded last evening in giving to an Auditorium theater production of "Faust" a beauty and distinction in which minor faults of performance were forgotten for minutes and quarter hours at a time.

The Frenchman is Charles François Gounod, composer of the music; the Italian, Carlo Peroni, conductor of the San Carlo Opera company. The two worked so closely together that it is almost impossible to distinguish between their contributions. One can only run off ecstatically at the typewriter on the delicacy and expressiveness and nobility which resulted from so happy a collaboration.

Mr. Peroni approaches each performance as if it were the last one he is ever to conduct. No phrase seems perfunctory, no passage is treated simply as a necessary evil which must be faced as resolutely as possible. On the contrary, periods glow with the director's determination to restore to well worn surfaces the meaningful brightness of the composer's thought.

Among the singers the happiest seemed to be Leola Turner, the Marguerite of the evening. Her "Jewel Song" boasted a naïve, ingenue-like rapture which managed to stay well within the frame of this restrained, Gallic art. Speaking of frames, Miss Turner fidgeted a bit when she was sitting in Faust's bookcase waiting to be lighted up in the first scene. It seemed in the dark as if the books were walking away.

Dimitri Onofrei makes the most youthful of all imaginable Fausts. Even when he was playing the ancient sage a certain dewiness in his voice forced upon a listener the conviction that any one irreverent enough to jerk off those white whiskers and that rusty bathrobe would reveal to the audience a philosopher barely old enough to vote.

Rallying from an early tendency to swallow bits of his phrases, Mr. Onofrei achieved in the duo of the garden scene a magic of musical characterization quite sufficient to make any inexperienced Gretchen breathe an "Oui" when she really meant "Non." And the tenor's voice took on a hushed, ecstatic quality which suited in admirable fashion both the music and the setting.

We like our Satans a little less sulphurous than Harold Kravitt's Mephistopheles of last evening. He, like Mario Valle in the rôle of Valentine, could sing in a quieter, more Frenchified way and still keep his characterizations sufficiently powerful. Charlotte Bruno, delectably feminine even when she is stuck with such male parts as Siebel, gave a smooth and charming performance of the "Flower Song."

Dinel Ericourt, French pianist announced for a Studebaker theater concert tomorrow, will play on April 24 instead.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he finds the front door ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee. At his cousin Daphne's, James later meets the girl. She is Sally West, sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother, and herself. Jocko, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is run over and killed. Sally is in fear of Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, who is her guardian and was her late Aunt Clementa's trustee; also his wife, Hildegarde, and the latter's cousin, Henri Klemeyer, who wants to marry Sally. The money Sally's aunt left to Jocko comes next to her and, if she dies, to Ambrose. Jocko, after receiving a letter from his dying aunt, was pushed off a cliff. After the accident the letter is missing and Jocko cannot remember its contents. The aunt, supposedly bedridden, discovered that her nocturnal home, Rere place, was being used for some criminal purpose and found and hid the evidence. Sally and James fall in love. James drives Sally to Rere place, where Jocko is staying. A driverless motor lorry nearly smashes into them. Jocko dreams that the evidence his aunt hid is placed behind the family emblem of a bat. They conduct a futile search of the house. While putting his car up James is knocked out by Henri and put in the hayloft. Regaining consciousness, he escapes through the hay chute. Meanwhile Jocko goes to investigate the cellars and Sally is confronted by Henri and Hildegarde. They admit they intend to kill them. Sally is chloroformed and awakes to find Ambrose beside her.

INSTALMENT XLII.

FACING DEATH.

Ambrose went on speaking in the same wild way.

"There will have to be an accident, but I'll make them give you some more chloroform first. I don't want you to be hurt. It will be a car accident, you see, and the car will be smashed and the three of you will be killed. It is Hildegarde's idea. She has very clever ideas, but I oughtn't to have married her—she doesn't really understand me. I ought to have married you. She always says that three thousand a year wouldn't have been enough, but it would—with you. I could have got rid of Cray's End. It has always cost too much." His hand dropped from her shoulder and he repeated the last two words in a deeply tragic tone—"Too much."

Sally's mind began to work again. She thought. "He's mad."

Ambrose Sylvester went on.

"I want to tell you why I married her. You thought it was because of her money, but she hasn't got any. She hadn't a penny."

Sally sat up.

"What are you talking about?"

"Hildegarde. She hadn't any money. I didn't marry her for her money. I married her because she would have ruined me if I hadn't."

Sally thought, "That's true. He means that." She said:

"How?"

He groaned.

"Sally, I am telling you everything. You don't know what a relief it is to tell you. She knew something. She knows—a lot of things. She could have ruined me. I had to marry her."

"Was it the books?" said Sally. "You didn't write them, did you? They were Tim Merrivale's. Was that what Hildegarde knew?"

"She could have proved it," said Ambrose. "She had a letter of Tim's. It was about 'Links in the Chain.' I don't know how she got hold of it. I thought I had burned them all."

Sally said, "I see——"

"So I had to marry her. You see that, don't you? The money just poured away. And then there was no more coming in, and I had to have money—I'd got into the way of it. Once you've got into the way of things you can't go back. Though, mark you, Sally, I tried—you've got to believe that. You see, I'd used all Tim's stuff by then, but I didn't give up without a struggle. I wrote a book of my own, but the publishers wouldn't have it—they said it would ruin me. So what could I do?

"I wasn't the only one she could have ruined. I don't know how she knew the things, but she did know them. But it isn't enough to know—you've got to have proof. And that's where Hildegarde was so clever—she had her spies, her jackals, and they saw to it that there was proof. Rich people, powerful people, highly placed people—there's nothing they won't pay to keep themselves out of the mud."

"Did you make a lot of money, Ambrose?"

He flung himself back into the chair again. His hands were shaking.

"Do you think I like it? And there was the risk. If you push people too far they stop caring about the mud, or about anything. I know, because I've felt like that. I came very near to shooting myself the night before I was married." He groaned. "I'd better have done it."

Sally nodded.

"I don't know why you're telling me all this." But in her heart she knew. It was because she was as good as dead already, and dead men tell no tales.

He said: "I must tell some one, and it doesn't matter—now. Besides, I want you to understand. You see, Clementa found out. She used to get out of bed and walk about the house at night. Every one thought she was bedridden, but she wasn't, and one night the nurse caught her. So then we knew what had happened to the book."

"It was Hildegarde's book. She wrote everything down in it. I always said it was madness to write things down like that, but she said she couldn't keep it all in her head. There were dates, and names, and places, and the names of the people from whom the information came, and what she paid them for it. She kept it in a very secret place. Nobody could have found it if he didn't know the secret. But one day it was gone. Sally, I nearly shot myself that day. But we never thought about Clementa. We thought it was one of the servants. . . . And we waited, and we waited. You don't know what it's like waiting for the roof to fall in. And then we found out about Clementa and we knew she'd got it, but she wouldn't speak. Hildegarde tried to make her, but she just laughed at her—and died. And Hildegarde swore Clementa had told you, and she wanted you put out of the way, but I wouldn't have it. And then—you remember Holhrunn?"

"Yes," said Sally in a very low voice, "I remember Holbrunn."

"There was a letter for Jocko—from Clementa—and he got it at breakfast with all of us there, and you stopped him when he began to read it aloud. Well, after that I couldn't hold out any longer—against Hildegarde. We couldn't possibly have let Jocko read that letter and get away with it—it wasn't possible. But the accident didn't come off. He wasn't killed. It would have been too dangerous to try again then, and the fall had made him forget—he didn't remember anything about the letter. So Hildegarde let him go back to India."

Sally's lip curled a little. She wasn't feeling afraid any longer. There didn't seem to be room for it. What she felt was a vivid horror, a vivid interest, a kind of quivering excitement.

Ambrose Sylvester pushed his chair back.

"It was Henri's idea that he might marry you. But Hildegarde was against it from the first. She wanted you and Jocko right out of the way, because then all the money would have come to us, and with six thousand a year we could have got along. You see, the other business was too risky—I always told her so—and if we'd had your three thousand a year and Jocko's we could have given it up and settled down, and that would have been a great relief to me, because it was getting on my nerves."

Sally thought, "How wild he looks! He is mad! He couldn't talk like that if he was sane. Hildegarde's bad, and he's mad, and we've all come to the end. I suppose Jocko's dead. I should like to see James again. . . ."

The silence went on between them. The dreadful word "murder" seemed to have stopped all the other words which might have been said.

In the silence Sally began to hear something—something so faint and far away that she would never have heard it at all if every other sound had not been stopped. It was in itself hardly a sound, but it went on endlessly, steadily, regularly, like the throb of an engine or the ticking of a clock, only it wasn't either of these things. And all at once Sally knew what it was. "Jocko's shut into one of the cellars, and he's kicking at the door." Something rushed in upon her with an intoxicating force—joy—hope. With the road broken off before her and her own foot touching the brink this half-heard sound had brought her back. If Jocko was alive life was worth fighting for. If Jocko was alive they might have a fighting chance together.

afternoon with a cocktail party at the Racquet club for Miss Vesta Culbertson and her fiancé, Robert F. Carr, who will be married next Saturday.

Tonight Mr. Carr's sisters and brothers-in-law, the Edgar L. Marstons of New York and Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, will give a dinner-dance at the House on the Roof of the Hotel Sherman.

Another group of young people will dine and dance at the Shoreacres club at a party the Gorden P. Kelleys are giving for her sister, Miss Annie May Henry, and Michael Cudahy, who are to be married on Tuesday. The Kelleys have provided a surprise in the way of decorations and entertainment.

Miss Judy Butler is giving a luncheon at home in Lake Forest tomorrow for Miss Culbertson and Mr. Carr. Bradley Eben and Joseph Griffin will entertain at cocktails for the two tomorrow afternoon, and Miss Martha Carr, a cousin of young Mr. Carr, will give a buffet supper. Miss Carr, who will be a bridesmaid for Miss Culbertson, is engaged to Peter G. Moon, who will be one of Mr. Carr's ushers.

Gaylord Donnelleys Are Parents of Son.

A son, their first child, was born yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley. The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris and Miss Valeria Harris will leave on Jan. 15 for three months on the Island of Tobago, in the West Indies. Mrs. Harris left the breakfast of the Drama league yesterday to see her son, Huntington, leave for Washington, D. C.

Eugenie Leontovich gave a fascinating talk at the breakfast at which members of the "Tovarich" company were guests. The meeting was held in the Blackstone hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tilton Bowen Jr. will give a small dinner-dance at their home in Lake Forest this evening. After dinner a few other friends will join the party for dancing.

Foreign Relations Council Meets Today.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations is opening its 1938 season with a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today in the Palmer house. A symposium on American foreign policy will be held, with Harley F. MacNair, Ernest B. Price, and Harry D. Gideonse as the speakers.

Each speaker will make a fifteen minute address and then the meeting will be thrown open for discussion from the floor. The rule requiring members to confine themselves to questions will be suspended and members may make one minute statements.

Mr. MacNair and Mr. Price will discuss "American Policy in the Far East." Mr. Gideonse will speak on "American Policy and the Ludlow Amendment." At the speakers' table will be Laird Bell, president of the council, and Mrs. Bell; the Walter S. Brewsters, and the William S. Monroes.

At the next meeting of the council on Wednesday, Reuben Markham will speak on "The Balkans," with emphasis on Rumania.

The Chicago and North Shore Vassar clubs will give a luncheon today at 1 o'clock at the Vassar House restaurant for a Vassar alumna, Ann Mundy, who will appear at the last of Mrs. Gilbert Smith's 11 o'clock matinées in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house Monday. Miss Mundy, whose home is in St. Paul, is a pianist. A percentage of the receipts from tickets to the Monday concert sold through Vassar alumnæ will go toward the Chicago Vassar scholarship fund.

Three Interesting Concerts Tomorrow.

It will be difficult for some to decide which of three concerts to attend tomorrow afternoon, for all start at the same hour, 3:30 o'clock.

In Orchestra hall the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra, led by Karl Krueger, will play; at the Great Northern theater the Illinois Symphony orchestra will have Miss Janet Fairbank as soloist and Carl Bricken as guest conductor, and in the Auditorium Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, will be making his only Chicago appearance this season.

The Menuhin recital is one of a series of concerts sponsored by Northwestern university. Miss Fairbank is making her first public appearance since she studied last summer at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, so her many friends are anxious to hear her. And many Chicagoans have more than an academic interest in the Kansas City orchestra, for Mr. Krueger's wife is an ex-Chicagoan, the former Emita Jewett.

Mrs. Krueger's cousin, Mrs. Howard Linn, has a box for the concert, and among others who have boxes are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Miss Harriet Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, the Charles B. Goodspeeds, the Mitchell Follansbees, and the William F. Benoists.

The John C. Murphys and the Shreve Badgers are having box parties for the concert in which Miss Fairbank is singing. The Charles H. Swifts will be there, too, as guests of Miss Fairbank's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank.

Miss Fairbank and Mr. Bricken will appear with the Illinois Symphony orchestra again next Tuesday night in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank are giving a supper party for their daughter at their North State street home following Tuesday's program. It will be almost a farewell party for Miss Fairbank, because she will leave in ten days or two weeks for a trip to Germany and Austria.

Glenn Griswold and his bride, the former Miss Denny Prager, daughter of Frank Prager of New York, are spending a week at the Blackstone hotel on their way to Tucson, Ariz., for a month's honeymoon. Mr. Griswold is a native Chicagoan and a former editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce. He and his bride will make their home at 812 Park avenue, New York.

Costume Ball.

"A Night in Versailles" is the name the Overseas Exposition of American Art has given to the costume ball to be held this evening in the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel. King Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette will be entertained by a royal pageant enacted by groups from the design departments of art schools.

Practical and Flattering

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Practical, easy to make, and flattering is this simple daytime frock which uses paneling to great advantage. The center front panel is broken with two cross bands of self-fabric stitched for detail. The waistline, without benefit of belt, fits snugly. In the skirt are two inverted plaits. The sleeves are puffed and the cuffs match the contrasting collar, which is cut round and adorns the high neckline.

All types of silk and woolen make up attractively in this pattern. It's the sort of utilitarian frock you can wear to work, school, and informal social events all season long. It's youthful and yet looks well on heavier figures.

If you like, make a rever neckline instead of the high one, and have a tailored belt at the waist if you so desire.

Style No. 2047 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Many women who make their own window draperies find it tedious and difficult to measure and sew the plaits at the top.

Along comes a grand little time and temper saver. It makes possible the arrangement of triple plaits, double plaits, single plaits or box plaits. All you do is lay the material at the back of the top of your finished draperies. Simply fit the material over the ready-made plaits and there you are!

With this plaiting, which comes by the yard, are special hook pins which can be attached at the back of each plait in a jiffy and which fit over your curtain rod. You slip them out when the draperies are sent to the laundry.

This handy aid to the housewife-seamstress is reasonably priced.

Haste Makes Waste Even in Discipline

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I don't know how it is with you, but I do know how it is with me, when a child does something you think needs reproof, either slight or severe. If you wait until the next day to deal with it, I know that in nine cases out of ten you'll find the slight reproof wasn't needed, or that the severe one should have been only a light one. And you'll be glad.

Sometimes our extreme annoyance or quick temper will make us "fly off the handle." We either do a lot of talking or a good deal of scolding, or feel that real punishment is in order.

Usually these quick reactions make us do something that is, in the first place, quite unjust, and in the second place, quite bewildering to our children. When the offense is slight if we could only be made to count ten, twenty or thirty before saying a word or doing a single thing, it would be better all around; and when a more severe infringement occurs, if some outside check would make us wait until the next day to deal with it, the results would usually be better for both us and our son or daughter.

The trouble is that we pay too much attention to every little happening that is out of the way, and in almost every instance we exaggerate the offense.

"Hold everything" would be a good reminder for us to give ourselves, and if you are at all like me, such a reminder would save you a lot of regret, or even that more disturbing thing, real remorse.

If we aren't the cleanest people on the face of the earth, goodness only knows that it isn't because we don't use enough soap. I recently read a report, in a current issue of the trade paper devoted to cosmetics and toilet requisites, that the latest official figures available, those for 1935, reveal that the business in toilet soap alone, at retail, amounts to some $107,000,000 a year. America consumes more soap per capita than any other country in the world.

This is good news, really, in face of the propaganda often heard that soap is not good for the skin. I recall that, not so many years ago, one heard this propaganda issued frequently, not only against use of soap on the face, but against too frequent shampooing. The theory was that one would rob the skin of its natural oils and the scalp of its oil, too, did she attack them often with soap. But that proved to be all poppycock. Now even beauticians themselves are loudest in advocating the use of soap and water once a day on the face. And it is the smart move in their place, too, for the benefits of cosmetics as they sell them are infinitely greater on a clean face.

Soap and water do not and need not conflict with cosmetic sales in view of the fact that women are trained to the knowledge that a cleansing cream is good to use before the actual soap and water facial, since the cream softens the pore content and gets the face ready for its good cleansing. And women know, too, that whatever it is that affects the modern skin to make it as dry as it is known to be, is not soap and water but other contributing factors, such as atmospheric conditions, excessive dieting so that fat-making foods are eliminated, nervous, hectic pursuits in work and in leisure hours.

It is interesting to note, in connection with the enormous soap consumption, that it is what has built the tremendous growth in popularity of bath preparations. Our baths are rituals comparable with, if not exceeding, those of Rome at the height of its bath luxury. Some of the popularity of bath preparations is due to the water softening appeal, which is important in hard water areas, together with the beneficial skin softening and conditioning effects.

Nail preparations, deodorants and bath products are named as the fastest growing group of products in the cosmetic industry in the past few years.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The only reason for drawing the defenders' trumps as quickly as possible is to prevent them from ruffing declarer's side tricks. It naturally follows that when there are no side suit tricks, or when they are at best potential, requiring establishment, there is no logic in rushing to draw trumps. Today's hand is one type in which trump drawing should be deferred.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 club	1 spade	Pass	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	Pass	2 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the club eight. East's jack lost to the ace and declarer took stock of his resources. The losing tricks appeared to be one club, two diamonds, and two hearts, assuming that no spade tricks need be lost and that the heart ace was "on side." The only side suit tricks readily available to declarer were the diamond ace and heart king, and these could not get away. There was no need to protect them by drawing the opponents' trumps. Declarer saw how he might make an extra trick if the opponents were not too alert.

Having nothing to lose by trying declarer led a low diamond toward dummy. West split his honors, the ace won, and a diamond was returned. East ducked and the king won. West, seeing no need for a shift, continued with clubs. East's queen won and now East, not knowing where the last club was, laid down the club king. Declarer ruffed, drew the outstanding spades in three rounds, and then led a third diamond. East's queen won and now the heart shift came—too late. After cashing the ace East led a low heart. Declarer hopped up with the king and cashed his thirteenth diamond, discarding dummy's losing heart.

True, the defenders had coöperated nobly by their failure to shift to hearts before losing their last diamond stopper. But, at least, declarer had done his part in trying for an extra trick in the only way available.

Strength in Union.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This beautiful pieced pattern was not designed by Mrs. Malaprop, but by a serious minded woman conversant with the varous political difficulties of 1850 and 1851. These pieced blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with plain white blocks and on the diagonal. The coverlet is finished with plain half and quarter blocks, a seven and one-half inch border, and a one-half inch bias binding. The most popular color combinations of that era were red, red prints, green and green prints combined with white. Modern tastes favor solid colors in orange, green and white.

Oddments in Food Line Are Passed Along

ODDMENTS ABOUT FOODS AND EATERY—Have you ever eaten popcorn salad? If you like novelties try folding popped corn into a fruit salad mixture of diced apple, grapes, and chopped prunes which have been marinated in French dressing.

And have you tried mashed squash seasoned with butter, salt, pepper, and a little sugar, into which coarsely chopped peanuts have been mixed? Or have you made jellied fruit salad with a base of plain gelatin and pomegranate juice? This is really very good and quite piquant in flavor. Squeeze the pomegranates as you would oranges, to extract the deep red juice.

Synthetic eggs for use in industrial baking have been developed by German chemists from the albumen found in fish. . . . Evaporated milk is the best seller in the canned goods field. Over two billion cans are sold in a year. And, by the way, there is a great deal of difference between evaporated milk and condensed milk. Sugar has been added to the latter, sometimes a very high percentage.

Old-fashioned New England baked beans now may be purchased in the bean pot. . . . There's a lovely new nut fudge sauce on the market for use with ice creams and puddings. It's made of homogenized cashew nuts and chocolate, and it's smooth and thick as a fine cornstarch pudding.

The crescent roll originated with a Viennese baker in the 16th century. During a siege of the city by Turks he shaped his bread in crescent form to represent the Turkish insignia and bade his patrons "gobble up" their enemies, even as they gobbled their bread. The rolls at once became very popular and have been baked in this baker's house continuously since 1585.

A former speaker of the Vermont house of representatives, 75 years old, eats pie three times a day and has 110 favorite pies. He thinks that pie eating has had a great deal to do with his present good health.

That oriental favorite, bird's nest soup, actually is made from the dried nest of a swallow. . . . Rattlesnake steaks are said to be fairly good eating. . . . Many persons who can forget that crow meat comes from crows think it's as good as any dark fleshed fowl.

The candy consumption in this country last year was 16 pounds per person. Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts produce nearly three-fourths of the commercially made candy. . . . There are 26,780 different kinds of avocados. . . . From Porto Rico to our markets come chayotes, one-seeded squash; gandules [chick peas]; yautia, a root vegetable, and breadfruit, which tastes something like potatoes when cooked. Also papaya, with orange meat and black seeds, which is served cold and eaten like muskmelon, and guavas, which make fine jelly.

Clearance and Sale Interviews

With Those Who Take Part in Them

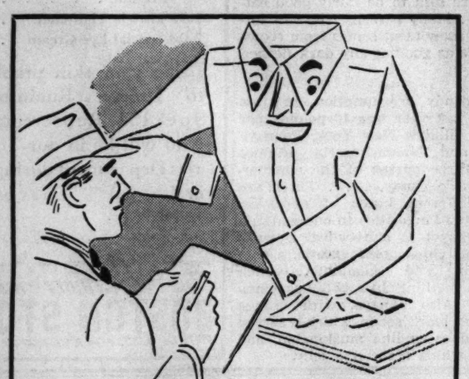
The Suits

"Why are you in the Clearance?" "I am one of several hundred suits that came in last spring and fall—they're a little tired of seeing us around—so here we are, greatly reduced."

"Are There Many of You?" "Yes, a very large number, Worsteds, Cheviots, Saxonys, single breasted, double breasted, sports backs—even suits by Rogers Peet. With three prices, $29.50, $39.50, $49.50, it's an exceptionally well balance group—considering that it's a clearance."

"What About Your Style?" "You'll see us repeated again when Spring comes 'round—as good an indication as we know, that we're still in the picture."

Suits, Second Floor



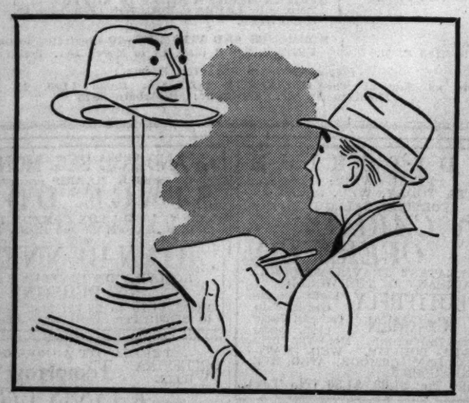
The White Shirts

"Is this a very special sale?" "Yes—twice a year we go on sale to give you an opportunity of building up your shirt drawer at greatly reduced prices."

"Why Three Prices?" "We come in three groups—I am the 'Velvet-Glo' broadcloth, collar attached and neckband at 3 for $6.50—there are imported white shirts at 3 for $9—and shirts, a bit high hat, of famous broadcloth from D. & J. Anderson of Scotland, 3 for $12."

"What were you priced before the sale?" "Let's see—'Velvet-Glo,' that's me, were $2.50 each; the imported, $3.50 each, and D. & J. Anderson $5 each.

Shirts, First Floor



The Tilford Hats

"What Is Surprising About Your $5.85 Price?" "A foolish question, if you ask us—not only are we regularly priced at $7.50, but even at this special price we come equipped with protective plaid luggage box."

"What Is Your Style?" "We come in two dimensions, snap brim, hand felted edge with 2¼" and 2⅜" brims—that gives plenty leeway for any man to wear one of us."

Hats, First Floor

We cleared our patterned shirt shelves over the week-end and refilled them with a comprehensive range of new crisply patterned stripes and checks in madras and broadcloth. They're all new and include fabrics woven by D. & J. Anderson of Scotland. $2 to $7.50.

APOSTOLI STOPS CHAMPION STEELE IN NINTH

Tonight's Games

Ohio State at Northwestern.
Indiana at Iowa.
Minnesota at Wisconsin.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western conference basketball season, which was opened by a pair of games early in the week, gains full momentum tonight. All the quintets are scheduled in what promises to be one of the wildest scoring sprees in conference basketball history because of the elimination of the center jump.

Northwestern and Indiana, by victories over Wisconsin and Illinois, respectively, now are one step ahead of the field. The Wildcats meet Ohio State in Patten gymnasium with prospects of winning their second game. Indiana, surprise victor over Illinois, which shared the 1937 championship with the University of Minnesota, will play Iowa in Iowa City.

Unbeaten Purdue, with the greatest scoring team in the conference on returns from eight victories, opens at the Midway against Chicago, which has an improved quintet but which probably cannot check the Boilermakers. Minnesota, beaten only once and victor over Notre Dame in its last contest, visits Wisconsin tonight. The Illini open Michigan's season in Ann Arbor.

Elimination of the center jump doesn't necessarily force basketball teams to employ a quick break all the time. But it is true that so far the Western conference has indicated that it prefers the fast break over attempts to score from set plays.

Northwestern scored 47 points to 38 points for Wisconsin and Indiana, after rallying to tie Illinois, 44 to 44, at the end of the regulation game, went on to pile up 51 points. These scores may be eclipsed by Purdue tonight.

Purdue has defeated Indiana State, Xavier, Detroit, De Paul, Loyola, Denver, Southern California and University of California at Los Angeles. The team has averaged nearly 60 points in these games. Jewell Young and Johnny Sines have had Purdue's driving attack. Last season Young established a conference record with 172 points. Gene Anderson, 6 foot 3 inch center, and Tom Dickinson, excellent dribbler, provide Young and Sines with strong support.

Bob Cassels, Chicago forward, who was injured in the first game with Marquette university, will not rejoin the Maroons until next month. Coach Nelson Norgren has shifted Lounsbury from center to forward to replace Cassels. He will pair with Mullins. Meyer, reserve center in 1937, now is at center. Chicago's guards, who have the task of stopping Sines and Young, will be John Eggemeyer and Capt. Kendall Petersen.

Chicago has won three of its five nonconference games, dividing the series with Marquette, defeating Armour Tech and Wheaton and losing to De Paul in the opening game of the season.

Ohio State, Northwestern's opponent tonight, has been beaten by George Washington university, which, incidentally, also has beaten Minnesota, and by the University of California. The Buckeyes' starting forwards, James Hull and Richard Baker, are letter men. Hull, leading scorer, is excellent at long range. He scored 76 points in conference games last season.

N. U. Stands Pat.

Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern will send the same five players to the court who started against Wisconsin. The Wildcats have had better scoring since Jean Smith, 1937 center, was shifted to forward. Against the Badgers Smith scored seven field goals and two free throws. Fred Trenkle, most aggressive member of the starting lineup, is invaluable in handling the ball. He also is a good shot. Jake Nagode will be at center.

Mike McMichael, veteran forward and most consistent shotmaker on the squad, played for the first time this season against California. An ankle injury had prevented participation in earlier games. McMichael scored three field goals and four penalty points in the California game.

Bernard Davis and Ad Vance will be Northwestern's guards.

Iowa Lineup Strengthened.

TITLEHOLDER GETS A BEATING, BUT STANDS UP

Crown Not at Stake in New York Bout.

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—If there was any lingering doubt that Fred Apostoli, sturdy Italian son of San Francisco, is the best middleweight in America, if not the world, it was dispelled tonight in Madison Square Garden. Before a crowd of 10,000 Apostoli knocked out Freddie Steele of Tacoma, world's middleweight champion, in the ninth round of a scheduled twelve round battle.

When the ninth round was 54 seconds old, Referee Arthur Donovan stepped between the combatants interrupting a torrid offensive by Apostoli in the corner of the helpless Steele, waved the San Francisco lad aside, victor by a technical knockout, in one of the most spectacular and fiercely contested middleweight battles seen here or in any other ring since the good old days.

Referee Donovan Intervenes.

In the seventh round, Apostoli accidentally struck Steele a low left. The blow, palpably foul, was seen by Donovan and by the crowd in the arena. The fact that it was accidental, didn't detract at all from the pain it produced. But Steele did not go down, and, when Apostoli sought to leap in and batter down the pain wracked champion, Referee Donovan rushed between them, and thrust Apostoli back.

But Steele Didn't Drop.

This action caused debate during the rest of the battle and long after it. If Steele had gone down, Donovan would have no alternative but to start a count. When Steele didn't go down, but hobbled about the ring, Donovan enforced the rules of sportsmanship by preventing Apostoli striking a blow in following an advantage produced through a palpably illegal blow.

The only reason Apostoli is not the champion tonight is because the fight was above the class maximum weight of 160 pounds. Though the champion, at 158¾ pounds, was under the weight, Apostoli, by agreement in the bout contracts and under the approval of the state athletic commission came in one and one-half pounds in excess of the weight, at 161½ pounds. In order to win a title a challenger must be at or under the weight of the champion he is fighting.

Champion Made Favorite.

In four rounds, the first, third, fourth, and fifth, Steele held the upper hand, boxing like a master, fighting like a champion, trading blow for blow with his most feared enemy, fighting in a style that, transiently at least, explained the fact betters had installed him favorite at odds of 14 to 5.

He lost like a champion, too, standing up under an unmerciful battering, refusing to go down for a count's brief respite, until Referee Donovan wisely ruled the champion should take no more punishment.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

REFEREE TOM THORP reveals that Sammy Baugh gives himself a pep talk every time he goes back to pass, telling himself aloud how receivers are breaking, where linemen are getting through and when to throw the ball. . . . Stub Allison's 78 year old mother saw California win the Rose Bowl game. . . . Tom Robinson will open his 29th season as Northwestern swimming coach a week from today when the Wildcats meet Wisconsin at Madison. . . . Robinson says the United States is becoming more swim conscious year by year. . . . When he took up his duties at Northwestern in 1909 only 30 per cent of the student body could swim. . . . Today more than 85 per cent can swim. . . . Charley Keller, the Yankees' highly touted rookie outfielder, is playing semi-pro basketball, a game that Bucky Harris claims cut five years off his baseball career and Bill Werber quit because it was slowing him up. . . . Don Budge's parents are urging him to accept a $50,000 offer to turn professional. . . . The greatest regret of his friends is that Eddie Neil, Associated Press writer killed in Spain, was unable to write the obituary of Eddie Neil, sports correspondent. . . . For fairness, thoroughness, and clarity of expression he well can stand as a model for America's aspiring sports commentators.

Jurkiewicz, who comes from Hamtramck, Mich., tried to save the life of a Detroit filling station attendant, who later died from burns incurred when his clothing caught fire in a lubrication pit. . . . The Indiana athlete threw his coat around the attendant to smother the fire. . . . Midget Wolgast, former 112 pound boxing champion, now weighs 147. . . . A pronounced southern drawl prevented Wes Ferrell from obtaining a movie contract after a film test which otherwise was pronounced colossal. . . . HAWK FORWARD LINE SHAKEN UP AFTER DEFEAT

Earl Seibert Is Shifted to Strengthen Attack.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

When the New York Rangers, the Blackhawks' most beloved cousins, renounced the relationship by trimming the Hawks 4 to 1 Thursday night, they started something. Yesterday Manager Bill Stewart of the Hawks announced a new and revolutionary forward line and acquired two new defense men.

The new line will be composed of Earl Seibert at right wing, Cully Dahlstrom at center, and Art Wiebe at left wing. Seibert, playing his eighth season in the National league, always has been a defense man but most of his popularity has been gained by his spectacular sprints down the rink. He now will be in a position to do a lot of dashing for enemy nets. Dahlstrom has been hailed as the rookie find of several seasons but has been handicapped by poor support on his line. Wiebe came to the Hawks as a left winger but was switched to defense after several games.

Vacancies Are Filled.

The vacancies left in the defense department will be filled by Virgil Johnson, purchased yesterday from St. Paul, and Harold Jackson, recalled from St. Louis, after the Hawks had shipped Pete Palangio back to St. Louis, whence they obtained him two years ago. Jackson was with the Hawks as a forward for a while last season and won some distinction by making a shot so hard that it went clear through the cage and banged against the end boards on the wing.

At the time he announced the big shakeup at yesterday's practice Manager Stewart also said Glenn Brydson, a right winger, will not be dressed for the game with the Maroons at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

It was intimated that the reorganization will not halt with yesterday's shakeup and that Brydson and possibly two others will go away if deals now being discussed can be closed.

New Men Report Today.

The new combinations will work out at the Stadium this morning at 11 o'clock, a few minutes after Johnson and Jackson are scheduled to reach town. Fortunately the foes of tomorrow night are not among the toughest touches for the unveiling of the new array. The Maroons, cellar champs of the Canadian division, are the only Canadian team the Hawks have defeated this season.

Johnson, one of the new defense men, is 26 years old and a native of Minneapolis. He has been playing professional hocky for five years, the last four with St. Paul.

REGENTS SILENT ON REQUEST FOR MICHIGAN PROBE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The board of regents of the University of Michigan today issued a statement concerning the football situation at the school in which it said that a successor to Harry G. Kipke, deposed coach, would be decided by "harmonious and united action of the board in control of physical education, the regents and the president."

The statement, prepared by the regents at their first meeting of the year, made no mention of a request from South Bend, Ind., alumni for an investigation of athletic affairs at the university.

White Sox Boss Finds All Except Six Players Signed

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

J. Louis Comiskey, the president of the White Sox, revealed yesterday that he has covered a lot of ground during the last couple of weeks. Uncle Lou announced, more or less proudly, that 1938 contracts, duly signed, have come back speedily enough to make him suspect he might have been overgenerous.

Lou Comiskey.

Unless the Sox owner, in the avalanche of returns, has overlooked one or two of his hirelings, there are only six men out of a list of more than thirty who are not in line.

One of the six, of course, is Zeke Bonura, the New Orleans Italian who has haggled every spring, principally because he knew he could take advantage of the fact that the Sox had no other first sacker to fill his shoes.

Others Still Out.

The other athletes still on the sidelines are Luke Sewell, Merritt Sugar Cain, Marvin Owen, the ex-Tiger; Jack Hayes, and Monty Stratton. Sewell is the only one with whom Comiskey has talked and they just about came to an agreement here in early December, a couple of weeks before the contracts were sent out. Stratton, Hayes, and Cain haven't been heard from and the absence of a complaint indicates they're waiting to get to the postoffice where pen and ink are available.

It is barely possible that if Bonura stages another holdout act which carries into the training trip he may eventually have to take what is offered and forget his habitual exorbitant demands. His idea that the Sox must have him for first base may be shattered. Jim Dykes, the manager, already has announced that he is trying to get his bum leg fixed up so that he can return to active duty. But Dykes has no plan for resuming as a third baseman. He now has such a fellow in Owen, but the Sox boss will go to first if necessary. He terms it the easiest job on the ball field and he should know.

Discuss Cut Salaries.

Charles Grimm, the Cub manager, who arrived here Wednesday, thinks he'll head back to his Missouri farm today to resume 5:30 a. m. arisals with the attendant cow milking chores, etc. Grimm had another session with Owner P. K. Wrigley yesterday and disposed of all the current baseball business. The discussion covered player salaries for 1938 and despite the nose dive taken by the Cubs last fall, it was announced that there will be no pay cuts.

The athletes will sign at a stipulated salary, but exceptional work during the season will be recognized. Last season some of the men were given raises at various stages and Owner Wrigley expects to make similar awards this year.

During the day the club revealed that Pitcher Charles W. Flowers, who was on the roster on Wednesday and not listed the next day, had been sold to the Indianapolis club. Flowers won 3 and lost 11 in the Pacific Coast league last season.

Famous Diamond Protests

[This is the sixth of a series of articles covering big league games, the outcomes of which, because of difference of opinion over fine technical points, were protested to the league presidents.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Because he pitched a perfect game, a rarity in baseball, Charley Robertson's big league career was clouded by a suspicion that he was a "cheater," a diamond term denoting those who heighten their skill by tampering with the cover of the ball.

As a young man, almost a rookie, with the White Sox, Robertson turned loose his arm April 30, 1922, at Detroit and compiled a 2 to 0 nine inning masterpiece in which not one Tiger batter reached base. Even before he had finished this job, the fourth of its kind in modern baseball, he was accused of illegal practices on the mound. Six years later, April 16, 1928, when he was a member of the Boston National league club, the Brooklyn Dodgers charged him with trickery. And the Brooklyn boys were so certain of themselves that they protested a game in which the former American leaguer beat them, 3 to 2.

Excitable Ty Cobb Becomes Really Excited.

Whether Robertson was a cheater never was proved and even men who played with him weren't sure about it, although they had heard the story. But the man who first aroused suspicion in the case was Ty Cobb, the great one, who was among the victims of Robertson's flawless performance in 1922.

Cobb, center fielder and Tiger manager at the time, spent the afternoon, when not taking ineffectual swipes at Robertson's pitches, putting on a show all his own. Cobb, who was proud of his team's hitting ability, especially his own, may have been aroused merely because he figured that no youngster, if pitching legitimately, was good enough to make his gang look helpless. Or it may have been that Cobb became suspicious over the peculiar courses Robertson's pitches were following.

Anyway, Cobb was convinced something was out of order. What it was he didn't know. But he ran his legs off trying to uncover the secret, if there was one. Time and again he stopped the game and examined the ball Robertson was pitching. He felt Robertson's glove and smelled it. He ran his hand into the pitcher's pocket. He made a close inspection of the ground around the mound, thinking Robertson might have planted some helpful substance there. Cobb found nothing.

Finally the great Tyrus got the idea that one of the Sox players might be coöperating with the pitcher in the alleged trickery. Cobb dashed here, there and everywhere, not for one inning but during the last five or six. Before the game ended he had visited every Sox player in the game. He looked at all the gloves and sniffed them. He dug into pockets. He ran his hands up and down on the uniforms. He still was without a clew. And through it all Robertson acted as if he didn't even suspect his integrity was being questioned.

Robertson Ordered to Change His Glove.

In the April 16, 1928, Boston-Brooklyn game, the Dodgers, after watching Robertson's pitches for a couple of innings began to beef to Umpire Uncle Charley Moran. Uncle Charley, a peace loving soul, tried to calm the storm by taking a look at the glove worn by the pitcher. The umpire did find some sort of a sticky substance on the glove, but there was no trace of it on the ball. The Dodgers kept on kicking, so Uncle Charley made Robertson change gloves.

Even that didn't quiet the Dodgers. They said the result of the game, if they lost, would be protested. The formal complaint was registered at National league headquarters and two weeks later President John A. Heydler handed down the following decision:

"This protest is unique in character, inasmuch as the Brooklyn club petitions that a game be thrown out of the records because the umpire failed to remove Pitcher Robertson from the game for alleged violation of the pitching rules.

"From Umpire Moran's evidence it appears this Boston pitcher had some gluelike substance on the inside or palm side of his glove, but the umpire, after frequent examinations, could not detect this foreign substance on

THOMSON, GOGGIN BOTH SCORE 65 AT LOS ANGELES

Lead $5,000 Tourney by Three Strokes.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Jimmy Thomson and Willie Goggin tied for the lead today in the first round of the $50,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament.

Jimmy Thomson.

Thomson turned in a 65 on the par 71 Woodrow Wilson course, missing a one-foot putt on the 18th green in an attempt to tie the course record of 64 hung up by Horton Smith one year ago.

Goggin, veteran San Francisco pro, scored his 65 on the par 72 Harding course, companion battleground of the Griffith park links, scene of the 13th annual tournament.

Others Tie At 68.

Most of the day's low scores were made on the Harding course. The split field will change courses in tomorrow's 18 hole round.

Three strokes behind Goggin and Thomson was a group including Abe Espinosa, Shreveport, La.; Harold McSpaden, Winchester, Mass.; Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles, National public links champion; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.; Ben Caltrin, San Francisco; Lloyd Mangrum, Dayton, O., and Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City.

Snead Scores 73.

PHIL KING, COACH OF WISCONSIN IN O'DEA'S DAY, DIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Philip King, a star of Princeton university's back field during the '90s and former football coach at the University of Wisconsin, died today at Emergency hospital following an abdominal operation. He was 65 years old. King, who is remembered as Princeton's first paid athletic coach, was thrice named a member of Walter Camp's All-American elevens, in 1891 and 1893, as a quarter back and in 1892 as a half back.

After coaching both football and baseball at his alma mater, King took the football coaching position at the University of Wisconsin, directing the Badgers from 1896 through 1902, and returning for the season of 1905. Some of his Wisconsin elevens were among the best in Badger history. The 1901 team was undefeated, and the 1897 team lost only to the alumni. In 1898 the Badgers lost only to Chicago and in 1900 only to Minnesota.

$10,500 CUT TOO MUCH; DERRINGER ASKS FOR TRADE

Derringer said that it appeared impossible for the club and himself to reach an agreement on this basis,

CEDAR RAPIDS TEAM ENTERS SILVER SKATES

Dennis Family Again to Be Represented.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Sixteen boys and girls from the Cedar Rapids, Ia., Skating association will seek Silver Skates Jan. 15 and 16 in THE TRIBUNE'S twenty-first annual Derbies at Garfield park. This is the largest team ever entered from Cedar Rapids, which always has been represented in the contests and which has won two championships.

Robert Dennis won the boys' intermediate championship in 1935 and last year, Janet Dennis won the girls' junior Silver Skates Derby. This was the first year that the junior division was restricted to girls under 16 years of age and an intermediate age class formed for girls 16 and 17 years of age. Although Miss Dennis still is not 16 years of age, she will compete next week in the intermediate class under the rule which prohibits a champion from again entering the class in which a title was won.

Father Is Skating Official.

Robert Dennis, as well as his brother Larry, will compete this year in the senior age class. The father of these skaters, Louis D. Dennis, is president of the Iowa Skating association, and his interest in the sport largely accounts not only for the early training of his own children but the enthusiasm of the Cedar Rapids association for skating.

MEN'S SENIOR—George Shimek, Art McGuire, Bob Hach, Leo Leonard, Larry Dennis, Robert Dennis.

BOYS' INTERMEDIATE—Ted Welch, Ed Shimek.

BOYS' MIDGET—Bobby Hach, Louis Shepard.

GIRLS' INTERMEDIATE—Barbara Shepard, Janet Dennis.

GIRLS' JUNIOR—Mary Shimek.

Another out of town team entry was received yesterday from the Aurora Skating club, which annually holds the Illinois state speed skating meet and an invitational high school meet. The tournament is scheduled for Jan. 29 and 30 at Mastodon lake, Aurora. Russell A. Perry, chairman of the board of control of the Aurora club, has nominated 12 skaters in four of the five Derbies for boys. The entry list is:

MEN'S SENIOR—John Bursch, George Schramer, Elmer Renner, George Diefrich.

BOYS' JUNIOR—Dean Lewis, Junior Stiefbolt, Robert Keeley.

SKATERS REACH ELGIN

Skaters from Iowa, Missouri, and Wisconsin arrived in Elgin yesterday for the Tri-State ice Derby to be held in Lords park tomorrow afternoon. When the Chicagoland delegation reaches Elgin tomorrow the field of nearly 400 will be complete for the six championship events and fourteen open races.

Chicago skating officials and fans will assemble in Garfield park tomorrow at 11 a. m. and will motor to Elgin accompanied by a state motorcycle escort, arriving in time for a parade through the business district at noon.

Gold crowns will be given to the winners of championships. Trophies also will be awarded to the man and woman scoring the most points. In addition the women's winner will receive a gold watch from Rose Johnson, who once was one of the best women racers in the world.

Championship races are the men's 440, half mile, mile, and two miles, and the women's 440 and mile.

Ruud Brothers to Compete in Ski Tourney

Filing of the entry of the Ruud brothers, Sigmund and Birger, of Norway in the Norge Ski club tournament at Fox River Grove, Ill., on Jan. 16, is expected to provide the meet with one of its best attractions.

Their entry is considered to have special interest to middle west winter sports fans inasmuch as they hold records for the Fox River Grove slide—both made in an exhibition that was part of their training for the 1932 winter Olympic games. That exhibition was their one appearance at Fox River Grove.

On that day Birger made a jump that received the highest rating ever given for one effort in a tournament in the United States, 19.250.

Sigmund Ruud holds the record for the longest jump ever made in competition, 267 feet, at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

PREDICT PREP FOOTBALL WILL BE OPENED UP

Trend toward opening up high school football was indicated yesterday as the rules committee of the National Federation of Interscholastic Athletic Associations opened its annual meeting in the Palmer house.

There was much sentiment toward allowing any number of forward passes on the same play, provided all are started behind the scrimmage line. There also was sentiment favoring a rule to allow a second eligible player to complete a pass which had been touched, but not caught by a first eligible receiver.

Many officials indicated they wished to encourage field goal kicking, with one proposal providing that when a team announces its intention of trying for a field goal the ball would be moved ten yards closer to the goal line.

Danville, Ky., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ed Kubale, who has been associated with Centre college athletics since 1921—first as a player and later as football coach, announced tonight he had signed a three year contract with Southwestern university of Memphis, effective March 1.

the ball itself. In the early stages of the game, however, and in response to the complaints of Brooklyn batsmen, he did take the glove away from Robertson, and the game proceeded without further interruptions.

"It has been the common practice and custom of umpires to first warn pitchers who were pitching illegally, either unintentionally or designedly, and such warnings always have been sufficient. Considering this was Robertson's first start and the fact that the umpire could not detect any foreign substance on the ball, Umpire Moran did the reasonable thing in this case—he not only issued a warning but made the pitcher change his glove.

"Had the umpire been fully convinced that glue or any other substance had been applied to the ball, he would have and should have immediately expelled Robertson from the game, which deservedly, would have been followed by the player's ten day suspension and loss of pay.

"Whatever may have been Robertson's offense, the fact remains that in the umpire's judgement it was not sufficient under the rules to have justified imposition of the extreme penalty. Accordingly, it is my opinion that the umpire in this instance was not derelict in enforcing the rules, and that therefore, the protest must be disallowed."

100 TO COMPETE IN INTER-CLUB SKEET PROGRAM

Steele Beats Daviscourt with Toe Hold; 31 Minutes

Jim McClintock threw Andy Moen, 10:40.
Rudy Hoffman threw Johnny Mason, 18:33.
Scotty McDougle and Pat Murphy drew.
Cordiss Grant threw Sun Jennings, 8:35.

Fritzie Zivic Wins Decision from Brown

Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh welterweight, handed Harold Brown a lesson in a ten round bout last night at Rainbo Fronton. It was Brown's first defeat in ten fights.

With the exception of the final round, Zivic held the upper hand. In the sixth round, Brown fell out of the ring, partly from a push and partly from a punch. He scrambled back at the ten count. Shortly after a blow to the chin floored Brown for the count of nine. Zivic weighed 146½ pounds and Brown 145½.

In the six round semi-final, Johnny Helstrom, north side lightweight, won a six round decision from Frankie Agnes of the west side. Jimmy Clark, Jamestown, N. Y., 152 pounder, defeated Bob Lamonte in a six rounder. Eddie Dykes and Jack Pumphrey fought four rounds to a draw, as did Tony De Pasquale and Johnny Norton.

The curtain raiser between Eddie Helstrom and Johnny Rock was called a draw by Referee Johnny Behr. Both fighters suffered cuts in the first round and were unable to continue.

Lou Angelucci suffered two fractured ribs in the third round of his five round bout with Joe Toziola at the Madison Athletic club last night, but he went on to win the decision. He incurred the injury in a fall from the ring. Both fighters are welterweights. Other results on the all-amateur card:

Jackie Wilson, who claims the featherweight boxing championship because he defeated former champions Freddy Miller and Mike Belloise, and Leo Rodak, leading challenger for the title, have been signed to meet in a ten round rematch at Marigold Gardens Monday. The bout was substituted for a scheduled headliner between Davey Day and Charley Burns. Day is unable to fight because of a back injury. In two previous meetings Rodak and Wilson fought draws at St. Louis, the first in ten rounds Aug. 19 and the second in 15 rounds Sept. 17.

DodgersReady to Vote Post to MacPhail

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Official announcement of L. S. [Larry] MacPhail's appointment as general manager of the Brooklyn club of the National league awaits only a meeting of the club's board of directors.

MacPhail, former general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has for some time been the No. 1 nominee to fill the post recently vacated by John Gorman. Among those who recommended MacPhail to the club was Ford Frick, president of the National league.

With MacPhail in charge, the Dodgers will begin preparations to introduce night baseball in Brooklyn. It is too late now to equip Ebbets field with electric lights for seven night games this season, but in 1939 the Dodgers will schedule a full quota of night contests.

The Dodgers today announced a thirty-one game exhibition schedule, opening on March 19 against the Boston Red Sox at the Dodgers' Clearwater, Fla., camp and ending on April 17 against the Yankees.

MARSHALL BEATS TULEY FIVE, 31-30; ENGLEWOOD WINS

York, Evanston, Leo and St. George Triumph.

Marshall defeated Tuley in overtime, 31 to 30, and Englewood turned back Fenger, 26 to 24, yesterday in the closest contests on the seven game program which opened the senior division basketball race in the Chicago High School league for fourteen more teams.

Two other games were close, Steinmetz defeating Lane, 30 to 27, and Calumet triumphing over Harper, 26 to 22. Kelvyn Park ran over Washburne, 40 to 5; Roosevelt whipped Amundsen, 37 to 13, and Senn beat Sullivan, 34 to 20, in other contests.

Comin Takes Charge.

Melvin Comin's field goal with Marshall trailing Tuley, 28 to 26, sent the game into overtime, and the same player then came through with a field goal and free throw to give Marshall its victory.

Fourteen teams in the junior division opened their sectional races, with Tuley shading Marshall, 27 to 26, and Roosevelt defeating Amundsen, 31 to 29, in two of the outstanding contests.

The York heavyweights broke a tie with Hinsdale for the lead in the West Suburban league by triumphing over the Hinsdale quintet, 23 to 21. In the Suburban league the Evanston lights and heavies stayed in first place, the former defeating Highland Park, 25 to 16, while the heavies came through with a 36 to 20 victory over the same team to stay tied with New Trier, which beat Morton, 32 to 27.

Catholic Race Opens.

Fourteen teams in each of the heavy and light weight divisions of the Catholic league opened play in the north and south sections last night. U. S. AND BRITAIN DISCLOSE PLANS FOR TRADE PACT

1,000 Import Duties May Be Cut.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain today announced formal "intention to negotiate" a trade agreement. Secretary of State Hull's announcement disclosed that the British colonial empire and Newfoundland are to be included in the accord. Excluded are the dominions, Ireland, and India.

Sec. Cordell Hull.

March 14 was set for the beginning of public hearings on imports and exports suggested for inclusion. Hull published a list of more than 1,000 imports on which tarif concessions may be granted.

Feb. 19 was fixed as the closing date for the submission of briefs by importers, exporters, producers, and manufacturers, and for applications to be heard at the public meetings.

British Delegation Coming.

Secretary Hull said a British delegation of trade experts would sail from Britain about Feb. 1 for the United States to begin discussions with United States experts.

A similar announcement is expected shortly on a new trade agreement with Canada. A state department official said it was believed South Africa and later Australia would follow.

Concessions up to 50 per cent in tarif duties may be granted on British imports into this country. Other concessions may be made by "binding" tarifs at existing rates or "binding" on the free list those products already there.

Climax of Program.

The trade agreement with Great Britain, if completed, may be regarded as the climax of Secretary Hull's economic program. The United Kingdom absorbed $440,122,000 worth of United States exports in 1936 and sold $200,385,000 worth of goods to the United States. Exports to Britain constituted 18 per cent of American sales to all countries, and imports 8 per cent of the total from all countries.

United States exports to the British colonial empire [excluding India but including Newfoundland] in 1936 were $49,000,000. Imports [chiefly raw materials] were $230,000,000.

Following is a partial list of imports on which the United States will consider granting tarif concessions:

Whisky, boots and shoes, woolen fabrics, cotton fabrics, gloves, lether goods, saddlery and harness, hardware, certain pickled and salt fish, various manufactured and chemical products, ale, porter, stout, beer, dressed furs.

Many Other Items.

Certain types of medicines, halibut liver oil, flavoring extracts, ink, sperm and seal oil, marine animal and fish oils, linseed or flaxseed oil, paints, toilet soap, tiles, earthenware, crockery ware, stone ware, table and kitchen ware.

Certain types of flax, cordage, table damask, linoleum, tapestries and unholstery, silk hose, rayon clothing, paper, books, sporting equipment, straw hats, brushes, buttons, toys, lether, combs, sponges, pipes, bibles, rough diamonds, sheep dip, sulphur, tea, and turtles.

ABOUT 70,000 STEEL WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS

Operations Up 20% in Last Week.

Chrysler Calls 55,000

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation announced tonight that its automobile plants would reopen Tuesday, returning to work the 55,000 employes who were working when the holiday shutdown began Dec. 23.

Estimates made yesterday indicated that about 70,000 steel workers have gone back to their jobs within the last week in the principal steel producing centers. Steel production has risen to one-third of capacity, an increase of about 20 per cent in the last few days.

Exact figures were not available, but it was estimated that about 20,000 men have been rehired by Pittsburgh mills this week and about 50,000 workers have been added in Chicago, Birmingham, Youngstown, Johnstown, and Bethlehem.

With automobile production lagging and railroad buying slack, steel men doubt that the present expansion in operations can be maintained. The automobile industry particularly is watched as the index of future steel operations.

Believes Slump Will Be Short.

In Lansing Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan said that he had received information indicating that the slump in the automobile centers will be short lived. He said that the recession in employment in Michigan is passing and that thousands of men are expected to be called back to work "in a short time."

Murphy said that about 165,000 automobile workers are idle. He listed the unemployed in the principal manufacturing centers as follows: Detroit, 140,000 to 145,000; Flint, 9,000; Pontiac, 8,000, and Ingham [Lansing], 6,000 to 7,000. Plans already announced by Detroit plants will cut down the Detroit total about 46,000 in the next week, he said.

Ford Official Differs.

The governor said he was encouraged by the facts that the Ford company had agreed to reëmploy 40,000 men on Jan. 17. Characterizing the governor's remarks as "inaccurate," Bennett said that fewer than 25,000 Ford employés were idle and that "as soon as business conditions warant these men will be returned to work."

"The departments are opening up," he said. "The company hopes to have all of the men back at work on Jan. 17 or soon thereafter. Business conditions will decide it."

Other Industries Lose.

Data on declining employment was reported yesterday from other sources. In Washington, D. C., the interstate commerce commission made public figures disclosing that the number of employés of class 1 railroads on Dec. 15 was 52,259 lower than a month earlier.

The commission reported that the total number employed by the roads on Dec. 15 was 1,008,037, compared with 1,060,296 a month earlier, a decline of 4.93 per cent. The largest decrease was in the number of maintenance and structure employés which dropped from 202,925 in November to 183,270 in December.

The St. Joseph Lead company announced that operations will be curtailed in five of its Missouri mines, effective Monday, because of reduced demand for lead.

Production To Be Staggered.

Production will be staggered so that each plant operates six days each alternate week. About 2,500 men, who have been working five 8 hour days will be affected. Hourly wage rates, said to be the highest ever paid, will be maintained.

The National Sewing Machine company reported that its plant in Belvidere, Ill., which has been closed for inventory, will resume operations Jan. 10 on a 36 hour work week, compared with the 45 hour work week in effect before the shutdown. The plant will operate four 9 hour days each week. About half of the 800 employés will be called back to work immediately, and others will report as expansion in operations permits, Raymond F. List, president, said.

Retiring and New Heads of The Fair

KELLY TO RETIRE AS PRESIDENT OF THE FAIR STORE

State Street Leader for Many Years.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

D. F. Kelly, State street merchant for more than 50 years, will retire as president of The Fair at the annual meeting of stockholders of the company on April 26, he announced yesterday. He will be succeeded by C. S. Maginnis, vice president.

One of Chicago's most active leaders in civic affairs, Kelly expects to give even more of his time to such enterprises when relieved of active management of the big department store organization.

He told stockholders a year ago of his wish to give up the president's job. It was only at the urgent request of S. S. Kresge, chairman of the board and principal stockholder, that he was persuaded to remain as chief officer. Yesterday he called in all department heads and buyers to discuss plans for spring business. Then he told them he definitly will relinquish his present duties this spring.

Will Continue As Director.

Kelly explained, however, that he will not give up his association with the business he has headed since 1925. He will continue a director—an active one rather than the kind that does no more than attend monthly meetings, he explained. He will be liaison man between directors and the management, and continue to help shape policies.

"I will have my office in the store, to use as little or as much as seems necessary," he said, "but I shall have no title or salary." He has been receiving $60,000 a year during the last several years. The salary was cut from $100,000 during the depression.

"It's simply that I have reached the traditional three score and ten years, and feels that it is time I retired from my present strenuous duties to devote more time to my family, my personal affairs, and civic duties," he said.

Always Close to Loop.

His entire life has been identified with Chicago's loop. He was born there—at what now is 121 North State street—on Aug. 23, 1868. He attended St. Mary's school on nearby Wabash avenue. He stayed in the neighborhood when he sought a job.

His father was a brick maker and later operated a grocery store, but young Kelly did not go to work for his dad. He chose a store more to his liking. He walked into Mandel Brothers, asked the name of the boss and how much money he earned.

Learning that the manager received $10,000 a year, Kelly was satisfied with the prospects and went to work as an errand boy for $2 a week in June, 1879, at the age of 11. The Mandels soon heard about the kid who had managerial ideas and one of them made him personal office boy.

Gains Broad Knowledge.

When he was 17 Kelly was put in charge of all boys. Then he became an assistant in the advertising department. By the time he was 20 he had worked in every department of the store and had such a knowledge of the business that he was made a superintendent at $2,000 a year. Ten years later he had that manager's job he started out to get. In a few more years he was general manager with it a share in profits.

It was real news then, when Kelly forsook personal and business contacts built up over a period of more than 43 years to become vice president and general manager of The Fair on Jan. 1, 1923. He became president about two years later when the Kresge interests purchased control from the heirs of E. J. Lehman, founder of The Fair, who developed the business from a little 16 foot front store on State street near Adams street.

Force in Civic Matters.

In his full business life, Kelly has found time to be a force in civic matters. He was an original petitioner for a loop subway in 1928, and is chairman of the first mortgage bondholders' committee of the elevated lines in current transit negotiations.

He was an incorporator and trustee of A Century of Progress Exposition. He was a member of the citizens' committee on public expenditures in 1932 and 1933, and prior to that was a leader in sales of tax warrants to pay public employés.

Head of the Catholic Charities of Chicago since its organization in 1918, Kelly was made a Knight in the Order of St. Gregory in 1920 and was made a Knight of Malta by Pope Piux XI in 1931. He received the degree of doctor of law from De Paul university and the University of Notre Dame.

Married Irene Sullivan.

Maginnis, who is to become president of The Fair, has been groomed for the job for a number of years, Kelly said. His entire business life of more than 20 years has been identified with The Fair, where he began as a stock boy.

William E. Killian, now a merchandise manager, is slated to succeed Maginnis as vice president. He was elected a director last spring.

Stock Market Mostly Higher; Leaders Sink

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Most stocks closed at irregularly higher levels today, but persistent profit taking on Thursday's advance cut fractions about 2 points from many leading issues.

Although the Dow-Jones price averages for leading industrial, railroad, and utility shares moved lower, a compilation showed that of 797 issues traded 402 closed higher, 242 lower, and 153 unchanged. Advances, however, were mostly fractional. Trading was quiet, sales totaling 1,052,720 shares.

Metal Group Is Active.

Outstanding was the activity at higher prices in the nonferrous metal group, attributed to the announcement of increases in prices of copper and lead. Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, American Smelting, and St. Joseph Lead were prominent, but profit taking in the afternoon forced the section to close irregular.

United States Steel common ruled lower and closed at 57¼, off 1⅛. Bethlehem kept pace, dropping 1¼ points. Other steel stocks lost fractions to more than 1 point.

General Motors closed fractionally lower after moving in a narrow range. Chrysler declined 1¾ points. Other motors eased fractions for the most part.

Rails Group Slips.

Railroad issues gave up ground, presumably on the fact that car loadings, although showing only a moderate decline from the preceding week, decreased sharply from the corresponding week last year. New York Central was leader on the down side, giving up almost 1 point. Baltimore and Ohio slipped a fraction. Union Pacific proved an exception, rising 1 point.

Public utility issues were dull and prices held in a narrow range. Chemicals were mixed. Oils were mostly lower.

Heavy machinery shares, which gained good ground yesterday, lost up to one point or more today. Westinghouse declined 1%, General Electric a fraction, Allis Chalmers 1, and International Harvester a fraction.

Merchandising and rubber issues ruled firm. Aviation issues, including Douglas and Boeing, lost about 1½ points.

RAIL FREIGHT TRAFIC DECLINES FURTHER IN FINAL WEEK OF YEAR

The total of 457,359 cars loaded during the week represented a decrease of 3,008 cars from the preceding week's figure and was 130,904 cars less than in the corresponding week at the end of 1936. In percentages the declines amounted to 0.6 per cent from the preceding week and 22.2 per cent from a year ago. The figure was 15½ per cent less than that of two years ago.

The association's classified report for various commodities, together with comparisons, follows:

COAL BUREAU'S PRICES CONTINUE DESPITE SUIT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Charles F. Hosford Jr., chairman of the bituminous coal commission, said today that the first suit against the new government fixed minimum soft coal prices would not in itself stop the operation of the higher price schedule.

The Indiana Gas and Chemical corporation of Terre Haute filed the suit yesterday, asking the federal District court here to enjoin the commission from enforcing the prices it had fixed on certain southern coal shipped into the Terre Haute area. The commission was given twenty days to show cause why the court should not issue an injunction, Hosford said.

The first order granting temporary relief from minimum prices was announced by the commission in favor of the Providence Gas company, Providence, R. I.

PWA ASKS COURT END INJUNCTIONS ON POWER PLANTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Public Works administration late today asked the District court to dissolve temporary injunctions granted in five suits by private power companies to halt government financing of public power projects.

The motions cited the Supreme court's recent decisions in the Duke Power company and Alabama Power company cases upholding the constitutionality of the government's program for financing municipal electrical developments.

Home Furnishing Show Dates Are Set by Mart

The board of governors of the American Furniture Mart last night set the dates for the spring and summer home furnishing markets. The spring show, at which summer styles will be exhibited, will be held May 2 to 7, inclusive. The summer show, at which fall and winter styles will be introduced, will be held July 5 to 16. A poll of leaders in the industry, as reported to the board, indicated the majority expect a decided business upturn at the end of 60 days.

Reveal Aliens Buy U.S. Stocks During Slump

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The treasury disclosed today that foreigners bought $73,854,000 worth of securities in this country in the first month and a half of the stock market decline.

The figures made public today were heretofore unofficial assurance from government circles that the decline was due to American and not foreign selling.

For the period from Aug. 11 to Sept. 29 foreigners bought in this country $17,682,000 worth of American securities and $56,172,000 worth of foreign securities previously held in this country. Aug. 14 was the high point of the stock market, followed by a steady retreat until the first major break occurred on Sept. 7.

Capital Movements Shown.

The figures made public today were contained in a report on capital movements between the United States and the rest of the world during July, August and September. For the quarterly period foreign purchases of securities here totaled $153,630,000, including $55,588,000 of American securities and $98,042,000 of foreign securities.

Principal purchasers of American securities after the market decline began were England, Holland, Switzerland, and Canada. France, Italy and Germany sold United States securities in relatively small quantities. Latin American and far eastern countries also sold.

Foreign Capital Flows to U. S.

Taking into account short term bank funds and brokerage balances, as well as securities transactions, the treasury said the net inflow of foreign capital into the United States during the quarter totaled $350,089,000.

Although money was still flowing to this country in large volume, the rate was not so fast as earlier in the year. The average net inflow for the first three quarters of 1937 was $434,000,000.

Officials generally acknowledge that since September many foreigners, particularly Frenchmen, have taken their money home, but the extent of this movement will not be known for another three months.

UTILITIES FIGHT TVA TESTIMONY AS CONFIDENTIAL

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The eighteen private utilities attacking the Tennessee Valley authority sought to bring out today that a TVA witness used confidential reports to the federal power commission in testifying against them.

The witness, Percy H. Thomas of Atlanta, regional director of the federal power commission, told the three member federal court under cross-examination that, although he was not testifying as a member of the commission staf his testimony was based on data gathered by the commission.

Thomas testified yesterday that southeastern states faced a power shortage beginning in 1939. He said he used "power company reports to the commission" in making his studies.

The court adjourned until Monday.

C. I. O. RECEIVES NEW SETBACK IN UNION VOTE

The steel workers' organizing committee, affiliate of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization, received another setback in the South Chicago steel district yesterday when it was defeated in an election held by the national labor relations board to determine what agency should represent the workers of two plants of the Interlake Iron corporation in collective bargaining.

The Employés Association of the Chicago Interlake Iron corporation, an independent union, obtained 437 votes against only 280 for the C. I. O.

Steamship Line Meets Rules; to Get Subsidy

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The maritime commission announced today the Dollar Line Steamship company had agreed to comply with its conditions and thereby became eligible for an operating-differential subsidy.

Walgreen's Sales Climb; Ward's Steady

The Walgreen company yesterday reported the largest December sales in its history and Montgomery Ward & Co. announced that sales for the same month were only 0.83 per cent less than those of December, 1936. Another mail order company, Spiegel, Inc., extended its sales gains to the 59th consecutive month and reported a new high mark for all of 1937.

December, 1937, marked the 24th consecutive month in which the Walgreen company has shown a sales gain over the corresponding month of the preceding year. The figure was $7,483,580, or 3.7 per cent more than the $7,218,252 sales for December, 1936. The $68,666,615 total for 1937 also set a new record and was a gain of 7.4 per cent over $63,919,188 in 1936.

Ward Sales 51 Millions.

Ward December sales totaled $51,360,407, against $51,789,337 sales a year earlier. November sales were 6.9 per cent larger than a year earlier and sales for the eleven months ended Dec. 31 amounted to $410,699,553, or 15.9 per cent more than the $354,366,602 total in the corresponding 1936 period.

The Spiegel gain was from $5,152,373 in the final month of 1936 to $6,085,721 last December. The increase of 18.1 per cent was less, however, than the 24.5 per cent gain shown in the 1937 total of $55,648,033, compared with $44,695,482 during 1936.

Kresge's December sales were $24,144,669, or 0.8 of 1 per cent less than the $24,350,698 reported in the last month of 1936. The 1937 total of $154,234,470 was 3.7 more than $148,710,181 in 1936.

MOTOR OUTPUT RISES; STILL FAR BELOW YEAR AGO

Output of passenger cars and trucks by American and Canadian factories this week was estimated at 54,084 vehicles by Ward's Automotive Reports yesterday. This was an increase over the output of 49,550 cars in the preceding holiday week. Production totaled 92,142 in the corresponding 1937 period.

Chrysler resumed production in its Canadian plants this week, turning out 2,750 vehicles. General Motors' assemblies were estimated at 22,425, against 19,320 in the preceding week, and Ford's output was placed at 22,765, against 22,715.

The agency said there is no prospect of a sharp gain in production in the next few weeks, but that a gradual expansion in operations is promised.

A total of 1,187 insurance companies were authorized to transact business in Illinois on June 30, 1937, compared with 1,161 companies on the same date of 1936, according to a report made yesterday by Ernest Palmer, director of insurance, to Gov. Horner.

There were 49 companies admitted or organized during the fiscal year and 23 discontinued, representing a net gain of 26. A total of 584 companies were authorized to write fire insurance; 219 to write casualty insurance; 141, life; 139, fraternal; and 104 mutual benefit and burial associations were authorized to transact business in the state.

During the year the department of insurance examined 147 companies, the largest group being 54 mutual benefit associations.

DENNEY, BANKERS CONFER ON ERIE ROAD SITUATION

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—C. E. Denney, president of the Erie railroad, was reported to be conferring with bankers here today relative to the situation caused by the failure of Chesapeake and Ohio railway, which controls the Erie, to guarantee a loan of $6,000,000 which the Erie has asked from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Should the C. & O. allow its controled company to lapse into bankruptcy through bond interest defaults an obstacle would be placed in the way of a proposal to reorganize the Alleghany corporation, which controls both the C. & O. and the Erie.

Private banking interests have disclosed that they will extend accommodation to the Erie at lower interest rates than are offered by the R. F. C., provided the C. & O. guarantees the obligation.

CHICAGO'S DEBT CUT $14,409,000 IN 1937; CREDIT IS STRONGER

The debt of the city of Chicago was cut $14,409,000 in 1937, City Controler Robert B. Upham said in his annual report submitted yesterday to Mayor Kelly. After meeting Jan. 1 interest and principal payments $10,500,000 remained in various sinking funds for future obligations, he said.

Upham said the improving credit position of the city was shown in a steady decline in interest rates in 1937 on the city's securities. On Jan. 1 sale of $11,000,000 of 3 per cent judgment bonds was made at a premium of $392,876. Proceeds were used to retire judgments against the city drawing interest at 5 per cent. The operation effected a yearly interest savings of 2.40 per cent, amounting to $286,000.

Interest and principal maturities totaling $22,730,000 on Jan. 1 were met by disbursements of $12,730,000 cash on hand and the issuance of $10,000,000 of refunding bonds on which the interest rate to maturity averages 2.83 per cent.

AUBURN AUTO AVOIDS TRUSTEE IN REORGANIZING

The Auburn Automobile company, undergoing reorganization under section 77B of the bankruptcy act, was yesterday ordered to keep possession of its properties by Judge Thomas W. Slick in the northern Indiana federal District court. The order eliminated, at least temporarily, the possibility of appointment of a trustee which Auburn attorneys said would be extremely expensive.

Retention of the property by Auburn has been advocated by Auburn attorneys and by Raymond S. Pruitt, general counsel for the Cord corporation, which owns about 29 per cent of Auburn's stock. Charles H. Watson, representing 512 of Auburn's 3,300 stockholders, also approved the court order.

Auburn is also attempting to reorganize the Lycoming Manufacturing company, a subsidiary. Auburn stopped making automobiles last fall, and has turned to new lines, including metal stamping products and automobile parts. Lycoming makes industrial, generating, and marine engines.

NET EARNINGS OF LAKE SHORE TRUST LARGER

Joseph R. Frey, president of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, reported 1937 net earnings of $162,705 at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday. Net earnings were $145,928 in the preceding year. Deposits on Dec. 31 totaled $12,090,863, an increase of $266,633 over a year ago.

Stockholders reëlected all directors of the bank. Robert A. Giffnay was elected an assistant cashier, and W. W. Kneessi was named new business representative. Other officers were reëlected.

CHICAGO 'FED' BANK EARNS LESS; PROFITS ON BOND SALES LOWER

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported 1937 net earnings of $2,187,212 in its annual statement released yesterday. Net earnings were $2,496,156 in 1936.

Operating earnings were larger last year than in 1936, reflecting the increased banking activity, but total net earnings were less because of the smaller profit realized in 1937 on sale of government securities. Earnings from this source were $276,470 against $1,150,317 in the preceding year.

The bank paid dividends of 6 per cent to member banks which hold its shares and earmarked surplus earnings for various purposes specified by law. Among these was an appropriation of $165,119 to help pay for the building of the federal reserve governors in Washington.

At the close of 1937 only $1,281,673 of the bank's funds were in commercial use in contrast to the $281,991,000 tied up in government securities.

ST. LOUIS UNIT'S NET RISES.

St. Louis, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today current net earnings for 1937 of $432,000 compared with $412,000 for 1936. Total current earnings were $1,803,000 and total current expenses $1,371,000, while profit on sales of government securities totaled $117,000. Dividends disbursed to member banks totaled $229,000.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Bonds moved irregularly higher in slower trading today on the New York Stock exchange. More normal conditions returned to the market for secondary railroad issues with a majority of those loans reflecting the improvement in sentiment resulting from the clarification of the Baltimore & Ohio situation by recording moderate gains.

The bonds of Erie, however, stood as conspicuous exceptions to the trend and dropped 1½ to 7 points as the controversy between the company, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the RFC in respect to the Erie's application for aid continued. The main body of carrier liens moved up fractions to about three points in less active trading.

Higher prices ruled in pivotal issues in the industrial and utility sections, while a special feature of the day was the gain of 21 points in Lehigh Valley Coal 6 per cent notes, due 1938, to 97. This upswing followed announcement that the plan to extend the maturity of the notes for five years at the same rate of interest together with the guarantee as to principal and interest by the Lehigh Valley railroad, has been declared effective.

United States government obligations followed a highly mixed trend most of the day with closing prices showing gains of 1-32 to 4-32 point and declines of the same amount. Foreign dollar bonds were generally higher under the leadership of Japanese and South American loans.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks were steady to high yesterday on sales of 23,000 shares. Of the 89 issues traded, 40 advanced, 19 declined and 30 were unchanged. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks closed at 10.23, up 0.02 from the preceding day.

Most of the volume leaders sagged slightly. Marshall Field eased ⅛ to 8⅝ on sales of 1,650 shares. Commonwealth Edison closed at 27¼, down ⅛, on 1,650 shares. Armour common declined ⅛ to 6⅝ on sales of 1,200 shares.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were generally firm yesterday. First National stock was quoted at $213 bid, $217 asked, or $3 above closing quotations of most dealers on the 2 preceding day. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company shares lost part of Thursday's gain at $101.50 bid. Strength was shown in Northern Trust stock which was quoted between $485 and $495 a share by various dealers, compared with $480 Thursday.

FORD SOLD ROAD, BUT REFUSED TO PROMISE TRAFIC

Senate Group Is Told of Deal with Pennroad.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Henry Ford turned down a proposal that he promise to continue shipping his products over a railroad he was selling in 1929, Edsel Ford told the senate railroad committee today.

Edsel Ford.

The Pennsylvania railroad, it was testified, sought to get the promise when the Pennroad corporation was negotiating to buy the Ford owned Detroit, Toledo and Ironton road. After Ford's refusal, Pennroad bought the other carrier anyway.

Committee investigators contended the pact would have violated federal law and this view was shared by Pennsylvania railroad counsel.

Blames Federal Restrictions.

Edsel Ford, son of the automobile manufacturer, said the Ford company acquired the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton when it was in bad shape and rehabilitated it, but decided to sell it in 1929, partly because of government restrictions.

Referring to regulations of the interstate commerce commission, he said: "We had some ideas about rolling stock, but we found we could not do the things we wanted."

A. J. County, Pennsylvania vice president and a director of Pennroad, said the agreement was sought because he did not believe the railroad was worth the $36,000,000 asked by Ford unless a guarantee of future trafic could be obtained.

Argue Plan was "Rebate."

Under the Elkins act railways are forbidden to give any rebate to shippers. Committee investigators contended that since Pennroad was willing to pay the purchase price only in consideration of future trafic, part of the price would have been a "rebate" to Ford.

C. D. Longley, Ford attorney, said Henry Ford balked at the proposal "because he would not tie up the trafic in any way."

County said he decided that it would be "impossible for the Ford Motor company to carry on without getting freight out over that line." Therefore, he said, he agreed to make the purchase without the trafic guarantee. He testified that the road had continued to receive substantial Ford shipments since.

Committee records showed that Ford paid approximately $22,000,000 for the D., T. and I. and sold it for $35,499,312.

West Virginia Pulp and Paper.

Investors Guide: What do you think of West Virginia Pulp and Paper company first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds maturing Dec. 1, 1952, as an investment for an old couple's small savings?—F. A.

Answer: This $10,000,000 issue of bonds sold last month constitutes the company's only funded debt and represents its only public financing since formed. Although considered reasonably sound, the bonds are more a business man's investment than the type of security usually recommended in your case.

Annual interest requirements of $450,000 on the new bonds would have been covered by comfortable margins in all but two of the last ten years. Net income declined from $4,750,000 in 1929 to only $30,000 in the year ended Oct. 31, 1932. Improvement carried net to $79,000, $664,000, $822,000, and $1,905,000 in the succeeding four fiscal years. Net income was $2,439,000 in the 10 months ended Aug. 31, 1937.

Current assets were $16,830,000 and current liabilities were $5,847,000 on Aug. 31, 1937.

Of the proceeds from sale of the new bonds, $8,500,000 will be used to pay bank loans incurred to finance construction of a new mill at Charleston, S. C.

Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron.

Investors' Guide: Please send me information on Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company.—A. E. G.

Answer: The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company manufactures pig iron, slag, concrete, coal, and coke and its by-products. The company's plants are all located near Birmingham, Ala. Iron ore, coal, limestone lands, and other sources of raw materials are located in Alabama, Georgia, and Tennessee.

The company has 60,473 shares of $6 cumulative preferred stock and 99,318 shares of common outstanding. Regular preferred dividends are now being paid. A special common stock dividend of $1.50 a share, first common disbursement since 1929, was paid Dec. 21, 1937.

The earnings report for 1937 has not yet been issued. In the first six months of 1937, net income was $571,987, or $3.78 a common share. No comparative figures are available because the company did not previously issue interim reports. Profit in 1936 was $868,463, or $4.15 a common share. The company had deficits in the years 1932-1935.

The preferred stock is rated as somewhat speculative and the common as speculative in view of the slack current demand for the products the company sells.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are not quoting sale prices in this announcement because our reductions on used cars are so enormous that the new low prices might seem unbelievable—but

"Seeing Is Believing"

—so come in and see for yourself.

Our annual January Clearance Sale is now in progress, with unprecedented reductions on all makes and models.

A complete line of 1931 to 1937 Dodges, Plymouths, Fords, Chevrolets, and other makes. Also a few trucks.

The cars we are showing in this sale carry the same guarantee of honest dealing that has been our reputation for 18 years.
